A NEW HIGH IN MARIJUANA

Teacher's Rehiring Is Ordered

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The state Court of Appeal ordered yesterday that the Tamalpais High School District rehire Elizabeth Blodgett, the portly physical education teacher once called a "living hypocrisy" of her profession.

Miss Blodgett, 45, weighed 228 pounds when she was dismissed in 1968 by principal Donald Kreps of Redwood High School, who said her size made her unfit for her work.

The teacher said from her Marshall home last night that she was "delighted" with the unanimous decision of the three-man court, adding it's been a "tough three years" since she was fired.

"I've had three years of what amounts to professional ostracism over this thing," she said.

Her attorney, A. Leonard Bjorklund Jr., called the ruling "just fabulous" and said the feeling of his client was that it was "a great victory for all the Charlie Browns in the world."

Miss Blodgett said she has coached football for an elementary school, worked as a substitute teacher and driven a school bus since her dismissal and "at the moment, I'm unemployed."

Although Bjorklund said his client "weighs about the same now as she did then," Miss Blodgett declined to discuss her size. "If you see any weight mentioned anywhere it will be somebody playing guessing games," she said.

The court, in an opinion written by Presiding Justice Daniel R. Shoemaker, said that despite Miss Blodgett's weight, she was an "exceptionally competent" teacher and the school district must rehire her at once.

"A thorough review of the evidence shows that the plaintiff was overweight but that this condition did not render her unfit to teach," the opinion said.

ELIZABETH BLODGETT
Appeal successful

Miss Blodgett, who is five feet, seven inches tall, first was hired as a substitute teacher at Redwood High in 1966, becoming a full-time probationary teacher in the 1966-67 and 1967-68 years.

In March 1968, she was told her teaching contract would not be renewed on Kreps's recommendation "because her overweight condition rendered her unfit for service." Her weight fluctuated during this period between 250 and 226 pounds, and she went on a crash diet and vigorous exercise program shortly before her dismissal.

Although the court was silent on the issue of back pay, Bjorklund said Miss Blodgett was entitled to three years' back wages at 7 per cent interest, but didn't know how much this amounted to.

But Richard V. Godino, assistant county counsel who has represented the school district through three years of legal proceedings, held out the possibility of a rehearing petition to the appellate court or an appeal to the state Supreme Court. And Miss Blodgett said she was still holding her breath.

"Even seeing the possibility of a conclusion at this time is something I don't care to put too much trust in," she said.

Bjorklund had appealed to the state Court of Appeal after district trustees fired Miss Blodgett on the recommendations of both Kreps and a state hearing officer, and after Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court, although sympathetic to the teacher, ruled Miss Blodgett had received fair treatment in earlier legal proceedings.

Nelder Quits His Police Chief Job

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Police Chief Alfred J. Nelder announced today he was resigning.

Nelder, named by Mayor Joseph Alioto to the position two years ago, told newsmen he wanted "to do something else."

Alioto immediately named Deputy Chief Donald M. Scott to succeed Nelder.

The 56-year-old Nelder is credited with improving morale among the city's 1,800-man force after taking over from Chief Thomas Cahill, who held it for many years and was asked to quit by Alioto.

Asked whether differences with the mayor or the Police Commission caused his resignation, Nelder said "No."

He said a recent report on the police department by the San Francisco Crime Commission "may have had" a bearing on his decision but there were also other factors.

The commission report was sharply critical of the police department and law enforcement in the city, but was based largely on a study made before Nelder took office.

"I have assessed my position in life and have decided now is the time for me to have another future," Nelder said in a surprise announcement at a news conference.

His resignation is effective as of today. Deputy Chief Dan Scott will assume his duties as acting chief until the position is filled.

Nelder, a native San Franciscan, joined the police force 28 years ago after a period as a Municipal Railway inspector.

He became a sergeant in 1950 and two years later became deputy chief.

"I will wait out the day," he said. "Then the deputy chief will take over. I have been considering for some time this move and made my decision last night."

Appearing in full-dress uniform at the news conference, he told reporters:

"I don't know what my future will be—whether in law enforcement, whether with the state or federal government. I just have to wait."

Nelder said he had turned in his written resignation both to Alioto and to the Police Commission.

"The Police Commission tried to talk me into staying last night, but I have refused," he said.

Nelder was named chief Feb. 6, 1970.

President Approved Viet Raids

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon personally approved the bombing strikes against North Vietnam the White House said today, but insisted it represented no change in policy. (See War story, page 2).

White House Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the Chief Executive was involved in military planning leading up to the nearly 200 bombing sorties against antiaircraft guns and gas and oil depots in North Vietnam.

Ziegler said the heavy raids were consistent with Nixon's past statements that he would take action "to protect American troops as they withdraw from Vietnam." Ziegler insisted the raids did not represent a repudiation of the U.S. pledge to halt the bombing of North Vietnam on Nov. 1, 1968.

"Isn't this a resumption of bombing?" a reporter asked.

"No," said Ziegler, "I wouldn't characterize it as that."

He said the air action was "consistent with the President's statements in press conferences speeches."

American fighters on Tuesday flew nearly 200 combat strikes into the North.

Military spokesmen in Saigon said today American F4 Phantom jets crossed the border into North Vietnam again on Wednesday to attack an antiaircraft gun that fired on fighter-bombers carrying out strikes against communist supply convoys in nearby Laos.

It was the 61st of what the U.S. command called "protective reaction" strikes into North Vietnam. It came more than 24 hours after U.S. fighter-bombers flew the strikes into the north on Tuesday.

PEKING SHAKEUP RUMORS SPREAD

Polish Newspaper Quotes Sources Saying Chou Will Be Given An Increase In Power

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Polish newspaper Zycie Warszawy, quoting "information from Peking," said today important political changes are expected in Communist China including an increase in power for Premier Chou En-lai. Hungarian reports also hinted at political changes.

The Polish newspaper Zycie Warszawy, quoting "information from Peking," said today important political changes are expected in Communist China including an increase in power for Premier Chou En-lai. Hungarian reports also hinted at political changes.

The China mystery deepened hourly and although western diplomats said they did not know what was going on in Peking they said something important obviously was happening. The Chinese were saying nothing except that Chairman Mao Tse-tung is in "good health."

In Tokyo, the mass circulation Asahi Shimbun reported the Japanese government has monitored a message indicating all soldiers on leave in mainland China have been ordered to return immediately to their units. Earlier reports said air service had been disrupted for days.

About all that was known was that the big outdoor celebrations at Peking's Gate of Heavenly Peace, scheduled for Oct. 1, have been canceled. Explanations ran from Peking statements the celebrations would be "reformed" to reports they were curtailed for economy reasons.

In Budapest, the Hungarian news agency MTI published a report from its Peking correspondent, Denes Barcs, which said cancellation of the national holiday celebrations caused a "great sensation" among diplomatic circles in Peking, who apparently were as puzzled as anyone.

Barcs said the cancellation probably will mean that the Chinese leading officials will not appear in public on the

National Park Official Disclaims Rigidity On Seashore Expansion

By WAT TAKESHITA

The National Park Service is not inflexible and will consider expanding the proposed 5,150-acre wilderness area, in Point Reyes National Seashore, a park official disclosed today during a hearing at Marin Civic Center. (Another seashore hearing story, page 19.)

The inflexibility charge came from Jerry Friedman, chairman of the Environmental Action Committee of West Marin. Friedman said he was disturbed by statements made on television last night by a park official, indicating that 5,150-acres was all that qualified for wilderness status. He charged "rigidity and lack of vision" on the part of the park service.

During the morning recess, John W. Henneberger, wilderness coordinator for the park service, told the Independent-Journal he is not "wedded" to the 5,150 acres.

"We will consider and reexamine the wilderness area in the light of the testimony. There is a possibility of expanding the wilderness area."

He said the most logical area for expansion would be into Lake Ranch, which comprises the southern area of the seashore, including a series of lakes and Double Point, the gathering place for seals.

One problem would be to see what access roads can be closed because a wilderness designation means no buildings and no roads, not even for maintenance, said Henneberger.

Pierre W. Joske, director of parks and recreation for Marin reiterated the county's position, asking for expansion of the wilderness area, which is now confined to a portion of Inverness Ridge, from Mount Wittenberg to the Bear Valley Gap.

The county wants other "fragile areas" like Double Point, Tomales Point, most of the esteros, the Lake Ranch and inter-tidal zones added to the wilderness. Until the wilderness area is determined, the county wants the collection of all specimens banned from those fragile areas.

The Sierra Club and other conservation groups lined up solidly today in favor of expanding the wilderness area from 5,150 acres to almost 33,-

Supreme Court Justice John Harlan Resigning

WASHINGTON (UPI) —John M. Harlan, 72, is retiring as a Supreme Court associate justice, the White House announced today. His resignation followed by only six days that of the Court's senior member, Hugo L. Black.

Harlan's retirement means President Nixon will have an opportunity to appoint a third and fourth justice to the Court. The Court's new term opens one week from next Monday.

Like Black, Harlan has been ill recently. He has been hospitalized more than a month with an apparent back ailment. Black, 85, submitted his resignation last Friday and has since suffered a stroke that left him in critical condition.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, who announced the retirement, quoted Nixon as saying, "Mister Justice John Harlan is one of the great legal scholars in the history of the court and will be regarded by history as one of the towering figures of the court."

Harlan retired "for reasons of health" in a letter delivered by special messenger to the White House. This was the

U.S. Battle Deaths Show Slight Drop

SAIGON (UPI)—The number of American battle deaths dropped slightly to a total of 13 last week but the total number of wounded more than doubled to 111 despite sparse reports of ground combat involving U.S. troops, allied spokesmen said Thursday.

For the South Vietnamese, who have been engaged in heavy fighting in the U Minh Forest at the southern tip of South Vietnam, the killed-inaction list soared more than 50 per cent to a total of 397 deaths last week.

Magee Wins Battle For Another Haley Autopsy

By MARY LEYDECKER

After a closed hearing described as "intense," Judge Richard E. Arnason yesterday granted a request by Ruchell Magee's attorney that the late Judge Harold J. Haley's body be exhumed and a new autopsy be performed.

The request was opposed during arguments in visiting Judge Arnason's chambers in the Marin Hall of Justice by both an attorney for Judge Haley's widow and the prosecutor, Asst. Atty. Gen. Albert W. Harris Jr.

The judge, who declared that he had a headache after the two hours of argument, acceded to the request by Magee's court-appointed attorney, Ernest L. Graves of Los Angeles.

A major contributor to the decision was a complete about-face made by the pathologist, Dr. John Manwaring, in connection with his opinion on the direction of bullets which caused deaths of two other persons in the Aug. 1970 shoot-out.

(Magee is charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy along with Angela Davis in connection with the shoot-out. She is accused of providing the guns and he with actually firing the shot which killed the judge.)

It was learned that Graves yesterday also told the judge there had been another switch in an autopsy report in connection with the death of George Jackson at San Quentin on Aug. 21, but the judge said he would not consider that in his decision.

Through the new autopsy Graves seeks to show that the judge was dead before the firing of the shotgun Magee is accused of shooting. Earlier Dr.

CAPT. ERNEST L. MEDINA
Found innocent of all charges

Capt. Medina Says He Will Leave Army

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (UPI) —Although his acquittal on charges of being responsible for the My Lai massacre leaves him free to continue his 16-year military career, Capt. Ernest L. Medina says he wants out of the Army.

"I don't know exactly when I'll be able to leave, but that is my intention," Medina said Wednesday while surrounded by wellwishers.

Medina, 35, a Mexican-American described by fellow officers during his courtmartial as "one of our finest company commanders in Vietnam" said he was convinced his military career was ruined by the trial.

"I woundn't want to waste another year or two for nothing" by staying in the Army, he said.

Medina was the last officer charged in the slaughter at My Lai. The jury deliberated only 57 minutes and the verdict came at 4:19 p.m. EDT Wednesday. That was in sharp contrast to the verdict in the conviction of Lt. William L. Calley Jr., which took 13 days.

One other officer, Col. Oran K. Henderson, is on trial at Ft. Meade, Md., but he is accused of covering up the massacre, not with the actual killings.

Although Medina is leaving the Army, he said he was not sure what he would do. He was offered a job immediately after the verdict from Glenn W. Turner of Orlando, Fla.

Turner said Medina "has a job with me if he wants it — and I'll pay a lot more than the Army does."

Medina's attorney, F. Lee Bailey said Turner had paid many of the expenses for the Medina defense — probably in excess of $20,000 or $25,000.

When the decision came, Col. Kenneth A. Howard, the military judge, called Medina before the bench and then the president of the court, Col. William Proctor, rose and addressed Medina:

"Capt. Ernest L. Medina, it is my duty as president of this court to advise you that the court in closed session, and upon secret written ballot, has found you not guilty of all specifications and charges."

Bailey gave a party Wednesday night to celebrate Medina's acquittal. About 100 persons, including Howard, attended. Medina wore a pink shirt and black bell-bottom trousers with red stripes. His wife was clad in a blue pants suit and was barefooted.

Curran Beaten In San Diego

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)— Mayor Frank Curran, who ran on the platform "If you like San Diego, why make a change?" has finished a badly beaten fourth in his bid for a third term.

Curran 58, president of the National League of Cities last year, was indicted on bribery and conspiracy charges last October in connection with taxicab rate hearings. He later was acquitted by a superior court jury.

He received only 10.4 per cent of the vote Tuesday while top vote-getter assemblyman Pete Wilson obtained 37.1 per cent. Wilson will meet runnerup Ed Butler in the Nov. 2 general election.

Children Killed; Afraid To Jump

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Keith Dabney, 9, jumped from a second floor window of his home Wednesday night to escape flames and choking smoke that took the lives of his five brothers and sisters.

The other children ages 2 to 10 were afraid to jump.

Keith and his mother, Grace Dabney, 26, were the only survivors of the fire that gutted their two-story row house in what fire Lt. Roman F. Granados described as the worst he has seen in 13 years.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Malta Agreement

LONDON (UPI)—Britain and Malta have reached a six-month interim agreement on British and North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) use of the Mediterranean island's naval facilities.

Simultaneous announcement of the settlement was made in London and Valetta last night. It was reached after weekend conferences between Premier Edward Heath of Britain and Premier Dom Mintoff of Malta.

A Foreign Office spokesman said final agreement will depend on a "series of bilateral arrangements" yet to be negotiated between Malta and individual NATO countries.

Money Solution?

TOKYO (UPI)—Prime Minister Eisaku Sato said today Japan will table a "drastic measure" at the forthcoming meeting of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) in order to stabilize the world monetary crisis.

The leader of Japan's Conservative government told the opening session of the Japan Chamber of Commerce and Industry that he has directed Finance Minister Mikio Mizuta to present the Japanese program to the IMF conference, scheduled to open in Washington Sept. 27.

Disarm Pact Near

GENEVA (UPI) — The 25-nation disarmament conference will complete work next week on a new international treaty banning biological weapons and send it to the U.S. General Assembly for world approval, western officials said today.

U.S. and Soviet negotiators expect their respective governments to approve a final draft of the treaty so that it can be presented at next Tuesday's session, the officials said.

Then, barring last-minute hitches, the conference will end its 1971 session at the end of the next week and submit the treaty to the General Assembly.

The United States and Russia presented the first treaty draft to the conference Aug. 5.

Wants A Southerner

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, today urged President Nixon to appoint a southerner to the Supreme Court.

In a statement, Eastland said that "the truth is the South has no real representation on the court.

"All we have is a presidential promise that this region of the country will be represented," he added.

Pay Hike Delay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A record $2.4 billion in military pay raises, tacked on to a draft extension law and scheduled to go into effect Oct. 1, will be delayed until after President Nixon's wage-price freeze ends Nov. 13.

The White House announced the plan to delay the raises yesterday.

"It is our intention that the increase not be applicable during the period of the freeze," said Gerald Warren, deputy White House press secretary.

The draft bill, which extends military conscription until June 30, 1973, won final approval in the Senate Tuesday. It awaits Nixon's signature.

Hits Two Chinas

TAIPEI (UPI)—Nationalist China charged today that Washington's "dual representation" formula to keep both Chinas in the United Nations was a "flagrant violation of the charter."

Dr. Wei Yu-sun, spokesman for the Foreign Ministry, said in a statement that Washington's move "to sacrifice a founding and faithful member (of the United Nations) is in flagrant violation of the charter of the United Nations."

"This move," he added, "is not only against the wishes of the Chinese people but also undermines the dignity of the United Nations, destroying its moral strength as well as the basic principles of the charter."

Pounds Bermuda

MIAMI (UPI)—Hurricane Ginger slapped the Bermuda area with 72 mile an hour winds and heavy seas today on its westward trek through the Central Atlantic.

Forecasters said, however, that Ginger was a "minimal" storm and was not expected to cause any serious damage to the island that is the frequent target of winter storms.

To be safe, two cruise ships and a British navy ship left the island ahead of schedule Wednesday to get out of the path of Ginger.

SALT Rounds Over

HELSINKI (UPI)—American and Soviet negotiators today wound up the fifth round of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) on a "positive note" and agreed to meet again in mid-November in Vienna, conference sources said.

Today's meeting at the American Embassy — the 92nd overall since SALT began in Helsinki 22 months ago — lasted 60 minutes in a formal plenary session, followed by 40 minutes of informal discussion.

More Shots Fired

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Gunmen fired a number of shots at British soldiers and a crowd hurled nail bombs, bottles and stones at troops conducting search operations in Belfast today, an army spokesman said.

No casualties were reported in the clash in the Tullymore Gardens area of the Northern Ireland capital, the spokesman said, and soldiers were able to take control.

A bomb thrown from a passing car exploded near the long Nesh Internment Camp near Lisburn outside Belfast and blasted a hole three feet deep in the bank of a main highway near the outer perimeter of the camp where security suspects allegedly have been confined without trial, an army spokesman said.

Harris To Run?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., will hold a news conference Friday in the Senate caucus room that was selected by Eugene McCarthy and John F. and Robert F. Kennedy, to announce their candidacies for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Harris, who declared July 16 his intention not to seek reelection to the Senate, was expected to declare formally that he was in the presidential race. Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., is the only other declared candidate.

With five months to go before New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary, other potential Democratic candidates have still not announced their decisions.

Dump Agnew Report Denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A chief political aide to President Nixon knows of no plan to drop Vice President Spiro T. Agnew from the Republican ticket next year.

"There never has been such a plan here (in the White House)," Harry Dent said Wednesday. "I'm not saying what will happen down the road, because I don't know."

Dent confirmed he had written a letter to Wilfred Dalton, head of the Queens County Conservative Republican Association in New York, denying that the dropping of Agnew was under consideration.

Brezhnev Plays Up To Tito

BELGRADE (UPI)—Leonid I. Brezhnev dismissed as a fairy tale the fears that the Soviet Union would invade the Balkans. Yugoslav officials were jubilant today, but some wondered if there was a price to pay for the Soviet Communist Party leader's apparent concessions.

Brezhnev arrived yesterday for a three-day "unofficial and friendly" visit that had Yugoslav officials visibly nervous about the possibility of tough new Soviet demands. Instead, in a toast at a formal banquet last night, Brezhnev reeled off a string of pronouncements that, if taken at face value, could have a major effect on world communism.

He said the "so-called new doctrine of limited sovereignty" —the "Brezhnev Doctrine" which Russia used to justify its invasion of Czechoslovakia — was a "fable ... a slanderous invention."

He also dismissed "rumors of Soviet armies which are allegedly getting ready to start marching on the Balkans."

Brezhnev, who continues private talks today with his host, Yugoslav's President Tito, also reaffirmed the 1955 Soviet-Yugoslav agreement. This gave Yugoslavia "equality" with Russia and the right to build its "own road to socialism."

However, the Soviet party leader said this agreement must be "realized under contemporary conditions," the phrase that some officials here found ominous and had them wondering if it meant there would be a price to pay. The two leaders were greeted by applause when they arrived at a government reception Wednesday night after the banquet. Most Yugoslav officials at the banquet appeared delighted with Brezhnev's speech — particularly his affirmation of the 1955 agreement, which is the basis of Yugoslavia's independent status within the Communist world.

Brezhnev blamed both the "doctrine of limited sovereignty" and "rumors" of Soviet invasions on unnamed "various forces."

German auto manufacturers say blue is the most popular color.

U.S. Setback In First U.N. Test

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)— The United States suffered a preliminary defeat Wednesday night in its struggle to keep Generalissimo Chiang Kai shek's Nationalist Chinese regime from being expelled from the United Nations if mainland China is admitted.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush predicted a "very, very close" vote when the issue comes up for General Assembly debate Oct. 18.

The assembly's 25-nation steering committee defeated 12-9 with three abstensions a U.S.proposal asking that opposing American and Albanian resolutions be debated at the same time.

The Albanian proposal asks that mainland China be admitted to the United Nations and the Nationalist regime be expelled. The two American resolutions seek to keep the Nationalist regime in the world body.

Among the nations voting against the United States on combining of the opposing resolutions were the Soviet Union, Britain and France.

The China representation issue was to come up for assembly debate Oct. 18. A decisive vote on whether to seat Communist China and oust Nationalist China was expected by the end of the month.

American Air Raids Hit Red Fuel Dumps

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. command said today the massive American air raids into North Vietnam Tuesday set off sustained fires in fuel storage dumps and destroyed at least three Communist air defense radar stations.

The military command also reported that U.S. F4 Phantom jets crossed the border into North Vietnam Wednesday to attack an antiaircraft gun that fired on fighter-bombers hitting Communist supply convoys in nearby Laos.

It was the first report on the results of the nearly 200 bombing strikes into North Vietnam Tuesday, the heaviest raids north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) in six months.

The command said the raids produced "large fires" of gas and oil depots.

"Strike aircraft reported numerous large sustained fires and heavy, black smoke indicating that strikes on oil storage areas had been successful," the communique said. "In addition, three air defense radars were put out of commission. An accurate (previous) assessment was hampered by the smoke and weather, which was cloudy and overcast."

The command did not mention any bombing runs against antiaircraft sites and missile emplacements.

Under U.S. policy, so-called "protective reaction" strikes into North Vietnam can be carried out if Communist gunners fire on unarmed U.S. photo reconnaissance jets or their armed escorts or at American planes on missions over the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

New Drug Abuse Boss To Proceed Slowly

By MARY LEYDECKER

Marin County's new drug abuse and alcoholism coordinator, who left his native New York City because of the "hopelessness" of conditions there, said he "really turns on to Marin County."

Lloyd Churgin, who at 34 has had many years of experience working with addiction programs in New York, recently took over the newly created Marin post.

In an interview, he compared New York to India, which he recently visited, where "the problems are even more drastic but even fewer people are responding."

Marin is different, Churgin believes. Speaking of the programs already underway in connection with drug abuse and alcoholism, Churgin, said, "I'm impressed with the scope of the programs in Marin — with the community support, both from professionals and lay people."

Talking rapidly, with an accent that immediately marks him as a New Yorker, Churgin said, with a smile that he likes "the diversity in life styles" he finds in Marin, where he is also "amazed at the richness of skilled and concerned people."

His first job will be to try to get "an accurate picture of what's happening — the scope of the problem — where it is and how much," he said.

Studies not only to find out what kind of drugund alcohol problems Marin has will be made but also to determine what services are being offered and to whom and how much they cost.

"No one really knows the number of alcoholics in Marin County," for example, Churgin said.

He termed alcoholism a much more serious problem in Marin than drug abuse — "but that's not to demean drug abuse, which is also a serious problem," he said.

"The costs to the community of alcoholism are staggering," he continued. For example, he said that during the month of March this year, 45 per cent of the persons in the county jail were in for alcohol-related offenses.

Going on to discuss heroin, Churgin drew on his long experience in New York.

As for the various approaches to curbing addiction, he believes that "anything that works for some people" is fine.

Methadone definitely has a role — certain addicts who will not respond to traditional psychotherapy will respond to methadone," he said.

"Methadone is not a panacea," however, according to Chrugin. It is more addicting than heroin and the withdrawals are worse, but he believes that it gives many addicts a chance to "stay out of jail and stop robbing . . . so that causal problems can be dealt with."

Synanon-type methods also work for many addicts, Churgin said, although "the therapeutic communities," as he termed such places as Synanon and Mendocino State Hospital, "have reentry problems" persons returning to society.

People start to use drugs for several reasons, including curiosity, peer pressure and excitement but not for psychological reasons.

"Why they continue is another things," Churgin said.

"Heroin fills a function . . . (for addicts) . . . they feel good; it gives identity and a life style," he explained. He emphasized that something else has to be available to fill the need of the heroin.

Finally, he said, "Every addict thinks 'I'm different — I'm not going to get addicted,'" when he starts using heroin.

Along with programs for curing addiction, Churgin hopes to improve drug education efforts so that people will learn "you can't solve complex human problems with chemicals."

"Education is not for someone already into a heavy drug scene," however, in Churgin's words.

He believes that efforts to reach young persons should be ongoing — "not just one shot," such as having a former addict talk to a classroom once. "Young people have a role too," he said. "They care about what's happening to their friends.

To his new job, Churgin brings experience which began in 1964, when he started working with a street gang of Puerto Rican youths in New York.

The youths, who were heavily involved with drugs and alcohol, ranged in age from 14 to 18, according to Churgin. Although he got along well with the gang members "I con9 affect their behavior. I way only one person in their lives," he said.

Several years later he revisited the neighborhood of the gang and found that several members were dead, some were in jail and some were addicts. "I felt a lot of pain," Churgin said about the fate of his young friends.

Churgin went on to work for the Addiction Services Agency, run by New York City, where he said, "We touched so few people."

He said that only about 1,000 of New York's estimated 50,000 to 100,000 drug addicts were being treated under the program.

"I was burned out," he said after working with addicts and last year took a long trip, which included a visit to India, which he found a more discouraging place than New York City.

"I came back with a very good feeling about America," where so many people are concerned about problems and trying to do something about them," Churgin said.

He even views New York as a "'fantastic place in many ways — in spite of the brutality and violence."

As for life in general, the mustached New Yorker who smiles a lot said, "I think the world is a pretty good place."

Innocent Plea To Heroin Sale

Otis Dell Robinson, 38, of no known address, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of selling heroin.

Preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Changing Your Point of View

One thing that separates the striking and original photograph from "just another snapshot" is a fresh way of looking at the subject. Often that comes from looking at it from a different angle, height or location . . . in other words, a new point of view.

The first approach to your subject for you has one built-in hazard: it will probably be the first approach for everyone else. So the easy way is suspect. Try for something different.

Remember that things look different coming and going, from a high angle looking down, or sharply upward perspective. Shadows change from the right or left side, the front or rear. The relation to the background also changes.

Even if your photographic subject can't move around, you can. So don't take the first picture you think of. Instead, take a walk . . . around your subject, looking for a new point of view!

Election Stand By Senate Ires Thieu

SAIGON (UPI)—Saigon newspapers said today President Nguyen Van Thieu was so angry and surprised at a senate resolution calling his one-man presidential race illegal that he invited the National Assembly itself to reorganize the election.

Political observers said the strong tone of his reaction as reported in several reliable newspapers seemed to indicate that Thieu not only was angry but worried. They said his invitation to the assembly to "carry out its responsibilities" and do something to stop the Oct. 3 election could be a sign he was preparing to surrender on the issue.

Although the National Assembly is considered to be staunchly pro-Thieu, the Senate backed Thieu even more strongly until yesterday when it passed a resolution by a vote of 28 to 3 calling the election illegal.

Thieu's reaction was reported by the newspaper Tin Song, which is directly backed by Thieu's private secretary and principal spokesman, Hoang Duc Nha. Almost identical reports were carried by the moderate opposition newspaper Chinh Luan and the Hoa Binh, run by a conservative Roman Catholic priest who strongly opposes Thieu.

Tin Song said Thieu was told of the Senate action while flying back from a campaign visit to Pleku and that he immediately responded with: "Why didn't the National Assembly dare to correctly carry out its own responsibility, instead of appealing to others to be aware of their responsibility?"

It said Thieu's viewpoint was that the Assembly writes the constitution and he only follows it. But the main implication was that Thieu is aware that even his strongest political supporters are splitting away from him because of his power-grabbing tactics.

Thieu met earlier in the day with one of President Nixon's top security advisers, the U.S. Embassy announced.

Brig. Gen. Alexander M. Haig, deputy assistant for national security affairs under Henry Kissinger, met the South Vietnamese president for one hour and 45 minutes in late afternoon. He was accompanied by U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth C. Bunker.

The meeting coincided with an announcement that all 215,000 U.S. troops in Vietnam would be placed on Grey Alert Friday "in anticipation of possible enemy acitivity" during the final 10 ays of the South Vietnamese election campaign.

U.S. Embassy policy is that the subject of meetings between American officials and President Thieu is not discussed.

holiday and that no protocol list will be published. The lists generally list the Chinese leaders in order of importance.

In Taipei, Nationalist intelligence sources speculated that developments on the mainland indicate Peking's power structure has undergone a drastic change. They said any such drastic change also will touch off a new purge.

Taipei also seethed with rumors as did many world capitals. One was that President Nixon already was in Peking. But Washington reports said he was in Washington, would fly to Detroit for a public appearance tonight, and then would fly to Alaska Saturday to meet Japanese Emperor Hirohito. The Japanese speculated earlier Nixon might fly direct to Peking from the Alaska meeting.

Other Japanese reports hinted that military moves in Red China might have something to do with a new confrontation with the Soviet Union in their long festering border dispute.

While Zycle Warszawy was reporting possible political upheavals in Peking, the Chinese Embassy in Warsaw began decorating for its National Day observance. There were four pictures of Mao Tse-tung on a bulletin board outside the embassy, one of his presumptive heir, Lin Piao, several pictures of Chou En-lai, but none of Mme. Chang Ching, Mao's wife.

Youth Denies Burglary Count

Anthony Paul Bell, 18, of San Francisco has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of burglary.

Preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Bell and Roy Chester Johnson, 27, of San Francisco, were arrested last Thursday when they were reportedly seen leaving the residence of Herman A. Vanderkamp of 72 Ridgecrest Road, Kentfield, with a television.

Johnson pleaded innocent to the charge on Monday and also has a preliminary hearing set for Tuesday.

Trial Ordered For Ex-Convict

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Ex-convict Harry B. Conwell, 43, yesterday was ordered to stand trial Oct. 18 in the knife murder of the 89-year-old father of a Marin woman.

The victim, George Cushman, was fatally stabbed and his wife Elinor, 75, seriously injured during a robbery of their Marina district apartment Aug. 13.

Conwell was captured after a chase. He gave his address as a San Francisco hotel.

He pleaded innocent yesterday in San Francisco Superior Court, and the judge ruled on the basis of psychiatric examinations ordered earlier, that Conwell was sane and should stand trial.

The slain man was the father of Jean Wiedenmeyer of San Rafael.

Oktoberfest Set For Saturday

The Novato Lions Club will conduct an open air festival, its Oktoberfest with German foods and Bavarian band, starting at noon Saturday at Lions Park, west of Novato.

The Novato Boys Club Building Fund campaign for $100,000 has reached $26,500, bolstered by two donations of $1,000 each, according to Edward T. Ghirardo, bond chairman.

The Bank of Marin and builder Ronald F. Antonioli of San Rafael each have purchased a $1,000 boys club bond, he said.

The average contribution in the bond campaign is $227, Ghirardo reported.

Residents Lost In Redistricting

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors has approved redistricting of the five supervisorial districts that will reduce the second district by 513 residents.

The second district, encompassing Rohnert Park, Petaluma and Cotati, formerly totaled 42,451 residents. The new population for the district will be 41,938.

The Santa Rosa district was most heavily affected with an increase of 5,000 residents. The redistricting was required to comply with federal standards on the one man, one vote principle.

Another Oil Spill Fouls Bay Waters

MARTINEZ (UPI) —About 420 gallons of oil spilled into San Francisco Bay today while a tanker was loading at a refinery in the second such incident in the area in a week.

A spokesman for the Shell Oil Co. said the oil escaped when a coupling broke aboard the S.S. Catawba while bunker fuel was being pumped aboard.

BLACK

same procedure that was followed in Black's announcement.

Harlan has been on the Court 16 years—one of five appointees that President Dwight D. Eisenhower made to the high bench.

On only four previous occasions in the 20th Century have there been two vacancies simultaneously on the Supreme Court.

Harlan, the Court's second ranked justice after Black's retirement, entered Bethesda Naval Hospital Aug. 16 but his office did not disclose that fact until a month later.

He had suffered from a recurrent back ailment. He was transferred Sept. 16 to George Washington University Hospital and is still a patient there.

He was appointed to the Court by Eisenhower on Jan. 10, 1955, and has been considered one of its more conservative members.

"The President, of course, recognizes that there are now two vacancies on the Court," Ziegler said. "He will want to move as swiftly as possible in finding highly qualified persons for these positions."

But, Ziegler said the President will take as much time as he thinks he needs to settle on the right individual for the lifetime appointment.

Ziegler noted that Nixon had discussed with Attorney General John N. Mitchell last Saturday seven possible nominees to the court. Ziegler said the list of possibilities would probably be expanded beyond seven because there now are two vacancies.

Nixon has been considering a possible nominee to succeed Black since a few hours after getting the Alabaman's letter last week.

With Harlan's retirement, there was growing speculation one of his two new selections would be a woman. Mrs. Nixon herself confided that she has urged her husband to select the first woman associate justice.

Unlike his announcement when Black retired, Ziegler carefully avoided saying Nixon was looking for the right "man." He used the term "person."

Nixon also was known to be reviewing a number of possible candidates from the South in line with his notice, after failing to get two previous southern choices approved by the Senate, that he still intended to try to get a southerner on the Court if he had the opportunity.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D Miss., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, urged Nixon today to pick a southerner.

Man Arraigned, Pleads Tuesday

Francis James McManus, 43, of San Pablo, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on misdemeanor charges of reckless driving and failing to pay toll on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge.

He is to plead to the charges Tuesday.

McManus was arrested last Friday after California Highway Patrol officers said he drove at speeds of up to 115 miles an hour across the bridge before colliding with two other cars at the Highway 101 overpass of Highway 17.

Rumburg promised that the park service would be responsive to the public testimony and added that his responsibility is to the entire national public as well as to local requests.

Written statements may be mailed until Oct. 23 to Sansing at Point Reyes National Seashore, Point Reyes, Calif.

ORDER

Manwaring had said he was not sure whether the shotgun blast or a wound in the chest which was caused by another San Quentin inmate killed the judge.

If Magee were not guilty of firing the fatal shot, he might be saved from an automatic death penalty he faces if convicted of murder as a convict serving a life sentence.

Attorney John G. Buresh, who represented the judge's widow, Gertrude, in yesterday's hearings said that he did not bring sentiment into his arguments.

Rather, he said, both he and Harris argued that Graves had not yet exhausted other means to determine which shot killed the judge.

He said later, however, that the decision was up to the judge and that "if Harold (Judge Haley) had been sitting on the same case, he might have made the same decision."

Judge Arnason yesterday told Graves to prepare an estimate of the cost of the new autopsy, which Buresh said he thought would be "staggering."

Graves said that he plans to bring a Viennese pathologist, a Prof. L. Breitenecker, and his son, who lives in Baltimore, to perform the autopsy in San Francisco. He is also seeking to have medical photographers from Los Angeles involved in the proceedings.

The date of the autopsy is to be kept secret, the judge said.

Judge Haley is entombed in a crypt at Mount Olivet Cemetery in San Rafael.

In other action yesterday, Graves filed a request that Magee be transferred to either the Marin or San Francisco County Jail from San Quentin. He said that his case is being adversely affected by his being housed in the same building as the two surviving Soledad Brothers as well as others who might have been involved in the Aug. 21 violence at San Quentin.

There is no date set for Magee's next court appearance but Miss Davis is due in court Monday (which was to have been her trial date) for setting times on hearing two final pretrial motiof.

One asks her case be transferred to San Francisco and the other that certain evidence be suppressed.

Youth Denies House Burglary

James Demello, of no known address, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of burglary.

Preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 5.

Demello and Robert Elton Yates, 18, of San Rafael were arrested Monday after witnesses told police they saw the youths leaving a residence at 108 Coleman Drive, San Rafael. Police said they found property from the residence in Yates's car when it was stopped a short distance from the house.

Yates's case has been transferred to Marin Juvenile Court.

MONKEY ON HER BACK

Jeffrey, a worried-looking monkey, appears content to remain on his master's shoulder as the clear waters of Corte Madera Creek in San Anselmo flow below. Jeffrey and his owner, Jo Feldman, took part in yesterday's "creek walk" by the city's public works department to inspect the creek for obstructions. In the background, Public Works Director Charles R. Leitzell (center) discusses one such obstruction with a member of his staff, Arthur Lewis, as Earl C. Cordy, a citizen, looks on.

Last Coast Preservation Bill Squeaks By Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly yesterday barely passed ed the last surviving major legislation to protect the California coastline from land developers and sent it to an uncertain fate in the Senate.

The bitterly contested legislation would create a powerful statewide commission and six satellite regional commissions which would enforce a moratorium on development while a masterplan was drafted for submission to the legislature later.

The commissions could, however, allow development along the coast by granting permits. The permit area would extend 1,000 yards inland from the high tide land.

The chief bill in the coastline protection package by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Beverly Hills, cleared the Assembly on a 54 to 16 vote. It needed two-thirds or 54 votes. Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, voted for the bill.

Sieroty's proposal represented the last major coastline protection program this year. Three rival proposals were killed Monday in the Senate ate Natural Resources and Wildlife Committee.

Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti of Van Nuys called for a favorable vote, asserting that "it is not going to happen that we rescue this state and its natural resources accidentally."

"Our choice is to do something or nothing," Moretti said. "I realize we are stepping on a lot of very important and powerful toes with this legislation but it isn't as strong as some would like it to be."

Sieroty implored the Assembly to respond to the appeals of conservationists and citizens who "are attempting to work within the system to try to develop effective legislation to protect one of our great natural resources."

The measure was bitterly opposed by local governments and private landowners, who felt they would be "subjugated to the whim of a commission."

One opponent, Assemblyman Robert Badham, R-Newport Beach, argued the measure was sought by "the landlocked who want to control the be-jeepers out of our coastline."

But Assemblyman John Dunlap, D-Napa, an advocate of strong controls, asserted that the coast of California "does not belong to the few people fortunate enough to have property there or to communities that happen to be located there. The coast of California belongs to everyone."

Badham replied that the California coastline "from the wet sand seaward belongs to everyone in the world, I suppose, but we do have property owners in the State of California ... We do have property owners along the coast and those people have rights."

While the masterplan for protection of the coast was being drawn, the moratorium on new development would be in effect. The plan would be submitted to the 1975 legislature for approval.

The commissions could, however, issue waivers for certain developments by special permit such as for dredging, constructing high-rise buildings, and reducing the size of public beaches.

Assemblyman Paul Priolo, R-Pacific Palisades, whose dis Palisades, whose district includes scenic Malibu, noted that regardless of how they voted legislators would "take heat" from constituents but urged passage, calling the bill the "only game in town."

Postal System Will Be Tested

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Starting Oct. 1, the U.S. Postal Service will test the electronic transmission of mail.

The facsimile mail system will be tried out between New York City and Washington.

Post master General Winton M. Blount told the national postal forum Wednesday message will be transmitted electronically by facsimile equipment. They will be placed in envelopes for delivery by letter carriers.

Largely business mail will be used in the test. If it proves successful, Blount said, the system probably "would be continued on a permanent basis."

'I Can' Talk

Senate Panel Backs New Regional Agency

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation creating a development and conservation agency for nine San Francisco Bay Area counties has been approved by the Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee.

The measure, which was opposed by San Francisco and Napa counties, would establish an 83-member board of trustees to create a development plan for the area.

Opponents labeled the board a "super-government," and called for the bill to be ratified by voters in the affected counties.

The measure, by Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, was sent to the Senate floor on a split voice vote.

It would require the board of trustees to study transportation needs, open space, park provisions and environmental quality control. The board would develop its plan during a three-year period.

Counties involved are San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Alameda, Contra Costa, Solano, Napa, Sonoma and Marin.

An amendment allowing counties to ask the Council on Intergovernmental Relations to exclude them from the proposed agency was added to the bill by Knox after protests by the Sonoma County Board of Supervisor .

The Sonoma supervisors asked that their county be taken out of the measure.

The agency would have the power to see that local governments abide by its development plan. The agency would be supported by a tax of four cents per $100 of assessed valuation on all property transactions.

Local governments and regional agencies would supply 43 of the members and the other 40 would be elected to four-year terms.

Scientists Alarmed By Energy Demands

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—An international panel of scientists warns that man's growing demand for energy could cause the Arctic Sea ice to melt within a century — possibly unleashing drastic changes in the world's climate.

The 30 atmospheric scientists from 14 countries said in a report released yesterday that too little is known about the "complex systems that determine climate" and urged an international program of research and measurement.

Until these systems are understood, they recommended that an international agreement be made, preventing any largescale experiment in climate modification, such as a Soviet proposal to reverse the course of four rivers flowing through Central Asia.

The scientists issued the warning in their "report of the Study of Man's Impact on Climate (SMIC)" presented Wednesday to a U.N. committee preparing for a conference on the human environment in Stockholm this June.

"We recognize a real possibility that a global temperature increase produced by man's injection of heat and CO2 (carbon dioxide) into his environment may lead to a dramatic reduction, or even elimination, of Arctic Sea ice" over the next century, they said.

The effects on climate, especially in the Northern Hemisphere, "might be large and include changes in precipitation, season temperatures, wind systems and ocean currents," the report said.

Unlike the glacial ice at the poles, the skin of ice on the Arctic Sea is no more than 10 feet thick. The scientists said there were indications that it would take only a rise of a few degrees centrigrade in the average temperature of the Northern Hemisphere to begin the melting process.

The production of energy, now rising at a rate of from 5 to 6 per cent a year worldwide, releases heat into the atmosphere. The carbon dioxide diffused in the burning of coal, oil and natural gas retains heat by absorbing solar and infrared radiation, they said.

Other factors influencing the climate, the report said, include the clearing of forests and jungles, the drawing of groundwater and diversion of rivers for irrigation, seeding of clouds and the exhaust products deposited high in the troposphere or the lower stratosphere by jetliners.

Indicted On Avoiding Draft

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The 24-year-old son of San Mateo County District Attorney Keith Sorenson has been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges he refused induction.

The indictment against Thomas K. Sorenson, Redwood City, was signed by U.S. Attorney James Browning, a former San Mateo County deputy district attorney.

Sorenson was charged with failing to report to the Army's Oakland Induction Center on Nov. 12, 1970.

The former Brigham Young University psychology student said he told the Selective Service Board that he was a conscientious objector. However, the board turned down his request and the panel's decision was not appealed.

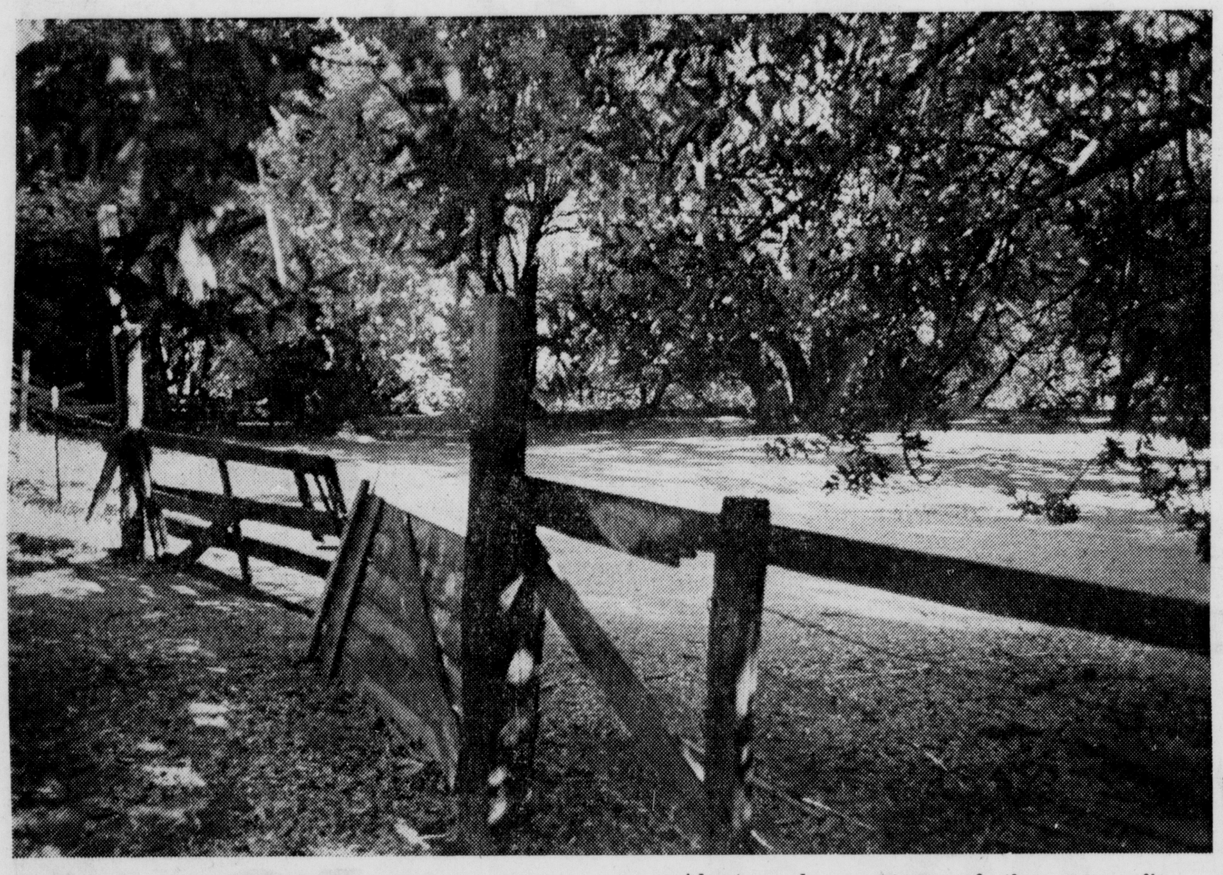
RENAISSANCE CENTER MODEL

A model of old English style houses represents a setting the Renaissance Center hopes to construct in Marin on the recently purchased Grady Ranch in the Upper Lucas Valley. The center is intended to be a recreation of an Elizabethan era English village as a cultural study center in Renaissance and Medieval arts, crafts, humanities and performing arts.



MARIN COUNTRYSIDE — This typical setting on the 1,000-acre Grady Ranch just purchased by the Renaissance Center resembles the terrain of an English countryside, according to Phyllis and Ronald Patterson, president and secretary of the nonprofit education foundation. The Pattersons said they hoped to transform the ranch into a Renaissance cultural center.

Jade Case Points Up Policy Lack

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — "We don't have a public policy — that's why we're picking on the jade case," said Assemblyman Kenneth Cory, D-Orange County, at a meeting this week of the Joint Committee on Public Domain.

The jade case — in which a five-ton boulder of the gem was taken from off the shores of Big Sur — started when it was learned that the finders had no permit and were operating on state lands. With a permit the state would be entitled to 20 per cent of the value.

"There is an understanding that the jade is the property of the state, and in indications are that there will be arrangements for the state to receive 20 per cent of the jade's worth," said F. J. Hortig, executive officer of the State Lands Commission.

"There is an agreement not to dispose of the stone until settlement is made with the state," Hortig added, explaining that in 1959 a fisherman found jade in the same area, but was unable to find a commercial market for the rock.

"There is no record of anyone having profited from such a find," he said.

Hortig told the committee the next step is to determine the real value of the jade, and whether there is a market. He said that administrative practice over the years has established the policy individuals have the right to collect small amounts of minerals on state lands, but there is no statute regulating such policy.

"So many people have picked up small pieces of jade there's not much left on the beach," Hortig said of the Big Sur area.

Though there is no state regulation, the U. S. Department of Interior has set a 100-pounds-per-person-per-year limit on rock collecting on public domain lands.

Donald Wobbler, who headed the group that found the jade in question, disagreed "with some of the things said of what happened in the case," but said he feels the place to deal with those details is directly with the State Lands Commission.

"It would be well, I think, to consult the confederation of Gem and Minerologists and to get some recommendations from the public," added Wobbler. He too supported the state need for a definite land use policy.

New Water Supplier For Olema Is Likely

The North Marin County Water District board has passed a resolution of intention to form an improvement district to provide water service to Olema.

Directors acted Tuesday night after receiving a petition from 37 property owners for formation of a district, according to Dist. Mgr. Eugene S. Churchill.

The petitioners, representing 95 per cent of the property owners in the area, currently are receiving water from the Olema Water Co., but there are problems of quality and quantity, Churchill said.

The proposed district would cover 605 acres and would serve the headquarters of the Point Reyes National Seashore and the Olema area, Churchill said.

A hearing on formation of a district will be held at 8 p.m. Oct. 19 in West Marin, location not yet set, he reported.

The Olema Water Co. obtains its supply from a spring on the Old Bear Valley Ranch and a well along Olema Creek, Churchill said. If a district is formed, water could be supplied by extending an existing district line down Bear Valley Road.

Earlier this year the district took over the Point Reyes and Inverness Park water companies in the West Marin area.

The North Marin County Water District board also:

WATER STORAGE — Received a report from Churchill that water storage levels have increased to normal after dropping below the halfway mark last Thursday, closing day of the hot spell.

JANITORIAL SERVICE — Awarded Dun-Rite Maintenance Service of Petaluma, lowest of five bidders, a contract to provide janitorial service at the administration building and corporation yard building at $347 a month.

BOND CONSULTANT — Hired Bank of America as bond consultant on its $1.6 million bond measure up for a vote Nov. 2., its unsold $1,290,000 in bonds from 1961, and $250,000 in bonds for the Point Reyes Improvement District, at a fee of $10,000.

Building Of Club Backed

The Novato Parks and Recreation Commission has endorsed plans for construction of a $100,000 Novato Boys Club.

Commissioners agreed Monday night to establish close coordination with the club, which is in the midst of a campaign to obtain building funds.

David E. Milano, president of the boys club board, sent commissioners a letter urging coordination. He foresaw no overlap of services and suggested there could be time when the city could use the proposed clubhouse and the boys club could use city facilities and programs.

Boyd Museum Announces Activities For Autumn

The Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science has announced its annual autumn activities — including field trips, handicraft lessons, hikes, nature studies, films and other family activities — will start Monday.

Enrollment information may be obtained at the museum, 76 Albert Park Lane, San Rafael.

Field trips will include morning nature walks for mothers and preschool children, a family Bear Valley hike, weekly family excursions in Marin, bird hunts, tidepooling and father and son fishing.

There will be films on animals and weekly nature films, as well as nature studies in bird skins, birds of prey, natural photography, snakes and reptiles.

The museum will offer classes in leather; childrens' crafts such as mobiles, chimes, beading tie-dying and collages; papier mache work, printing with linoleum blocks; macrame, weaving and natural dyes.

Arraignment In Marijuana Case

John Anthony Pancamo, 21, of Houston, Tex., has been arraigned in Marin Municipal Court on a misdemeanor charge of possessing marijuana.

He is to plead to the charge Monday.

He was arrested Friday, along with Joseph Francis Meyer, 25, of Tiburon, when a sheriff's deputy allegedly saw the men rolling marijuana cigarettes in the backyard of Meyer's residence.

Meyer is to be arraigned on a similar misdemeanor charge Monday.

Snarl Over Successor To Foreaker

The Marin Municipal Water District board, because of an unexpected legal entanglement, yesterday postponed a decision on whether to elect or appoint a successor to director Ray W. Foreaker Jr.

After hearing seven letters from organizations and residents who favored the election procedure, atty. Peter B. Brekhus, district counsel, said it would be illegal for the board to conduct an election to replace Foreaker who has resigned to become county public works director.

Brekhus, referring to the state water code which governs municipal water districts, said the language states directors "shall appoint" a replacement. The law provides for an election after 60 days if directors are deadlocked.

According to Brekhus, the phrase "shall" traditionally has been interpreted to mean a "mandatory duty."

Directors debated at length whether or not to break the law by calling for an election and ultimately decided to ask counsel to investigate previous use of the law and any penalties that might be incurred.

A suggestion that the board call an advisory election with the prior agreement that it would appoint whoever was elected also was referred to counsel. The proposal was made by atty. Thomas H. Thorner, chairman of Marin Alternative.

During the meeting, directors came close to asking the board of supervsiors to allow Foreaker to remain on the board until April when an election could be held.

That proposal, which was discussed in great detail, was killed when Foreaker said he would not withdraw his resignation unless the board would commit itself to an election. (Earlier in the session, Foreaker had said he would consider withdrawing his resignation if the supervisors unanimously approved his temporarily remaining on the water board).

Director Eugene A. Miller suggested the board go on record favoring an election. However, Chairman Robert G. Anderson and directors John M. MacPhail Jr. and Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. said they were not ready to make such a decision and the motion failed for lack of a second.

Earlier, Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger criticized board members for using Foreaker as a "pawn."

Seeger declared, "In my opinion, you're putting Ray Foreaker in one hell of a postion)6I kn't see him going into a new career in the county as a pawn."

In his letter of resignation, which the board finally accepted effective Sept. 30, Foreaker had said his new job might result in a conflict of interest if he remained on the water board.

MacPhail brought the discussion to halt, agreeing with Seeger that Foreaker should not be kept on as a "lame duck director."

In addition to the letters received by the board, several audience members spoke out in favor of a District I election to fill Foreaker's term which extends until December, 1974.

Directors received a letter from Halsey H. Lyon of San Anselmo, president of Diesel Systems Inc. of San Rafael, asking to be considered for the post.

Two Big Hurdles Before Pact For Water Becomes A Reality

Marin Municipal Water District directors yesterday approved in substance a 25-page contract with the Sonoma Water Agency which outlines the Russian River water project.

Before the contract can be executed, however, two things must take place.

A bill that will allow the district to enter into such an agreement with another water agency must be signed by the governor. It already has passed the Assembly and Senate.

A majority of district residents voting Nov. 2 in a special referendum election must authorize the district to enter into the agreement with the Sonoma agency.

Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger reviewed the contract for more than an hour, but directors made few comments on the document.

Details of the project embodied in the contract (fully reported in the Independent-Journal July 26) drew little board or audience discussion of the overall project. But some points in the lengthy agreement were questioned from the audience and drew the following information from Seeger:

A clause has been included that gives the Sonoma agency title to all lands and rights-of-way that the aqueduct will be built on in an attempt by the Marin water district to avoid paying a possessory interest tax on the property.

Source of water for as long as 10 years is the Coyote Creek. Once the total water required for the Sonoma and Marin districts exceeds 25 million gallons daily from the Creek, water will be taken from the Warm Springs Dam on the Russian River.

Once the district begins using water from Warm Springs Dam it is liable for its entire share of the construction cost even if, at some point in the future, it has no need for the additional water.

There is a possibility that the North Marin Water District will not enter the agreement with the Marin and Sonoma districts. However, no additional cost will be added to Marin's share of the project if that should occur.

Until the aqueduct is constructed, Marin plans to bring additional water into the district by buying surplus from the North Marin district. There is no guarantee on how much water will be available to Marin, however.

The district is obligated for the cost of the project at the time of construction. Estimates of $35.3 million, Marin's share of the cost, do not include interest charges and only allow for a 5.8 per cent raise inconstruction cost annually.

The agreement specifies that, if Marin can not make its annual payment out of revenue before July 1 of any year, the district agrees to levy a tax to raise the unpaid amount.

The district has the right to prepay its share of the aqueduct cost at any time, although a subsequent reduction in interest cost is not spelled out.

Marin must pay for the aqueduct even if it does not become operational or later ceases to be operational.

Water Measuring Stick Takes Heat Wave Dip

Residents in Marin Municipal Water District used an extra 18 million gallons of water daily during the recent four-day hot spell, according to district engineers.

J. Dietrich Stroeh yesterday reported to the district board that a total of 185 million gallons of water was used during the heat wave between Sept. 12 and 16 when temperatures reached as high as 111 degrees in Woodacre.

Average summer usage of water is 36 million gallons daily, but on the hottest day, Sept. 14, a maximum of 54 million gallons was recorded used in the district, Stroeh said.

The average for the four days was 46.25 million gallons daily.

The highest previous water use was July 4, 1970 when residents used 48.8 million gallons when temperatures went over 100 degrees.

Stroeh said the district was able to maintain adequate service by notifying golf courses, schools, cities and the state highway department to discontinue watering lawns and shrubbery. The irrigation halt came on the third day of the hot spell.

Marin Municipal Water District board also:

RACES — Approved a request from College of Marin to use Lake Lagunitas area to hold cross-country races Oct. 2 and Nov. 10.

ORDINANCE — Approved an ordinance amending the limited purpose facilities provision to require that persons be informed, before they purchase land, that they will have to pay for installation of water.

RETIRED — Extended praise to Charles J. Soldavini, district treasurer, who will retire Oct. 1 after 47 years in the district.

EEL RIVER — Heard a review of the history of the Eel River Water Council from Jerry Butchert, executive director, who also outlined some of the council's objectives.

LAND SWAP — Indicated present unwillingness to exchange its 5.5-acre pipeyard property north of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard below Hutchinson Quarry for a four-acre plot next to its corporation yard in Corte Madera. Title Insurance Properties Corp., according to its planner and spokesman Norman T. Gilroy, has an option to buy the Corte Madera property and would like to trade it for the pipeyard property in order to consolidate holdings in the quarry area which might one day provide a right-of-way for rapid transit.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 1:30 p.m. tomorrow to prepare ballot arguments for a referendum election Nov. 2.

SPITE FENCE? — A workman proceeds to put up a barrier that the director of the Sausalito Arts Center says is intended as "petty harrassment" by the Sausalito School District administration. Not at all, says the district superintendent. The barrier at one end of the center driveway is intended to protect children attending nearby Bayside School.

Gate Strains Good Neighbor Policy

A redwood barricade-gate now under construction at the west end of the circular driveway in front of the Sausalito Arts Center has triggered renewed acrimony between the center and Sausalito School District officials.

Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg, who ordered the barricade raised, says it is needed to keep cars from turning onto the street in front of the center from a blind driveway and endangering students on their way to nearby Bayside School. The district owns the Old Bayside School building in which the center is located.

Center director Shelagh Considine, on the other hand, contends the single barrier will create a more dangerous situation than already exists. She pointed out that cars parking in front of the center will now have to back downhill and into the street in order to exit from the parking area.

Mrs. Considine also complained she was not notified of the district's plans for the barricade and found work on it begun when she came to work yesterday morning.

"If I had been notified, I could have called our board together and we could probably have worked out a better solution to the problem with the school district," she said. "Perhaps we could have clipped the hedge (alongside the driveways) for better visibility or installed speed traps to force cars to proceed out of the driveway into the street at very slow speeds.

Lindberg said he tried several times Tuesday to contact Mrs. Considine, but was unable to reach her. "For the safety of the kids, we had to get something up there right away," he said. Mrs. Considine told the superintendent she had been in her office all day Tuesday and there had been no calls for her from the school district.

Lindberg admitted the barricade would force cars to back out and suggested he may ban all parking in front of the art center during school hours. To accomplish this, he said another barricade-gate (which would be opened after school hours) would have to be constructed at the other entrance to the parking area.

If day-time parking in front of the center is abolished, the superintendent said art center cars could use a lower parking area west of the facility during the day.

Mrs. Considine, who has been center director since early August, called the building of the barricade without notification to the center "petty harrassment." When I became director, Mr. Lindberg told me the district's biggest problem with the art center had been that the center did not inform the district of what it was doing," she said. "I have tried to be a good neighbor and keep the district informed of our activities, but apparently the district does not believe in returning the favor."

Lindberg said that no harrassment was intended.

In July the Sausalito School board voted to evict the center from the school property within 30 days. Later the board changed its mind and directed representatives of the district to meet with attorneys for the art center to work out a lease on the building that was satisfactory to both parties.

Lease negotiations are still continuing.

Bus Firm Still Wants Key Role

Marin Transit Systems officials and those of the Golden Gate Bridge District remained in contention today as they discussed the Marin City-based firm's claim to be included in the district's huge new bus system.

Panelists on KTIM's "Sounding Board" program who debated the issue were Lowell J. Edington, president of the bridge district board; Thomas Jenkins, attorney for the bridge district; Theophus Barron Jr., president of Marin Transit System, and Albert B. Bianchi, attorney for the Marin City based company.

At stake is what role the small new bus company, now operating a five-bus pilot project, will play in the 152-bus system which the Golden Gate Bridge District will start operating both for commuters and within the county on Dec. 1.

The Marin City company has based its hopes of taking over one-third of the new buses on language of the law under which the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration operates. (This agency is processing a $6.3 million grant which will pay part of the cost of the new buses.)

Barron today charged that the law provides that existing private firms should not be put out of business and that the Nixon administration has pledged to support minority enterprises.

"We are not asking charity, he said, but rather his company wants to be rewarded for hard work and sacrifice.

"We are going to fight to stay alive," Barron continued, saying he was not interested in merely getting jobs for his employees in the new Golden Gate Bridge system.

His attorney, Bianchi, agreed that the federal law provides that "the program shall encourage to the maximum extent feasible the participation of private enterprises" and that the mere offering of jobs did not meet this requirement.

He compared the job offer to the attitude of an "1860 plantation owner.."

Bridge board President Edington, however, maintained the main reason that Marin Transit Systems can't be cut into operation of the new bus system is that it's not feasible for two entities to run it.

He said that the Marin Transit District (a county body) had already agreed to have the bridge district run the new transportation system, made possible by profits on the bridge in combination with the federal grant.

"The field of public transportation . . . is a loser," Edington said, indicating that any transit system will have to be subsidized and that Marin residents are fortunate that bridge money is available for such subsidy.

Furthermore, attorney Jenkins said, the Marin Transit System was not in operation when plans first started for the bridge district system, which will supplant Greyhound Bus in Marin.

Both he and Edington suggested that the transit system buses could be utilized as charter buses or in accordance with a suggestion made last week, as shuttle buses in Point Reyes National Seashore.

"If they still can't succeed with all the subsidies, we will give their employees jobs," Jenkins said.

Although Barron said that "we are ready and willing to provide" intracounty transportation, Edington suggested that the "convenience and beauty" of the new bridge district buses may provide better service.

He explained that buses will be used primarily for commute runs in the early morning and evening and during the daytime, for intracounty routes.

"We will not run a spine system like Greyhound," he said.

The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be rebroadcast at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Several Types Of Baldness; Most Common Kind Inherited

Hair patterns are set by heredity. Those with too much or too little should blame their grandparents. No wonder the young 20-year old who is destined to become bald cannot stop his hair from thinning or his forehead from receding. One of my colleagues has the right attitude. According to him: "I don't have too little hair, other people have too much." He never feels sensitive about his shiny dome, and I must admit it is always neat.

THERE ARE several types of baldness. The ordinary kind is hereditary and varies from slight thinning on the crown to complete loss of hair. As we said, nothing will help this form of hair loss except grafting tufts of hair from the sides of the head (hair transplantation). Toupees also are popular.

But most baldies should learn to live with their inheritance and save their money. After all, baldness cures have been touted for the last 40 centuries. They have one similarity — all fail to grow hair.

BALDNESS RESULTING from infection, such as ringworm, gives the scalp a moth-eaten look. For this type, remedies are available. Alopecia areata, which should not be confused with hereditary baldness, is confined to smooth, round patches. Patchy baldness accounts for less than 3 per cent of all cases. Spontaneous improvement is common, and others are helped with active treatments. So-called "cures" make excellent advertisements for before-and-after pictures published by hair specialists.

BILLIONS ARE spent on hair restorers, dyes, tints and wave sets. It shows that few individuals are satisfied with their own thatch. But I prefer to believe that these products are used to improve the appearance of existing hair. Many people make the mistake of working too hard on this project. The scalp should not be abused with strong chemicals or electrical devices to stimulate the circulation.

MILK DIET

H. I. S. writes: From time to time I go on a milk diet for my duodenal ulcer. What is the most effective treatment for this disorder?

REPLY

If milk does the trick, let it go at that. On the other hand, diet, antispasmodic drugs and antacid tablets are important in healing the open ulcer. For lasting results, you must learn to control your emotions and avoid anxiety, stress and fatigue. It has been said that an ocean voyage or equally tranquil-type vacation promotes healing of 90 per cent of all peptic ulcers (without drugs). Persistent and severe ulcer distress usually responds to surgery.

THICK NECK

Mrs. B. writes: My 17-year-old son is rather short and is developing a thick neck. Is this an indication of any trouble?

REPLY

No. Short boys are liable to have short necks that thicken as they become more muscular.

SIT UP TO EAT

S.D. writes: Is it harmful to feed a 5- month-old infant solid food while he is lying down?

REPLY

No, but it is more natural and easier when the youngster sits up.

ALCOHOL AND PRESSURE

J.K.B. writes: Does chronic alcoholism lead to high blood pressure?

REPLY

No.

Today's Health Hint — Never discard medicines where children or pets might get at them.

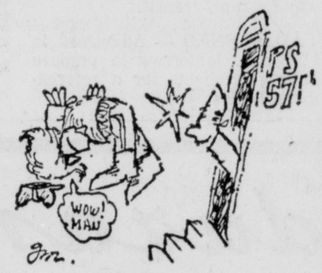
LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Fair Hearing For Students



In 1960 several students of a state school were expelled after participating in demonstrations against discriminatory practices at lunch counters. The reasons for their expulsions were not made clear.

The students claimed that they could not be expelled without a hearing. The court agreed. It held that a state school had a right to discipline students, but that a student had a right to a fair hearing and "due process."

The California Education Code outlines a method for review of alleged student misconduct in the public schools. An imposition of punishment by a teacher or principal may be challenged before the superintendent of schools. A decision by the superintendent may be reviewed by the Board of Education.

The board must give notice to the pupil, and to his parent or guardian, of the reasons for the disciplinary action. If they are dissatisfied, they may then request a public hearing.

What kind of hearing is required? First, the hearing is not a trial. The student must be given notice of the charges, and told that if the charges are proven, they would justify his expulsion from school.

Second, the student is not entitled to cross-examine or confront his accusers. The hearing need not wait the outcome of a criminal procedure, and proof need not be "beyond a reasonable doubt." However, the student should be given the names of witnesses against him, and a summary of their testimony.

Third, there is no right to be represented by counsel at the hearing, although attorneys are occasionally present for the students. The basic requirement is that the hearing be fair. (Note: California lawyers make this column available so that you may know about our laws.)

Princess Is Against Abortions

MONACO (UPI) — Princess Grace of Monaco said today she agrees entirely with most of the aims of the women's liberation movement but not on abortion.

In an interview with the newspaper Nice Matin the former actress Grace Kelly of Philadelphia said, "I am not keen on talking about such a complicated problem" as abortion. "But for my part, I am against it.

She is a Roman Catholic.

"I agree entirely with their (feminists') claims for the equality of women alongside men in work and, of course, in all social responsibilities," she said.

"What shocked me in listening to the American 'suffragettes' was that when they demand an abortion law, you have the impression that it is above all a legal guarantee which will end their personal responsibility," she said.

Urban Coalition Issues Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The National Urban Coalition issued another report today on U.S. inner city conditions. It said most things were getting worse, but ghetto and barrio residents were beginning to "reach for the levers of power."

Its commission on the cities in the '70s issued no new recommendations, which coalition chairman Sol Linowitz said pointed up a conclusion that "What is needed —urgently needed —is not a new set of priorities but a new sense of national commitments."

The comission, headed by Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York and Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., avoided any specific criticism of President Nixon. Mrs. Aileen C. Hernandez, president of the National Organization for Women and a commission member, said if there was blame, it attached "to every administration since Franklin D. Roosevelt's."

Courthouse Pitch Ties Rec Bond Talks

San Rafael Park and Recreation Commission members agreed last night to await the outcome of city negotiations to buy Courthouse Square, before asking the city council to consider holding another bond election to finance a new city recreation center.

Andrew J. Snyder Jr., parks and recreation director reported that he told the commissioners a recreation center was urgently needed. The city recreation program has been operated out of temporary quarters, most recently in the Courthouse Annex, which is temporarily closed during demolition work on the old courthouse building, destroyed by fire in May.

The city council on Monday night instructed City Mgr. James H. McCown to negotiate with Marin County officials toward eventual acquisition of the square where the courthouse stood for 98 years.

San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission Also:

VANDALISM — Discussed continued vandalism at Gerstle Park, and decided to repair the nighttime closing sign so it could not be removed. Snyder reported the city police have cooperated in patroling all the city parks to deter vandals.

PROGRAM — Snyder announced that signups were to begin today at Albert Park clubhouse for the fall recreation classes.

TENNIS — Snyder reported that Commissioner Norma Wall's suggestion for a system of using plastic cards to unlock tennis courts was investigated and found to be too costly to install.

MARCH — Granted, subject to use fees and clean-up deposits, permission for the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom to use Albert Park as the end-point of a peace march from San Anselmo on Oct. 25.

BIKE SIGNS — After learning that the city council felt the proposed bicycle trail signs were too large, agreed that the signs should be uniform with neighboring cities, but suspended action on the issue until completion of the city portion of South San Pedro Road.

HIRING — Heard that a screening committee of recreation professionals will review 50 applications for the job vacated by Gary R. Frugoli, assistant recreation supervisor, as of Sept. 1. Frugoli took a police department job.

PLAY EQUIPMENT — Commissioner Robert Schoen reported the Bank of Marin has offered to donate play equipment for small children in the East Canal area. Parks Supervisor Scott Tilden was instructed to confer with bank officials about the most suitable type of equipment.

Association Eying Planting Of Bushes

Lynwood Park Improvement Association members are considering placing bushes along the backs of fences facing South Novato Boulevard for beautification.

Members, who gathered Tuesday night, also talked about planting bushes at other locations such as the end of Sunset Parkway and Leafwood Drive, reported Kathleen Loeffler, corresponding secretary. No action was taken, she said.

FBI Reports Arrest In Bomb Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The FBI said today it has arrested Charles Noel Hess, 29, also known as David Allen Werner, in connection with the bombing and burglary of the Santa Cruz National Guard armory July 24.

Hess was arrested Wednesday night in a remote area of Santa Cruz County near Corralitos, and a large number of weapons taken in the burglary were recovered.

Picked up at the time of Hess' arrest were 16 machine guns, 47 .45 caliber pistols and a grenade launcher. The FBI said some weapons had been recovered previously.

Hess has lived in the Salinas area for about four months and was employed as a time keeper in a produce firm at Salinas. He was arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Francis J. Carr on charges of possession of stolen government property.

Penalty on the charges is 10 years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Hess was lodged in Monterey County Jail in Salinas when he was unable to meet $50,000 bail.

FBI agents said the armory burglary occurred after a pipe bomb was set off in one room and the door to the weapons storage area was broken open.

Mrs. Considine Is Granted An Annulment

The marriage of nightclub operator Michael R. Considine, 35, and Shelagh Considine has been annulled in Marin Superior Court.

The annulment was sought by Mrs. Considine who was named director of the Sausalito Art Center last month.

According to her petition, the couple was married in Reno Sept. 12, 1968, and separated Nov. 25, 1968. She filed for the annulment in January 1969.

Mrs. Considine was granted custody of a daughter, Shawn, 4.

She had charged Considine with cruelty and said he caused her mental suffering and bodily injury.

Considine formerly operated the Lion's Share coffee house in Sausalito, but it was destoryed by fire in 1968. He now operates the Lion's Share on the Miracle Mile in San Anselmo.

Draft Evasion Charge Dropped

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Federal draft evasion charges against a 21-year-old San Rafael man have been dropped, the U.S. Attorney General's office said yesterday.

Charges were dropped, it said, on orders of a U.S. District Court Judge in Jacksonville, Fla. who found Wayne Edward Gardner of 239 D Street physically unfit for service.

A friend, Rodney Alan Woods, 21, of San Anselmo, is awaiting trial Oct. 19 in Los Angeles on charges of harboring Gardner from arrest.

Pilot Quotes Bible in Delay

LONDON (UPI)—Officials at London airport said they called for a Bible today when a Royal Air Force pilot en route from Gander, Newfoundland, was ordered to divert his VC10 airliner to Keflavik, Iceland, and pick up some equipment.

The pilot answered the diversion order with the message, "Deuteronomy, Chapter 27, Verse 18," the airport officials said.

The officials said a Bible check showed the verse cited by the pilot read: "Cursed be he that maketh the blind to wander out of the way. And all the people shall say amen."

Hub Youth Hurt

A 17-year-old San Anselmo youth was treated yesterday at Marin General Hospital for a sprained neck and back hospital officials said he received in an auto accident at about 3 p.m. Details of the accident involving Christy Mauer, 75 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, were unavailable.

San Quentin Art Show Scheduled

San Quentin Prison's 17th Annual Fall Arts and Crafts show is slated to open at 8:30 a.m. Saturday with more than 2,000 paintings and handicrafts on sale.

Officials at the prison yesterday advised visitors not to wear blue denim clothing since that is the inmates uniform.

Persons so dressed will be turned away at the door, the spokesman said.

The art show is a major source of income for many inmates and last year was attended by about 20,000 people who purchased $35,000 worth of merchandise.

The show will run from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. with an auction slated for 2 p.m.

Elsewhere around the prison, normal operations were resumed today for the first time since the Aug. 21 escape attempt which left three guards and three inmates dead.

Although inmate traffic within the walls was restricted, information officer Joseph R. O'Brien said, the facility was "just about" normal today.

He said about 1,700 men had returned to jobs while 350, including inmates in the adjustment center, remained locked up. The adjustment center was the scene of the Aug. 21 violence.

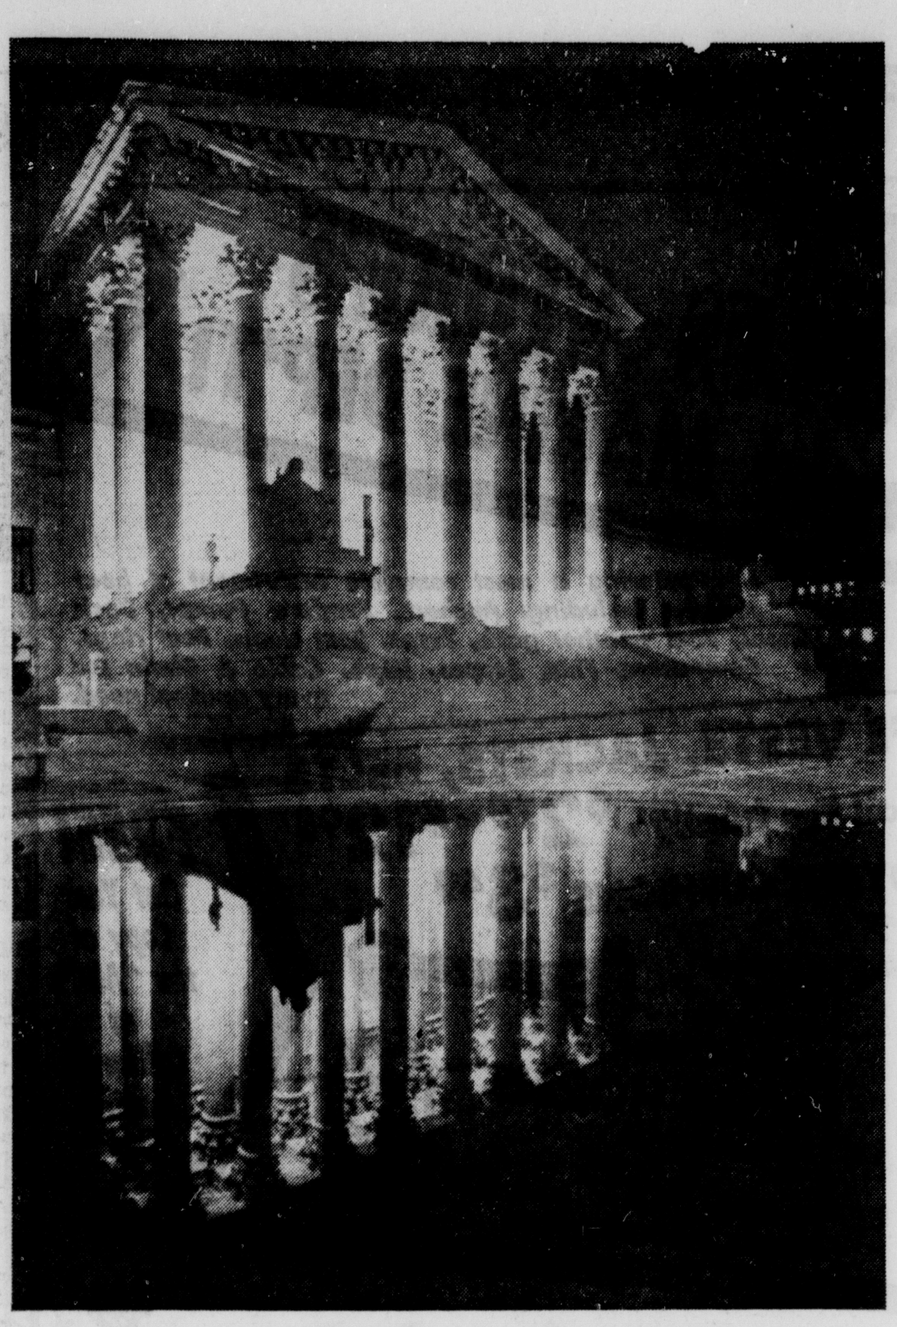
Innocent Plea In Theft Case

John Keith Scherbarth, 18, of Dunbar, Wis., pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to felony charges of car theft and possession of stolen property.

Preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 5.

Scherbarth was arrested Monday by Mill Valley police who said he was driving a car that had been stolen Sunday from in front of the residence of its owner, Jack Benjamin of 84 Buena Vista Avenue, Mill Valley.



REFLECTIONS AT NIGHT

Postal Hike Hearings Nearing End

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The new Postal Rate Commission said today it was nearing the end of its lengthy hearings on higher mail rates which already are in effect on a temporary basis.

The commission, created under the 1970 Postal Reorganization Act to act on postal rates sought by the semi-independent U.S. Postal Service, has been holding hearings since May 17, the day after the $1.45 billion in higher rates were put into effect.

The rate group had proposed changes in the rate scales to the Postal Service's board of governors which will make the final decision.

The rate commission's chairman, William J. Crowley, said in a speech to the fifth annual National Postal Forum that even after the hearings are completed, a "monumental task" remains to analyze the 11,000-page record and prepare a recommendation to the service's governors.

While indicating it still will be considerable time before there is a final decision on the rates —including a one-third jump in charges for most types of mailings—Crowley defended the process as giving all sides "complete freedom" to present their views.

Another speaker at the forum, W. J. Usery Jr., praised both leaders of the postal service and representatives of workers' unions for "some of the noblest leadership" he had encountered during negotiations for their first contract.

Tests Show Tranquilizers Make Pigeons Work More

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At Georgetown University here a scientist dosed some working pigeons with tranquilizers.

Instead of slowing the pigeons' work pace, the tranquilizers increased it.

Does this mean that tranquilizers are not, after all, tranquilizing, and that human beings may not find them relaxing?

Not necessarily. Pigeons aren't people, of course, but the Georgetown experiments with them suggest the possibility that a little tranquilization can ease the pain of work and thus improve performance.

The Georgetown pigeons were given the chore of getting food by pecking a key. The number of pecks was increased for each successive work session.

Dr. Donald M. Thompson, assistant professor of pharmacology, explained it this way:

"Eight pecks would be sufficient to summon the first food reward, but 16 would be required the next time, then 24, and so on."

After 60 sessions, when the pigeons' normal pecking responses had been established under the increasing work loads, they were tested with varying doses of two tranquilizers — Librium and phenobarbital. "Under the influence of either drug," Thompson said, "the pigeons worked more—they completed more demanding work requirements."

Thompson said he believes the tranquilizers made the pigeons' chores seem less onerous to them, "and therefore led to greater performance."

Might human beings, exposed to the stress of increasingly demanding but essentially tedious jobs, also benefit from judiciously prescribed doses of relaxing drugs?

It may take considerably more study to tell whether what seems to be good for pigeons is also good for people.

Screams Do Not Halt A Slashing

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)— "I screamed out to them, "I don't have any money. I don't have any money!'"

But Bruce Lamar, 22, was viciously attacked, his skull fractured, his tendons severed on both hands and his face disfigured. He was the sixth victim of what police call "totally senseless" recent slashing assaults in this University of California community.

Police said all of the slashings have apparently been aimed at inflicting injury since none of the victims were robbed and the two women attacked were not molested.

Six persons, all Caucasians, have been attacked in the campus area since July 27, apparently by "two black adults" who used a "heavy-bladed knife" such as a machete or a cleaver, police said.

Students are becoming wary about walking about at night and the university's administration has issued a memorandum warning women staff members not to walk alone after dark.

"I don't go out walking now at night and I worry about the children walking on campus," said Karen McNally, 31, a graduate student in geophysics who is married with two children. She said she was going to enroll in a free university self-defense course.

Fewer Children, Higher Rents In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The city's child population has taken a drastic drop in the last 10 years, the U.S. Census Bureau reported Wednesday.

Officials said the number of those under five years of age dropped from 58,851 in 1960 to 43,003 in 1970—a 26.9 per cent decline.

The ranks of those between 5 and 14 dropped 8.8 per cent to 89,564, the bureau said.

There was a 6.5 per cent increase in the number of persons 65 and older. The 1970 total was 99,738.

Other Census Bureau figures showed:

—The median rent in the city rose to $128 last year. This is 88 per cent higher than the figure for 1960.

—The value of the median home climbed 62.4 per cent to $28,100.

No Letup Seen In Brazilian Terrorism

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)— The slaying of Carlos Lamarca last week left Brazila's guerrillas without a nationally known leader, but the military government of South America's largest nation does not expect the terrorist movement to collapse because of it.

On the contrary, army intelligence officers said they believe the threat of urban terrorism remains as strong as ever. Some predicted the number of political terrorist acts may even increase.

Lamarca, a former army captain who deserted in 1969 to join the guerrilla movement, earned his fame as a terrorist by receiving the official blame for directing the kidnaping of three ambassadors.

The three kidnaped diplomats were C. Burke Elbrick of the United States, who was abducted in 1969, and Ehrenfried Von Bolleben of West Germany and Enrico Giovanni Bucher of Switzerland, both of whom were kidnaped in 1970. Each was subsequently released after the government freed a group of political prisoners and flew them into exile in Algeria and Mexico.

Diplomatic sources said the death of Lamarca, who was trapped and killed in a gunbattle with security police last Friday in Bahia state, was another boon to the prestige of the hard-line military officers who took over the government in 1968 and have pressed stern measures not only against political terrorism but also against any open political opposition.

Before Lamarca, the military government hunted down and killed his predecessor as the Brazilian terrorist leader, Carlos Marighela, two years ago in Sao Paulo, Brazil's largest city.

But just as Lamarca emerged to replace Marighela, so could another guerrilla rise to the stature of a national figurehead or leader to replace Lamarca.

There are numerous small, independent terrorist cells in Brazil, and army intelligence sources predicted these could create further trouble even without any symbol of national leadership.

The main significance of Lamarca's death, however, is that it left the terrorist movement at least temporarily without leadership and booted military and police morale that had been stung by the diplomatic kidnapings. The army held a special grudge against Lamarca since he was once a model soldier and one of the top marksmen in the Brazilian armed forces.

The prestigious Rio newspaper, the Jornal do Brasil, called Lamarca "the last leader of subversion." And another Rio newspaper, O Jornal, said, "the last leader of the terror is dead."

But in Sao Paulo, the newspaper O Estado de Sao Paulo said that there are expectations of "new leaders to emerge."

Art Festival In San Francisco To Open Today

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The 25th annual Arts Festival opens today in Civic Center Plaza with the emphasis on the big and gaudy.

More than 2500 pieces of arts and crafts are on display and painter Susan Kelk said "there have never been so many visionary painters in the festival."

There was an extra-life-size sculpture of a woman with a guitar in psychedelic colors created by thousands of bright objects glued on to the basic figure.

"People kept bringing things to us and saying 'this is for the lady,'" Larry Fuente of Larkspur explained. He and Dickens Bascom of Bolinas created the work.

The festival will run 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. through Sunday.

Attica Panel Impartiality Questioned

ABANY, N.Y. (UPI)—A state legislator who served on a citizens committee which tried to end the Attica prison rebellion has said the committee "turned into a pro-prisoner group instead of a formal neutral negotiating committee."

Assemblyman James L. Emery said black and Puerto Rican members of the committee, and recognized spokesmen for minorities, failed to take steps which could have freed hostages and not endangered human life.

After five days, police stormed the rebel-held compound in the prison and the death toll reached 40.

In other developments Wednesday, the labor union representing 8,000 prison workers threatened to lock all convicts in their cells Oct. 7 unless Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller implements immediate prison changes.

And a source in the Rockefeller administration estimated that damage to the Attica Correctional Facility would total more than $3 million.

In calling for the "lock-in" of all state prison inmates in two weeks, officials of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes cited the need for improved prison conditions.

House Expected To Approve Tax Slices

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., will take a $15 billion tax reduction bill to the House for expected rubber stamp approval about Oct. 4.

The package, which includes provisions for increasing personal exemptions to $675 and for low income tax relief, passed the House Ways and Means Committee under the guidance of chairman Mills.

While Mills prepared to present the bill, whose measures spread over three years, President Nixon was scheduled to fly to Detroit to deliver a speech that will be broadcast nationwide on radio at 9 p.m. EDT today.

(Nixon will be heard at p.m. today on radio station KTIM.)

Nixon may reveal some of his economic plans to follow the wage-price freeze that ends Nov. 13.

The Mills' bill sharply modified tax-easing proposals made by Nixon, increasing relief for individuals from a suggested $2.2 billion to $5.6 billion and reducing his tax cut for business by $4.9 billion.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally said the administration preferred its own proposals, but that "on balance the actions taken by the committee represent constructive consideration of the President's recommendations."

Connally said the administration would support the Mills' bill when the House votes, and appealed to the Senate Finance Committee to open hearings on it soon.

The Labor Department reported a .03 per cent increase in the cost of living in its first monthly statement since Nixon ordered the 90-day freeze Aug. 15.

Man Is Booked On Check Fraud

A 26-year-old Marin City man was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on a warrant charging two counts of fraudulent possession of checks.

Oscar Mickey Curry, 69 Cole Drive, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court and held in jail in lieu of $2,500 bail to appear today for plea.

Two checks dated April 2 for $45 each were made out to Curry with a forged signature of Capt. Lincoln Borba of the San Rafael Police Department, according to an affidavit filed with the warrant.

The affidavit states that Borba had his personal car washed that day at Wade's Polish Service where Curry was employed and six days later Borba found that three checks were missing from the checkbook he had in the back of his car.

Innocent Plea To Drug Count

Sarah Kit Cousins, 22, of San Francisco, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to felony charges of possessing and cultivating peyote.

Preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 12.

She was arrested Aug. 23 after Sausalito police stopped her car on Bridgeway because it had no 1971 registration sticker.

Police booked her at Marin County Jail when they discovered there were $316 worth of traffic warrants out for her from San Mateo and San Francisco.

While booking her, a greenish peyote cactus button was found in her purse.

They were arrested by state narcotics agents last Thursday in an area near the Marin Heliport, where, agents said, they had been living in vans.

Mrs. Nixon For Woman On Bench

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pat Nixon wants her husband to appoint a woman to the Supreme Court and has told him so.

"Don't worry, I'm talking it up," the President's wife said. "If we don't get one this time, they're certainly grooming them for next time."

Mrs. Nixon chatted with a group of newswomen Wednesday as her plane flew back to Washington from Newport News, Va., where she christened the new Navy missle frigate, USS California.

She confided she had passed on to the President "some suggestions" on women qualified to succeed Justice Hugo L. Black, 85, who retired last week.

Nixon has been urged by several politicians and groups to appoint the first woman to the Supreme Court. Several Democratic presidential hopefuls have endorsed the idea.

Mrs. Nixon indicated her suggestions included the three women Nixon has appointed to judgeships in the lower federal courts —Cornelia G. Kennedy, U.S. district judge for the Eastern District of Michigan; and Sylvia Bacon and Normalie Holloway Johnson, both serving on the District of Columbia Superior Court.

There has been speculation Nixon soon may have another vacancy to fill on the Supreme Court. Associate Justice John M. Harlan, 72, is ailing.

Mrs. Nixon also:

—Revealed she secretly entertained Mrs. Rose Kennedy at tea May 27 when she invited the matriarch of the Kennedy family to view the portraits of President John F. Kennedy and his widow, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

—Lamented the loss of the Washington Senators baseball franchise, which will be moved to Dallas-Ft. Worth.

Meat Percentages For Italian Dishes

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Meat ravioli need have only 10 per cent meat, according to Agriculture Department standards.

But lasagna with meat sauce must be comprised of at least 12 per cent meat, and at least one-fourth of a meat pie must be meat.

COMBINES HOME, STUDIES

A New Career For Law Student

By PAT BALMES

When her three children went back to school this fall, 42-year-old Mrs. Bernard Bradman of Lucas Valley began her second year at Hastings College of the Law.

Jean Bradman, a psychiatrist's wife, enjoys intellectual challenge, and says she hopes through law to participate in society's changes concerning race, family life, women in society and re-examination of technological goals in light of deteriorating environment and consumption of natural resources.

"When my children were all in school I was left home with just objects," recalls Jean, who then analyzed the time mothers spend in beauty parlors, meetings, shopping and otherwise away from home and decided she had time for school.

Her husband suggested law and introduced Jean to San Rafael attorney Salle S. Soladay, who arranged a luncheon for her with other women lawyers. Jean learned that there is room for her in law.

Interested in aspects which have primarily social value, not merely participating in resolving disputes between private individuals, Jean is not interested in earning large sums of money.

As a girl in New York City she once spoke to her father about going to law school.

"He discouraged me by saying I would end up washing diapers anyway; then we had a fight. Even then I felt I could combine a family and a career", she says.

JEAN SAYS with good health and household conveniences there is enough time to "do the family bit" first and then move out into the larger society, particularly with the trend to, smaller families.

Because of her children, Sandra, 14, Jesse, 13 and Myron, 10, Jean didn't want a full-time job yet. Law school leaves her afternoons flexible and summers free.

When she started in 1970 women comprised 10 per cent of the class. This year the first year class at Hastings is 20 per cent women. A new course, "Women in Law," is being taught about abortion, employment, equal protection and equal rights, control of the body, public accommodations, family law, property rights, education and criminal law as it relates to women.

Feeling slightly guilty when she began law school last year "because of my feeling that I might have been taking away from my children," Jean was surprised that her children were delighted she went back to school.

Then she noticed a different attitude among younger women students who are not family-centered but separate people with greater awareness and self-expression. She also noticed young fathers at law school who seem to participate more in their children's care.

"These young women's goals are different from mine of 20 years ago — to help my husband's career and have a family," says Jean. "But somebody has to take responsibility for children. Alternatives are commune-type living, competent day care, flexible working hours and part-time jobs for women."

The Women Students Union at Hastings will open a child care center in October for men and women students and faculty.

"There should be more choices for women, more part-time jobs. A mother who feels trapped and slaps her child in the supermarket is doing him no favor by staying home. However, reasonably content mothers should stay home when their children are small to give guidance, love and security," says Jean.

"I did this for 10 years and loved every minute of it. If the phone rang while I was reading them a story, I'd let it ring. In discipline I was rigid. Now my children are beautiful because I was home."

NOW JEAN can prepare their breakfasts and sack lunches and see them off for school because she avoids 8:30 a.m. classes and starts her day at Hastings, where she is an average student, at 9:30 a.m.

She tries to be back across the bridge by 3:30 p.m., when she phones her children from the Marin Civic Center Law Library. They can also reach her there. Rock music and unnecessary interruptions prevent Jean from studying much at home.

At 5:30 p.m. Jean returns home refreshed by the legal discussions but "sick of reading," and delights in talking with her children. Cleaning up the kitchen at night has become an intimate talk-session. She also has household help.

"Too many hamburgers last year" sent Jean to the public library for two books on freezer cooking. Now she has a freezer full of meals the children can start cooking themselves after school.

Every Friday night Jean bakes bread, and her children's friends are invited in to taste the bread and sleep out ic the yard. Saturday Jean markets and studies after lunch saying, "You go weed. I have to brief a case."

Saturday night she goes out with her husband. Sunday morning Jean studies, saving afternoon for her family.

Jean says of her future, "this is an exciting time because I am not afraid of change. I taught my children to try to change laws they don't agree with, but which hurt no one. Laws which do hurt people are not laws we can obey.

"Children today are not as obedient to law as I was. They don't view a policeman as a friend and protector. Some of this disrespect is based on unenforcable laws like our marijuana laws, which I believe compare to the attempt to prohibit alcohol from 1919 to 1933 and which caused such havoc."

IN 1951 Jean "suspended" her education to marry Bernard Bradman, who was about to leave for medical school in Switzerland. She had been working days and studying in her junior year at New York University Evening College.

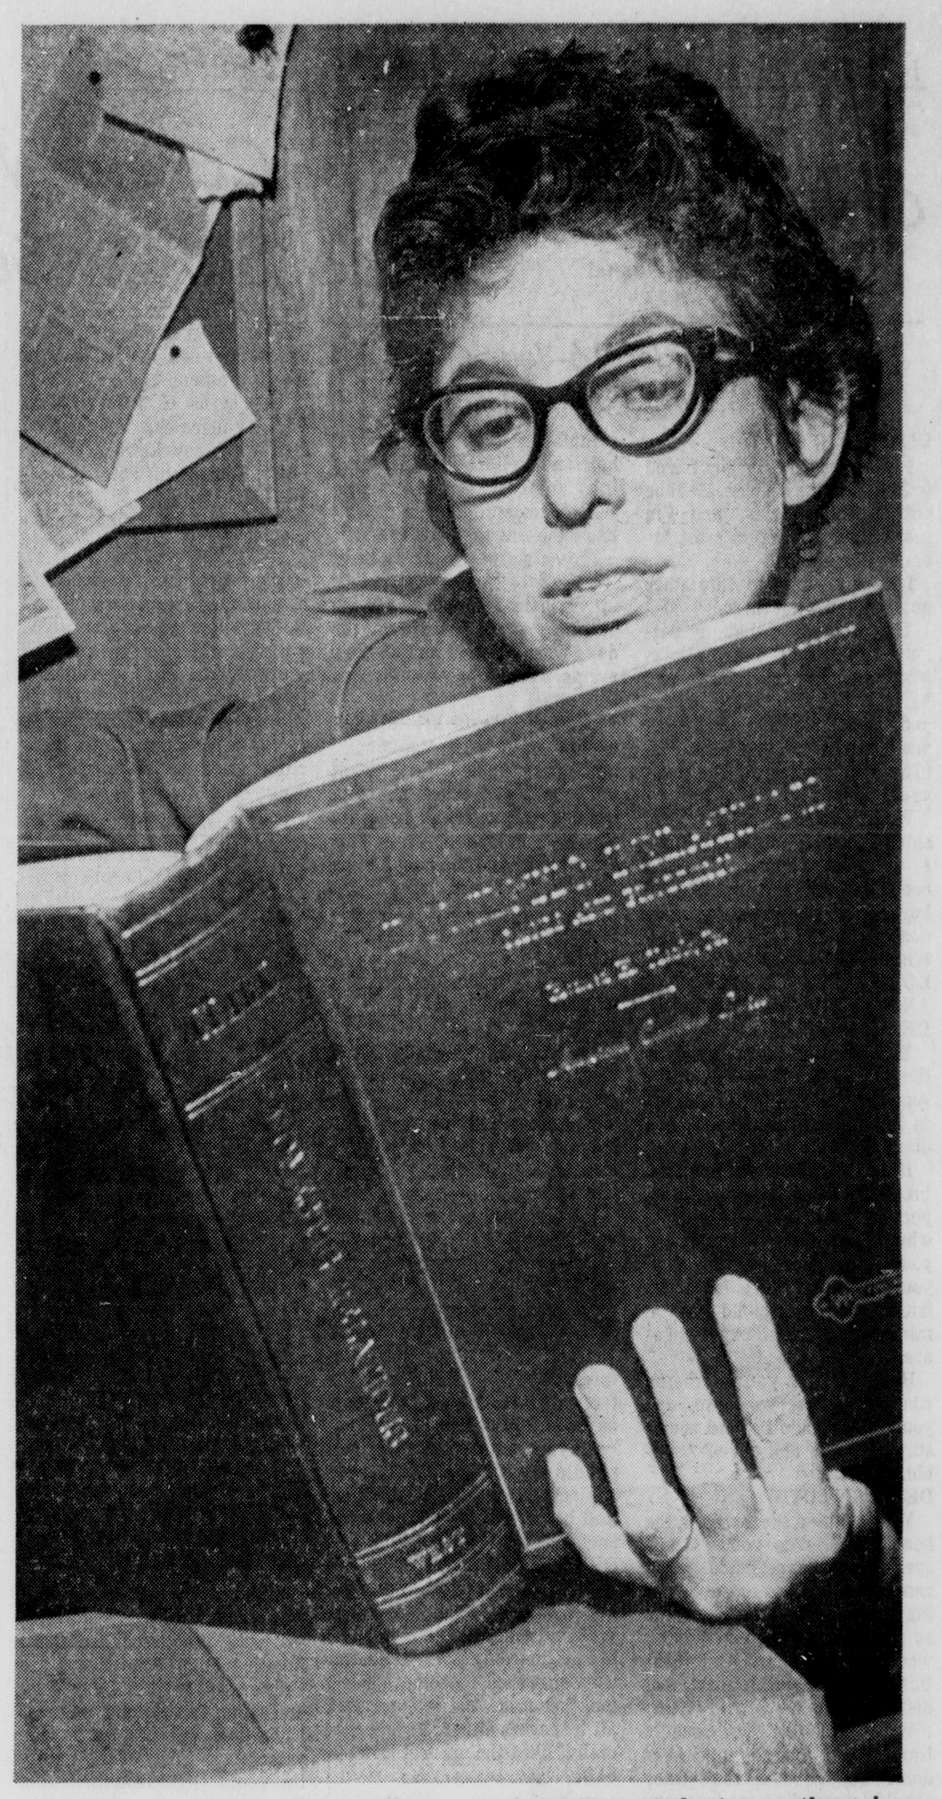
During the next five years in Switzerland Jean worked and they had their first child while Bernard attended medical school. Returning to Long Island, Bernard interned for a year.

In 19588they moved to Cincinnati, where Bernard did his specialty training in adult and child psychiatry.

"I had Monday night out," says Jean "so I studied history for my own enjoyment at University of Cincinnati night school."

Teaching in one of Cincinnati's first Head Start programs, she learned she couldn't continue the following year because she lacked a college degree. She applied to University of Cincinnati to finish her education in her mid-30s, but was told she was "too old."

When the family moved to Lucas Valley four years ago Jean earned her final credits at Dominican College. Now she plans a whole new career.



SECOND-YEAR law student, Mrs. Bernard Bradman of Lucas Valley briefs cases in the dining room she converted to her study. The 42-year-old Hastings College of the Law student says there is enough time in a woman's lengthening life to rear a family and then move out into the larger society.

Loneliness Key Single Life Problem

By JOAN LISETOR

Everyone who entered the home of Don Sederberg in Ross last night was handed a small piece of paper ad asked to write in one or two words what he considered the most difficult or complicated problem of being single.

Everyone at the home was single with the exception of the man who handed out the slips of paper, Dr. Reed Brockbank of Kentfield, who was there to lecture on the "Psychological Adjustment to the Single Life."

Overwhelmingly, reported Dr. Brockbank, the answer was loneliness.

"NUMBER TWO was sex," said Dr. Brockbank, a psychoanalyst. "It was as I predicted, but I wanted to talk about what you people wanted to hear."

And he proceeded to talk about sex. Well, not actually talking about sex, because, he told the group attending the third in a series of round table discussions sponsored by the Organization, there is not much that can be told since everything about sex has already been said or written.

About loneliness — he defined it, redefined it and told how it differed from being alone.

"Belonging to a group doesn't solve the basic problem of relating to another person," he said to the members of the Organization, a group for single persons over 21.

"NOW I am going to use a terrible word," the psychiatrist promised. "Narcissism."

He said it had been condemned by all societies throughout the history of mankind.

"I think it's great," he said. "No one can live without narcissism. You must love yourself to love others and also in order to live, survive, function, solve problems or else you are vulnerable to aggressions and self-directed hate and will destroy yourself."

He then discussed examples of persons with too much self love who are not able to reach out. When asked if there was a way to seek the middle ground he responded with more examples of narcissism.

At this point someone in the lively audience handed the psychiatrist a piece of paper with the question, "Do you believe women should always be forced to dance backward?" written on it.

HE RESPONDED with his advice for a happy life.

"It's the same as Freud's," he said. "Learn to live, love and work."

The next round table discussion will be "Prison Reform at San Quentin," by Salie Seaman Soladay, Wednesday at the home of Charlotte Sheeks in San Rafael.

THE GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Parents Consider 16-Year-Old Girl Too Young For Real Love

DEAR BOTH OF YOU:

I'm almost 17. My boy friend is 20 and in the service. He'll be out in three years, and I'm more than willing to wait because I love him.

I have no urge to date other guys. It's just not there.

The problem is that my parents don't think I'm in love. They say I'm too young and haven't had enough experience and, besides, a high school girl needs to go out and have fun. (The old "wasting the best years of your life.")

Well, I've been liking guys since I was 12, and dating since I was 14. Experience? Who needs it? Mom and Dad like my boy friend just fine, but they don't think I'm able to love yet. What's wrong with them? — IN LOVE WITHOUT MOMMY'S AND DADDY'S PERMISSION

DEAR IN LOVE:

What wrong with them is they've been taken over by society's rules which say falling in love is "for adults only." I don't agree.

If you can love your sisters, brothers, friends, pets and especially your parents — with whom you fight most during your early years — why can't you feel lasting love for a boy friend? Parents should keep in mind their youthful experiences aren't ours.

Besides, it's your decision whether or not you date, and your folks should be glad you're staying home and out of "trouble." — SUE

DEAR "IN LOVE":

My daughter speaks from the heart, and so do you. Parents speak from experience. They remember back to those "undying" young loves that seemed so mature, but somehow didn't weather the teens. And (hear this, Sue), they realize that history often does repeat itself.

Will yours last? Best proof is time. Even though your folks don't believe it's real, they should let you find out (one way or the other) for yourself. It hinges on how truly adult you are at age 16.

Moreover, a girl can have as much fun going around with the crowd as she would madly dating — just for "popularity's" sake. — HELEN

NOTE TO 'IN LOVE'S' PARENTS: Stay cool! — BOTH SUE AND HELEN

DEAR "GENERATION RAP":

The lady photographer who complained that long straight hair and no lipstick turned girls into zombies for their high school annual pictures doesn't know the new teen attitude.

Kids simply are not as hung up on being "beautiful on the outside" as they were in the days when all they had on their minds were proms, dates and sex.

Beauty contests are an indication of where "squares" place their values. Enter what is considered an ugly girl (though talented and beautiful "inside" in one of these silly exhibitions, and see how far she gets!

I say "Right On!" to people who don't live by the mirror or spend all their time and money on "looks," when the person is what really matters. — G. B.

DEAR "RAP":

No beautiful girls today? Tell that photographer it's a different kind of beauty — not the set, painted-on-smile, or the beehive hair, but a natural look. It's something you can't wash off.

I'll illustrate by saying I'm a very homely girl, yet people say I photograph well. I wear my hair all wrong for my features, and practically no make-up. But I really dig life, and I guess it shows through in pictures. I enjoy smiling, huge teeth and all. How I look isn't as important as what I am!

Maybe this photographer should consider finding new subjects rather than trying to find beauty in the dull ones she encounters. — HOMELY

DEAR EVERYBODY:

As a long-haired, natural-lipped member of the so-called "freaky generation," I'm glad to say that only ONE of dozens who answered "Photographer" took her side. And they weren't all teenagers either. Boys, especially, liked the natural look. — SUE

NOTE FROM HELEN:

As a short-haired member of the "lipstick" generation, I must add that the ONE person who agreed modern styles are tough to photograph — was a photographer! He asked if he might reprint the letter under discussion in a national camera magazine. — H.

12 SESSIONS

Career Workshop Set At Seminary

A career-planning workshop for women will be offered to Marin women, beginning Oct. 12 in a series of 12 sessions on Tuesday mornings. They will be held at the new Lewis Marshall Lloyd Education Center, an educational facility of the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

The workshops, designed to help women use their educated skills in more satisfying ways, will be directed by Martha Sturm White, Ph.D., a nationally known writer and lecturer on women who was formerly director of guidance at the Radcliffe Institute in Cambridge, Mass.

Dr. White, a Marin resident and a social psychologist at the University of California Medical Center, has given similar programs for several years in San Francisco.

"Many women," said Dr. White, "wish to complete their education, plan for graduate school, or find new opportunities for their professional skills. Others are seeking more satisfying volunteer commitments or a better sense of direction and purpose in their lives.

"Some wish to develop new horizons, plan careers or find part-time opportunities."

The sessions will include lectures, group discussions and audio-visual feedback, as well as speakers who will discuss educational, volunteer and employment opportunities in the Bay Area.

Enrollment for the course is limited, and a preliminary interview is required for admission. Appointments for the Oct. 5 group interviews and information about the workshop may be obtained from Mrs. Gloria Perdue, director of the Lewis Marshall Lloyd Education Center at the seminary.

In the past year she has worked at Queen's Medical Center in Honolulu, Hawaii, and was a camp nurse during the summer in Occidental. Terry is the sister of Greg, Jeff, Debbie, Mary and Laurie Monardo.

James is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward of San Francisco. He was graduated from St. Ignatius High School and the University of San Francisco and is in his second year at USF Law School. He is the associate director of the Catholic Youth Organization in San Francisco.

James is the brother of Edward, Michael and Eileen Nevin, Mrs. Robert Radanovich, Mrs. Richard Braun and Mrs. Patrick Johnston.

Corn Treat

Here's a vegetable treat using fresh corn cut from the cob. Cook 3 cups fresh corn in one-quarter cup butter and one-quarter cup water for five minutes. Add salt, pepper, one-quarter cup cream and one-quarter cup dry sauterne wine. Heat and serve.

Watch Pre-Schoolers

A home safe for adults is not necessarily safe for a baby or pre-schooler. If you are accustomed to storing household poisons (bleaches, lyes, detergents, polishes) beneath the sink, move them to a higher self until little guests have left. Also, when expecting little guests, make sure medications are locked away.

Breathing Spells

Carpet in heavily traveled spots gets hard wear. For better looks and longer life for your floorcovering, manage to give these areas breathing spells. Small rugs are helpful as is occasional moving of furniture and reversing of rugs from time to time. Small rugs are especially recommended for areas in front of chairs or furniture used for viewing television.

Nitrates Said Bad For Babies

NEW YORK (UPI) — A University of Illinois biologist contends that the intensive use of nitrogen fertilizers increases the infant mortality rate among female babies.

Dr. Abraham Gelperin was quoted Tuesday in an article in the New Yorker magaziner as saying a study of various counties in Illinois showed "the death rate for baby girls (but not boys) born during the months when nitrate levels were high was 5.5 per thousand, as compared with 2.5 per thousand when nitrate levels were low."

Gelperin said the study was conducted in and around Decatur, Ill., where high levels of nitrates seeped into the city's water supply from nearby cornfields.

How To Halt Carpet Shading

Shading is an apparent change of color tone that sometimes appears here and there in a carpet or rug, resulting from the pressure of feet, pressing the tufts in different directions.

Light reflects in varying degrees from these tufts. Solid color carpets and those with wide expanse of color show shading more than patterned styles. Also, shading is more evident in level-surface types than in textured surfaces.

The better tufts are kept in order — going in the direction of the pile lay — the less shading there will be. Run your sweeper and vacuum cleaner with the direction of the pile. Small rugs also help to protect heavily used sections. Professional cleaning often proves a cure for shading.

Carpet Fluff

The balls of fluff you find on your carpet or in your vacuum bag are merely loose bits of yarn left in the carpet during manufacture. Some yarns tend to shed microscopic fibers throughout their lives. Fluff does not affect the life or quality of your carpet. Every tuft is intact.

Reception At Art Center Follows Couple's Marriage

Patricia M. Blamey of San Jose became the bride of Leo L. Slattery of San Jose in a Sunday ceremony at Mission San Raphael Arcangel in San Rafael.

Faith Blamey was her sister's honor attendant. The bridesmaids were the bridegroom's sister, Patricia Slattery of San Rafael, the bride's sister, Laura Blamey of Sacramento, and Marilyn Munoz and Cora Jane Basler, both of Sacramento.

Paul Cheetham of San Rafael served as best man. The ushers were the bridegroom's brothers, Mike Slattery of San Jose, Tim Slattery of San Rafael, and also Tom Mueller of San Rafael and Ellis Blamey Jr. of Sacramento, the bride's brother.

A reception followed at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. After a wedding trip to Carmel and Southern California the couple will live in San Jose.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis J. Blamey of Sacramento, was graduated from McClatchey High School, Sacramento City College and San Jose State College. She is a teacher in San Jose. She is also the sister of Thomas Blamey of Sacramento.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Slattery of San Rafael are parents of Leo. He attended Marin Catholic High School and the College of Marin and is a San Jose State College graduate. He is employed with H. J. Heinz Co. in Hayward.

Dreams Coming True In New Auditorium

A longtime dream will come true Saturday — two dreams, in fact.

For years and years, Marin devotees of the theater arts have dreamed of having an auditorium in the county large enough and with proper facilities for staging major theatrical and musical events.

For years and years, Marin promoters of tourist business have dreamed of having a hall big enough for major conventions.

BOTH DREAMS WILL be realized in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building, which will open Saturday night with a social hour followed by a concert by soprano Dorothy Kirsten and the Marin Symphony Orchestra.

After considerable backing and filling, county supervisors pushed ahead for completion of the auditorium with 2,000 seats -- of which 1,288 will fold into a moveable wall when it is desired to clear a hall for banquets or convention exhibits.

The facilities are the most modern: seating, lighting, acoustical controls, equipment for quick change of stage settings. Even the orchestra pit goes up and down, so that it can become an extension of the stage when that is desirable.

For convention or banquet use, the 1,288 folding seats simply fold into the moveable wall, which then clears a 130-by-75 foot flat-floored room, leaving an 800-seat auditorium.

THE BUILDING THUS fills the two dreams. It does not fill a third dream — that of veterans' organizations of a building which would provide them with meeting rooms.

The two-dream realization did not come easily. Representatives of veterans were incensed when the 1965 board of supervisors decided to go the theater-convention hall route. And — as with everything — the cost escalated considerably.

A special veterans' memorial tax levied by the county raised three-quarters of a million dollars over the years toward the project. The state added parimutuel funds earmarked for veterans' memorial buildings. When the auditorium plans were presented in 1965, it was thought these two sources would nearly finance the construction, then estimated at $2,881,700 for a 3,000-seat building. The current figure is $3,159,000 for a 2,000-seat building. Marin taxpayers have to make up most of the difference.

AS THE COST increased, the design also changed. Frank Lloyd Wright's original Civic Center model showed a circular building marked "veterans' auditorium." The sketch that accompanied preliminary plans in 1965 showed one end flattened out and extended upward for the stage. Later, that became a flat furface plus a series of what look like silos or grain elevators, and that end faces Highway 101. This has brought much unflattering comment. Perhaps the county will have to fall back on Wright's oft-quoted advice: "When an architect makes a mistake, he can only plant vines."

But the interior of the building is luxurious, attractive, and as we said before, includes the most modern facilities. How they all work out, we'll find out Saturday night.

We're looking forward to the opening — and to the attractions to follow — wth high hope.

CAPITOL REPORT

Increase in Non-Producers Brings Bigger Tax Bite

By RUS WALTON

SACRAMENTO — Brace yourself. Your state taxes will be going up next year.

Not just $100 million. More like $250 million to $300 million. That's what it's going to take to get state government out of debt and fund its next year's operations — and that amount doesn't include the increase in state revenues from withholding income taxes.

Some of that money will come from increased "sin" taxes — on cigarettes and tobacco, alcoholic beverages, various amusements. Some of it may come from an "adjustment" in the state income tax. They may even close a few loopholes and come up with a "minimum" income tax. Whatever, state taxes are going up.

PART OF THE PROBLEM is this: relatively speaking, a diminishing number of working people (producers) are carrying a growing number of non-working people (non-producers).

The term non-producer does not refer to tax dodgers. They're something else. Non-producers refers to individuals under 18 years of age and over 65. It also refers to sizeable blocs within the 19-64 age groups: the increasing number receiving public assistance, the increasing number of government employes at all levels, and the increasing number of young people who are going on to get a higher education.

Except for those who could work and won't, those who should work and don't, the term "non-producer" is not used in a derogatory sense.

A review of trends during the past 20 years will show what's happened.

SINCE 1950, the state's total population has alost doubled. In those same 20 years, the number of persons under 18 increased 2.5 times and the number over 65 more than doubled. In 1950, about 6.7 million producers provided for 3.8 million non-producers. Now, in 1971, 11.5 million producers must provide for 8.5 million.

To put it another way, in 1950 there were 1.8 producers for each non-producer. Today, the ratio is about 1.3 to 1.

FOR ONE THING, the average daily attendance in California public schools (kindergarten-junior college) has almost tripled since 1950. And, the amount of tax money for the schools in 1970 was just about 6.5 times what it was in 1950.

For another thing, the number of persons on public assistance has more than tripled since 1950. In 1950, with 7.7 per cent unemployment, one out of every 20 Californians received some form of public assistance. In 1970, with 7 per cent unemployed, close to one out of every 10 received public assistance. The total costs for those programs multiplied by almost 10 from 1950 to 1970 because of increasing caseloads, higher individual payments, and added programs such as Medi-Cal.

One other indicator: the growth of government as measured by the number of persons on the public payroll in California, at all levels. In 1950 there were 533,000 government employes. In 1970, the total was 1.425 million, not counting military personnel.

THESE ARE JUST a few of the reasons why the total tax take has gone from $4.8 billion in 1950 to more than $28 billion in 1970. On a straight per capita cost that was an increase form $461 in 1950 to $1,454 in 1970.

There's a more valid way to compute the growing burden of government. Figure it on a "per potential producer" basis. Pro-rate the cost among those from 19 to 65 years of age who work and earn and pay the taxes.

Even including those in the 19-65 age groups who might be non-producers (in school, on welfare, on government payrolls) the cost of government to the potential producer soared from $727 in 1950 to $2,577 in 1970.

It's a rough problem, one which can best be solved — not by expanding the cost and size of government, but by freemen expanding the economy, creating more jobs . . . and more producers.

RISE Correcting Paper Bin Problems

On Sept. 20, a letter was published in your paper stating that RISE (Redwood International Student Exchange) was neglecting its paper bin. This is not so; we are now correcting the problem.

The bin was taken care of by two boys this past summer. Although they ignored their job somewhat (for which they were paid) it has had little effect on the present situation. We have received more paper than can be efficiently handled. This was caused by the fact that we can only have one bin at a time. The salvage company must be given a day or two notice and excess paper accumulates before the bin can be emptied.

A shelter will soon be built to house any future overflow of paper. So please keep the paper coming, as it goes for scholarships to foreign students.

Revolutionists' Roles In Prison Violence

I am appalled at the bleeding hearts, do-gooders and segments of the mass communications media trying to make a martyr out of convict George Jackson. I suggest that he received exactly what he asked for. If anyone can be blamed for his actions, I would suggest it would be his parents. The best place to find out what kind of person he was is from his own book and writing in the underground press. The news magazine Review of the News quotes some of these sources as follows: "I can't be satisfied with myself until I am Communist man, revolutionary man." Also, he is quoted as writing "I'm an internationalist, Marxist, Leninist, Maoist admirer of the Cuban revolution, the Vietnamese revolution, and the world's workers'-people's revolution."

And speaking of revolution, Tom Hayden, founder of the SDS, told a rally in Sacramento in November, 1970, and again according to Review of the News, that "the public must be educated to understand the great jail break that is coming." Further, he is quoted as saying "the revolutionary movement is spreading from the Tombs of New York to the prisons of California. . . . Penitentiaries are the birthplace and the hardening place of the new revolutionary leadership."

How significant this is in the light of the events of the past month or so and the subsequent determined efforts of the media to play down the conspiratorial links between these same events. It has been said that history repeats itself, and in this I sense a similarity to the Russia of 1916-1923; or do I hear someone muttering with his head in the sand "it can't happen here"?

World Citizenship Fully Constitutional

In taking exception to the action of our San Anselmo City Council in its "mundialization" resolution, part of which refers to our (as yet symbolic) status as "world citizens", Mrs. Susan Tennler is quoted as saying that "dual citizenship is expressly prohibited by the United States Constitution."

The simple answer to Mrs. Tennler is that the Constitution (and its several amendments) does not prohibit, expressly or otherwise, dual citizenship. In fact, where it speaks of citizenship (in Article IV and the 5th Amendment) it makes it clear that we are dual citizens — of our state and of the United States.

I happen to believe (and it is a belief widely held by students of government) that our Constitution is one of the more glorious achievements of civilized men; and this because of the "invention" of federalism which permits me to be, simultaneously, a citizen of San Anselmo, of Marin County, of California, of the United States, of the MMWD, and ultimately, I hope, a citizen of the world, legally as well as symbolically.

There is, of course, another kind of "dual citizenship" which is practically universally prohibited, and logically so. This prohibition is that you may not exercise citizenship rights in more than one place at the same time. Mrs. Tennler (a resident of Greenbrae) cannot be a citizen of San Anselmo while being a citizen elsewhere, for it she were she could have more than one vote for the same man or issue. But this has nothing to do with world citizenship which is simply the extension of the principle of federalism.

Whales And Dolphins Deserve Protection

The humpback whale's plaintive song will soon be forever stilled. One hundred and twenty-five times each day, on an average, a whale is located and killed with an explosive harpoon. In 1970 alone, Japanese whalers took about 200,000 dolphins and porpoises, and as the whales are irreplaceably decimated, there will be increasing numbers of dolphins and porpoises slaughtered. We are now informed that the American tuna fishermen in this last year alone have killed approximately 250,000 porpoises (three types of porpoises that feed on the same fish as the tuna) and that the Japanese tuna fisherman have killed a similar number.

None of the by-products from these cetaceans are essential. Substitutes are readily available for cat food, mink food, cosmetics, etc. But more important, science hasn't begun to tap the dimensions of their intelligence as yet. Some think it will take a computer to keep up with them. The complexity of their brains (compares favorably with man) as well as the sophistication of their patterns of communications add to the mounting evidence. But most important of all, they are harmless, friendly, gentle creatures who have much to teach us, especially in the way they cooperate and help each other. If man is to regain his sense of community with the rest of life, rather than the current sense of separation and alientation due to his desire to control, I can think of no more natural "reentry" experience than the study of and empathy with the smaller cetacean, the dolphin . . .

The strongly-worded Marine Mammals Protection Bill of Harris and Pryor (S1315,HR6553) is desperately needed as is the Senate version of the resolution requesting the secretary of state to call for a 10-year moratorium on the killing of whales (SF115,HF706). The House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries is now holding hearings on marine legislation and they should be informed of your concern as should your congressmen . . .

Nixon Walking Tight-Rope On Delicate Problem Of China

WASHINGTON — The United Nations has become for the Nixon administration a Chinese prayer wheel. As the wheel turns (no such superstitions tolerated in the People's Republic of China), the petitions are cast in and you wait with what patience you can muster in the hope the petitions will be granted.

The belief, as Sec. of State William P. Rogers prepares his encounter with the general assembly, is that both American resolutions will pass. One would seat the People's Republic in the general assembly and also give the place on the security council presently held by Chiang Kai-shek's China to Peking. The other resolution would make an important question, requiring a two-thirds vote, of retaining Taiwan in the general assembly as a separate state.

THIS MAY BE the only possible compromise, given the tangled emotions both in the U.N. and in this country over the China question. Yet it would seem the worst of both worlds. Peking will never accept membership with Taiwan present as an independent nation. And the wrath of Chiang and his right-wing followers in this country will have no bounds.

The logic, from the administration's perspective, is that the United States will have demonstrated its willingness to see Peking seated and on the security council with the power of the veto. This is a big step from the annual struggle to bar "Red China" by making membership an important question. And sooner or later — next year or the year after — Peking will come in.

This last, to say the least, is doubtful, since the "two Chinas" proposal is for Peking the No. 1 obstacle to any real improvement in relations with the United States. A massive campaign is being directed in China against any solution compromising the status of Taiwan as an integral part of China's territory.

THE CONSEQUENCES for President Nixon's trip to Peking could be serious. As the exchanges go back and forth between the two capitals, the date for the journey is being pushed farther away. It is now being said it will not occur until early in the new year. That would put it far enough beyond the China debate so that some of the sting of a "two Chinas" victory would be drawn.

Since Henry Kissinger's mission to Peking, Premier Chou En-lai has staked out the toughest possible bargaining position with which to confront President Nixon. Point by point he has built up the barriers against concessions of any sort. Wide circulation is being given by Peking, both in China and among friendly nations that question Chou's motives, of a brief declaration by Mao Tse-tung of what negotiation means.

This comes from the wartime effort to bring Chiang and Mao together to defeat the Japanese. Negotiation is simply another weapon for overcoming the enemy. Among the thoughts of Chairman Mao this doctrine rates high.

THE PRESIDENT is undertaking a difficult tight-rope act over the chasm of the deep animosities between the two Communist giants. He proclaimed last May a breakthrough in the strategic arms limitation talks. On Sept. 30 Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will come to Washington to sign with Secretary Rogers two agreements, one covering consultations in the event of the accidental firing of a nuclear missile and the second the joint construction and operation of a satellite system that would make such consultations instantaneous and fail-proof.

This will cause no rejoicing in Peking. It has long been evident that a strong motive for Moscow in easing tensions with the West — the Berlin agreement, progress in the SALT talks, the expressed desire for mutual troop reduction in Europe — is to show strength in the East. The figure of a million Russian troops on the Chinese border — it is nearer a half-million — with the very great cost that must go into the installation for such a force in that climate is a measure of Soviet concern.

Success for Mr. Nixon, even comparative success, will put him in the history books as a statesman of the first order. That is a goal the Nixon of 20 years, even 10 years, ago could never have dreamed of.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Change In China Policy Not First For U.S.A.

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

As the United States leads the way toward world acceptance of the Chinese Communists and Mainland China's membership in the United Nations, it launches both itself and the U.N. on uncharted seas.

As regards the United Nations, it invites into membership a regime which never has renounced its advocacy of violent revolution, and thereby either rejects or sacrifices on the altar of reality a founding principle of the United Nations, which is the peaceful settlement of international disputes by negotiation.

As for the United States, the move obviously is representative of President Nixon's hopes for stability in Asia and therefore a contribution toward world peace.

WHETHER THESE HOPES are to materialize or whether the United States is to continue a policy of what one writer has called a "policy of deliberately contrived ambiguity" must depend on the outcome of questions still unanswered.

Some of these are discussed in the current issue of Foreign Affairs by Jerome Alan Cohen, Harvard Law School professor of East Asian legal studies.

He traces some of the turnabouts in U.S. policy toward China, and especially the island of Formosa, from the allied Cairo declaration of 1943 to the present.

THE CAIRO DECLARATION specifically mentioned Formosa as among those territories seized by Japan that should be returned to China.

The Potsdam declaration and the Japanese surrender terms agreed.

The U.S. position remained unchanged through the Communist victory on the mainland and the retreat of Chiang Kai-shek forces to Formosa.

In 1950, President Harry S Truman declared Formosa Chinese territory and declared the United States would "not pursue a course which will lead to involvement in the civil conflict in China."

At that time, the United States fully expected a Communist conquest of Formosa.

IT WAS A POLICY which remained unchanged until the start of the Korean war in June, 1950, when Truman suddenly declared occupation of Formosa by "Communist forces" would be a direct threat to the security of the Pacific and American forces. He then assigned the U.S. 7th fleet to the protection of the island.

Accompanying this reversal of policy was another—the status of Formosa, Truman declared, would have to wait upon restoration of security in the Pacific.

Thus, in one breath, he lifted the Chinese civil war to the status of international conflict and threw overboard an international agreement on Formosa's relationship to the mainland.

It was a policy replete with contradictions and set the stage for today's new set of contradictions—in which the United States moves toward establishment of diplomatic relations with Communist China and at the same time promises to honor its defense commitments to Chaiang Kai-shek on Formosa.

One or the other would seem to be an impossibility.

ART BUCHWALD

Autumn Sunday Afternoon In Football Addict's Home

WASHINGTON — "Harry . . . Harry will you stop looking at that stupid football game and listen to me? There's a very suspicious man lurking in front of the house . . . What do you mean find out what he wants? You find out what he wants . . . You're the man in this house . . . Harry, I think he's getting into your car . . . Yes, he is getting into your car . . . Let's call the police.

"How can you say that, Harry? Even if the car is insured you should at least make some effort to stop a thief . . . I don't care if it is fourth down and one to go, you can't let somebody just up and steal your car . . . Look, Harry, he's getting out now and opening the hood . . . He's probably trying to get it started . . . I think you should at least yell at him . . .

"ALL RIGHT, so the Redskins made a first down . . . But if you just come to the window . . . Look; He's got the motor started . . . Please, Harry, call the police . . . What? . . . It will ruin your afternoon if the police come . . . Yes, I know you have your heart set on watching the game, but what are we going to do for a car? . . . I'm not distracting you . . . How can you say I always think of ways of interrupting you when you're watching a football game . . . Am I supposed to let someone steal your car without telling you . . . Harry, you're getting up from your chair . . . What happened? . . . Oh, it's a commercial . . . No, the car's gone now . . . The man drove it off . . . Are you going to report it? After the Kansas City game which ends at 7 o'clock? . . . Well, you've certainly made a contribution to law and order today . . .

"All right, I promise I won't bother you again . . . Go back to your game . . .

"HARRY, THERE'S A CAB pulling up to the house . . . Harry, it's our son Jimmy who has been in the Navy for two years . . . I didn't even know he was back in this country . . . Oh, my goodness, he looks so brown and tall . . . Come Harry, let's greet him at the door . . . Harry, you don't want to greet your son after he fought for his country? . . .

"Oh you can't leave the set now because the Cardinals have just fumbled? . . . No, don't worry, I'll ask Jimmy to come in the side door so he won't disturbe you . . . Why are you yelling at me . . . Be mad at the Navy. They're the ones who let Jimmy come home on Sunday.

"Harry, I know you told me not to bother you, and I've let you alone for the entire quarter, but something has come up I think you should know about . . . Our daughter Gertrude has just called from the hospital and she's about to give birth to a baby . . . Will you stop screaming at me? . . . I know it isn't a big thing to have a baby, Harry . . . Women have them all the time. Ordinarily it isn't worth interrupting a football game to tell you about it, but I would like to remind you of one thing, Harry . . . Gertrude isn't married! . . . This could be a very traumatic experience for a 15-year-old girl . . . Yes Harry, I'm as sorry as you are that Bragg missed the field goal . . . it's very wet on that astroturf . . . Well I'll go to the hospital myself. I'm sure Gertrude will understand . . .

"I'M BACK, HARRY . . . Gertrude had a little boy . . . What game are you watching now? . . . The San Diego Chargers. What happened to the Redskins? They won? . . . Isn't that wonderful . . . Then your afternoon wasn't a complete waste after all.

"Harry I've decided to leave you . . . No, I can't wait until San Diego loses the ball . . . I wish to discuss it now . . . I've given it a lot of thought and I've decided that life is just passing me by . . . Don't turn the volume up, Harry . . . It won't do you any good. I'VE MADE MY DECISION, HARRY . . . HARRY, TURN DOWN THE SET . . . NO, HARRY, THERE IS NO SENSE TALKING ABOUT IT TOMORROW . . . WHY NOT? BECAUSE TOMORROW NIGHT DETROIT IS PLAYING THE MINNESOTA VIKINGS."

Better Fire Protection Discussed

A group of about 25 Corte Madera residents, representing homeowners' groups, gathered last night in the wake of a disastrous fire last week which destroyed two houses and damaged a third, to discuss the ton's fire protection.

Meeting at the home of Robert Flahive at 18 Endeavor Drive, the residents mapped out plans to convince the town council that more paid firemen are needed and that citizens are willing to pay for them.

The group plans first to attend a town council meeting on Oct. 4 and then to gather signatures on petitions and finally to work toward increasing the fire department next year at budget time.

From Flahive the group learned that Corte Madera has only five paid firemen (as compared to 15 in neighboring Larkspur) and that the town's two fire stations are unmanned after 6 p.m. six days a week as well as all day Sunday.

Corte Madera has one of the worst ratings in Southern Marin from the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau, according to Flahive, and savings on home insurance rates could help offset increased fire department costs.

A tentative petition that had been drawn up suggested that five more firemen be hired at an estimated cost of $75,000 a year to the town.

Flahive also said that he had learned that two trucks first responded to the fire last week but that firemen had to leave the fire to go down to the station on the east side of town to get a third truck.

The group also agreed to ask the council to man the town's two fire stations 24 hours a day.

It was also decided that in the period before next year's budget session an effort will be made to distribute literature informing residents of the facts about fire protection in the town.

"The volunteer concept is no longer viable for a town the size of Corte Madera," one man said, referring to the 17 volunteers which the department now has. "We have to be willing to pay the price," he added, asking for more full-time men.

Rumors Of Meir-Nixon Session In Works; Mideast Again Tense

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Two Israeli newspapers reported today that a senior Israeli official will try to arrange a meeting between Prime Minister Golda Meir and President Nixon to consider the tense Middle East situation but Mrs. Meir's office denied the reports.

In Washington, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said there are profoundly disturbing indications the Middle East ceasefire is gravely threatened. He called for swiftly furnishing Israel with $500 million in military credits, half of them for F4 Phantom jet fighter bombers.

Jackson said there was increasing evidence of extensive Egyptian training missions aimed at perfecting operational plans for an invasion across the Suez Canal involving as many as 100,000 Egyptian troops. His speech was for delivery on the Senate floor.

The question of more U.S. Phantoms for Israel preoccupied the Israeli press, and the English language Jerusalem Post again accused the United States of using the Phantoms to pressure Israel into making more major concessions to win an interim settlement that would reopen the Suez Canal.

In connection with this, the newspapers Davar and Haaretz reported that Simha Dinitz, 42, one of Mrs. Meir's political advisers, was trying to arrange a Meir-Nixon meeting. On Wednesday, several newspapers reported U.S. pressure for an interim settlement by the end of 1971 "almost at any price."

Egypt appeared to be turning more and more to the United Nations as the forum for presenting its views. Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad, en route to New York, told newsmen in Paris that this is the "decisive year" for winning peace in the Middle East. He said it was up to the United Nations to do this.

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said the Egyptian diplomatic campaign at the U.N. will win world public opinion for the Arab cause even if it achieves little else. It said this in turn would help isolate Israel and "unveil the U.S. role of constant support for the Zionist aggression."

Little Princess Named Martha

OSLO (UPI)—Norway's little princess, born Wednesday night will be given the name Martha Louise, the royal palace announced today.

King Olav V returned today from a two week private visit in the United States. He was met at the airport by his son, Crown Prince Harald, now himself a proud father.

A couple of hours later, the king met with the cabinet at the royal palace and formally announced that his daughter-in-law, Crown Princess Sonja, had given birth to a princess.

The child will be christened in four or five weeks by the Bishop of Oslo.

Mitchell In Support Of Bond Measure For College

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell has announced his endorsement of the Marin Community College District's $16.7 million measure to go to the voters Nov. 2.

Mitchell said his analysis of the proposition showed it to be the most feasible means of financing the north campus in Novato and completion of the College of Marin Kentfield campus.

Such a bond issue would have a maximum tax rate of 12 cents per $100 assessed valuation and a low of about three cents during its 25-year-old life, he said.

The dollar impact would be about $9 per year for the owner of a $33,000 home, he said.

The alternative, which will be used if the measure fails at the polls, is the "pay-as-you-go" means of financing construction, a tax levy.

Though applied over fewer years, it would cost the owner of a $33,000 home about $192 a year in additional taxes, he estimated.

"In my opinion, a major capital improvement program should not be paid for solely by the present property owners but, rather, the cost be shared by future property owners . . ." he said.

Off Payroll For Politicking

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. Edwin W. Edwards, D-La., won't be getting his $3,541.66 monthly pay as a congressman for awhile.

Edwards took himself off the congressional payroll effective Sept. 8 while he runs for governor of Louisiana. An aide said he tried to get himself removed from the payroll as far back as July 30.

But the request was so unusual that House staff members had to seek advice on how to proceed. Finally Edwards was advised to ask the House for a vote, and when Congress returned from a summer recess this month, his request was approved without objection.

When colleges are insession, the town of Amherst, Mass., population 21,000, has more than 21,035 students in the area.

SCULPTURAL CANVASES — Artist Donald M. Smith captures the poetical flight of birds in this relief painting which is included in his one-man show of white-on-white paintings at Shorebirds Gallery until Oct. 2.

ART REVIEW

Donald Smith's White World: Part Painting, Part Sculpture

By ADA GARFINKEL

The current scene at Shorebirds Gallery in Belvedere is the white, white world of artist Donald Smith. Partly painted, partly sculptured, the concerns of his wall hangings are figurative: birds, flowers, balloons, animals, and one called "Reclining Woman."

Smith, a former aeronautical engineer, derives his three-dimensional configurations by manipulating strips of paint-impregnated cloth into desired shapes full of ridges, gullies and scallops which catch and deflect light.

The artist is at his best where his subject matter calls for overall use of the format as it does in "Birds" and in "Balloons." In these, the implication of space and air, the diagonal axes of birds in flight and in the slender, taut strings of the balloons, all convey airiness, loftiness, and weightlessness in a panoramic sweep of sky.

There is humor in a gay and playful frog ensconced in wavy fronds, and a nicely articulated rococo quality in the floral subjects.

Where the work doesn't quite come off is in interaction between figure and ground, where the figure is too centrally placed and is perhaps, somewhat small for its total space, as in "Horse."

A nice touch is added to the exhibit by the vaulted redwood ceiling, soft spotlights and white panelled walls, and Harold Pepperell's sandbox filled with rock birds mounted on weathered tree stumps.

Gallery hours are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Smith's show ends Oct. 2.

Innocent Plea By Suspect To Two Charges

Paul Edward LeClair, 20, of San Anselmo has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to charges of selling marijuana and hashish.

Preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 5.

LeClair was arrested Sept. 8 after he allegedly sold the drugs to an undercover agent.

Two other San Anselmo residents, arrested after agents followed LeClair to their house after the alleged drug sale, are charged with possessing marijuana and hashish and possessing marijuana for sale.

James Franklin Reel, 22, and Martha Ann Martini, 28, have pleaded innocent and have had a preliminary hearing set, also for Oct. 5.

Bicycle Maker Can't Keep Up

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A British bicycle manufacturer says that his firm can't produce the two-wheelers fast enough to keep up with the U.S. cycling craze.

"We could sell twice as many bicycles if we had them to sell," Thomas E. Barnsley, board chairman and managing director of Raleigh Industries, Ltd., Nottingham, England, said Tuesday.

Barnsley was visiting here in advance of next month's big British week promotion.

Jail Time On Burglary

Robert Dean Allen, 26, of Fairfax, has been sentenced to nine months in Marin County Jail for burglary.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court also placed Allen on probation for two years and gave him credit for time already spent in jail.

Allen was charged with burglarizing the residence of Alex J. Ker of 370 Highland Drive, San Rafael, Sept. 5, 1970, and the residence of Edward Steele of 90 Irwin Street, San Rafael, Sept. 16, 1970.

A codefendant in the case, Stephen Robert Carrino, 22, of San Rafael, was sentenced in January.

Lucas Valley Man Sentenced In Drug Case

HONG KONG (UPI) — A California menswear salesman from Marin County has been sentenced to four years in prison on charges of trafficking in dangerous drugs.

Richard Edward Fagan, 24, of Lucas Valley, earlier pleaded innocent. He said he had no knowledge that the camera case he brought here from Bangkok contained 688 grams of heroin worth about $3,300.

"I don't accept the evidence that Fagan did not know what he was carrying," said Judge Frank Addison. "He was knowingly engaged in bringing drugs into Hong Kong."

The judge also rejected Fagan's plea for mitigation of sentence.

Defense counsel, R-N.R. Burnett, said Fagan had injured his back and neck in a car accident in December, 1967. He said imprisonment might adversely affect his injuries.

CORTE MADERA CREEK CHANNEL NEARS COMPLETION

Workmen of the Elmer J. Freethy Co. of El Cerrito pour the final section of concrete wall (center) as others "backfill" the Corte Madera Creek channel in Kentfield with the aid of a tractor loader. Yesterday's completion of the wall was a major step in this year's phase of the flood control project which is due for completion at the end of next month. Construction this year took the controversial project from a point just below the Laurel Avenue Bridge in Kentfield to a point 200 feet downstream of the Ross Post Office. Housing Reform Reactions Mixed

By DAVID DIETZ

A set of newly proposed housing reforms was salve to some Novato residents but uncomforting to others last night at a public hearing.

The reforms, contained in a preliminary report prepared for the city council by the Novato Housing Committee, met with varied reaction from a gathering of public officials, representatives of homeowners groups, businessmen and private citizens.

There were those who were wary of change and outright worried about the impact of some of the suggested reforms on ballooning tax bills. On the other hand, many were sympathetic to sweeping alterations in city housing policy, coupling their endorsements with additional proposals.

Jerry A. Cannon, committee cochairman, told the gathering in the Novato Community House that the committee's hope was to reverse what he called a trend that sees Novato "increasingly becoming a bedroom community where only the affluent can live."

Through such techniques as density point and bonus systems for developers, clustering and other land use ideas, the panel seeks a housing mix of both price and style, together with low and moderate income units scattered throughout the community.

These proposals, coupled with dozens of others aimed at what the report calls a "viable, socially broad community," were developed over a nine-month period by the 14-member committee, due to report soon to the city council with the final document.

Last night's session was the first test of public response.

Most of the controversy centered on a proposal that the city amend its zoning ordinance to require low and moderate income housing in large developments and to enable granting of development bonuses to builders for including such units.

"I guess it's a value judgment on what kind of community you want," Gail Wilhelm, committee member and city planning commissioner, said to critics, who feared required low cost housing would drive up property taxes and that developers should be denied any encouragement.

Both Mrs. Wilhelm and Cannon — she to guffaws from the audience — viewed the financial sacrifice as an act of patriotism. "I look at it in terms of social responsibility," Cannon said. "It's something," he added, "I can do for my country."

"I've made a value judgment myself and I'm prejudiced," said Michael Sweely, a resident of Marin Highlands. "I like the upper-middle income people I live with. I want my daughter to go to a school which I choose."

While saying he was willing to help those in need of housing who already work or live in Novato, Vance Terry of Marin Country Club Estates feared an influx of persons from outside the area, creating a burden on city services.

"Don't let them come in droves," he pleaded.

"We want a mix," Mrs. Wilhelm said. "We want a diversity and we feel very strongly against overloading with low and moderate income persons."

Speakers endorsing the report spotlighted a need for shelter for the elderly and divorced and widowed mothers fighting a losing battle against the spiraling economy. They said the need for social reform went hand in hand with housing changes and hoped for a change in national priorities so more money could be funneled into housing.

Strict Preservation Of Seashore Urged

No clamming, beach combing and collection of wildlife should be allowed along the Point Reyes seashore coastline and esteros, a marine biologist and a state senator declared yesterday during an all-day hearing on the Point Reyes Seashore preliminary master plan. (Another seashore hearing story, page 1.)

Dr. Gordon Chan, marine biology instructor at the College of Marin, called for an "immediate moratorium on all forms of fishing except possibly line and pole fishing", including collection of specimens from tidepools and beachcombing for driftwood.

From the office of U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston came assurances that the National Park Service will give immediate protection to the seashore from environmental damage, while master plan deliberations are going on.

Cranston, in a press release, said park officials plan to restrict public use in areas like Tomales Point, Point Reyes Marine Reserve, Double Point and parts of the esteros. Such restrictions would need approval by the California Department of Fish and Game because the state still holds fishing rights along the shoreline. But Cranston said park officials see little difficulty in reaching agreement with the state.

State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, appeared in person to endorse Dr. Chan's recommendation. Behr said the state law permitting fishing, and marine life removal should be repealed at the Seashore, and a marine sanctuary established along and off the seashore coast.

Almost all speakers pleaded for a citizens advisory committee to watch the park planning and development each step of the way. They also demanded the banning of cars and pavement from the Seashore interior to prevent another Yosemite or a Yellowstone.

The overwhelming demand for preservation of nature prompted these statements from Joseph C. Rumburg Jr., director of the western region for the National Park Service:

"There is a clear indication that you want much more conservation than we had ever thought of before," said Rumburg. "We will be responsive to your concerns."

He said he senses distrust of the Park Service by the people and realizes that communication with the people must be improved. "We must be more responsive. Everything we do from now on will be with citizen involvement."

After the seven hour hearing, Rumburg and other park officials gave these assurances:

1. Rumburg will recommend to the Secretary of Interior the appointment of a citizens advisory committee to work with park officials on the planning and development of the seashore. He asked the county to submit names of persons who would serve on the advisory committee.

2. He will get to work as quickly as possible on a system of public transportation for both internal circulation within the Seashore and to provide access to and from the seashore. Because of slow budgetary processes, Rumburg warned that congressional appropriation for such a transportation system cannot be expected for about three years.

3. John L. Sansing, superintendent of the seashore, said he intends to cut off the road that leads to Limantour Spit before it reaches the spit so that motorists will stay away from the spit because of the long walk.

Many conservation spokesmen, particularly Jerry Friedman of the Environmental Action Committee of West Marin, wanted the road to Limantour Spit rerouted to Santa Maria Beach to the south.

One issue on which park officials held firm was the proposed improvement of Muddy Hollow Road, which would provide a connection from the Laguna Ranch northward to the road to Point Reyes lighthouse.

G. Douglass Nadeau, captain of the park service planning team, said that without this connection, Inverness would have to serve as a main entrance. This, said Nadeau, would be more damaging than the opening of Muddy Hollow Road, where cuts and fills have existed for a century. "The cuts cannot be obliterated so we might as well use it," said Nadeau.

Marin County and most conservation groups wanted the national seashore designation changed to a national park so that retention of natural areas would be the primary aim.

Rumburg said he will not recommend a change in designation "because I think we can give adequate protection under the Seashore designation." Furthermore, a change in designation would cause problems, he explained, because Point Reyes seashore was established with dairying as an acceptable use, whereas no dairying is allowed in a national park.

Yesterday's hearing opened with statements read by spokesmen for Senators Cranston and John F. Tunney. They called for expansion of the wilderness area to include shorelines, esteros, tidelands and other natural areas.

Both called for phasing out the private automobile from the seashore and development of alternate transportation methods to bring people to and from the seashore.

Supervisor Michael Wornum presented Marin County's official position, asking for a citizens committee, exclusion of private automobiles, changing the seashore to a national park, and using public transit for access to the seashore and for internal circulation.

Margaret B. Azevedo, Marin County Planning Commissioner, and one of the founders of the Point Reyes National Seashore Foundation, urged the federal government to provide matching funds to help Marin Transit Systems Inc. of Marin City start a shuttle bus demonstration project within the Seashore, as suggested by Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste.

Brown Act Ignored By New Agency

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

OAKLAND — Members of the Metropolitan Transportation Commission have been conducting committee meetings without public notice, and the chairman of the commission yesterday advised complaining newsmen that it had no intention of providing public notices required by the state's antisecret meeting law.

Alameda County Supervisor Joseph P. Bort told newsmen after the commission's monthly meeting in the County Administration Building that "we're not going to spend our money to accommodate you."

He declared that the Ralph M. Brown Act, which requires written notice of public meetings, amounted to "a subsidy of newspapers."

Newsmen complained to Bort after commissioners received reports from the chairmen of its seven committees on meetings they had held during the past month. One was held in Sacramento, and others were around the Bay Area.

Bort said that the commission's staff was too small to comply with the Brown Act. The staff now consists of an executive director and one secretary.

Bort nevertheless insisted "there was no intent to evade the Brown Act. You fellows can call us to find out about meetings." He did not suggest how the public would know when to telephone the commission, if it received no notice of its meetings.

Bort also said he doubted "the Brown Act covers this." The act covers committees as well as regular meetings of the full governing board of public agencies.

The chairman of the commission's public information committee, Albert W. Gatov of Kentfield, asserted that to comply with the Brown Act would require sending notice to 122 newspapers in the nine-county region. The act, however, requires that written notice for such committee meetings go only to those requesting they be notified of any such meeting. About a half dozen newsmen cover the commission.

Bort, apparently irritated by the newsmen, told them that "if you want to make a big issue about it, go ahead. It won't do any good."

Commissioners, approving committee recommendations, voted unanimously to allocate approximately $25,000 a year for a public relations consultant, hire six planners from the Association of Bay Area Governments, and spend $1,000 to try to recruit unemployed space engineers to fill some of the 40 staff positions expected by mid-1973.

Its next regular meeting was set at 9:45 a.m. Oct. 27 in the County Administration Building, 1221 Oak Street.

South Develops Wrong Suit To Claim A Five-Diamond Victory

"How can man die better than facing fearful odds?" South quoted as he played today's hand. It might not be as poetic, but the answer is that you don't want your partner to die as an underdog; you want him to live as an overdog. I didn't mention this to South at the time because professional courtesy prevents me from puncturing another poet's balloon.

RUFFS LEAD

South ruffed the opening spade lead, drew trumps with the ace and nine of diamonds and then led a heart from dummy. He would make his contract if East had both the king and queen of hearts or if the six missing hearts broke 3-3.

South would have made his contract if he hadn't waxed poetic, but his actual reference to fearful odds gave East an accurate idea of what was going on. East therefore put in the queen of hearts instead of playing a normal low heart.

THE HERO

Our hero won with the ace of hearts and returned to dummy with the king of clubs to lead another heart toward his jack. This plan failed, of course, and now there was no entry to dummy for the 13th heart.

South eventually had to lose a club trick, and I sent a partner's curse to him by mail the next day. His contract was beyond the reach of bad breaks or treacherous opponents if he had only played it properly to begin with.

WRONG SUIT

South was working on the wrong suit when he tried to develop a heart trick. He should ruff the first spade with a high trump, lead the five of diamonds to dummy's seven and lead the jack of spades, discarding a heart.

West takes the queen of spades and returns a heart to the ace. South leads the eight of diamonds to dummy's nine and returns the ten of spades, discarding his last heart.

A SURE ENTRY

West wins with the ace of spades, but now dummy's nine of spades is good; and the king of clubs is a sure entry to the dummy.

As a celebrated poet once remarked: Perhaps no person can be a poet without a certain unsoundness of mind.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two no-trump (22 to 24 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- J 10 9 2
♥- 6 5 3 2
♦- 9 7
♣- K 8 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three clubs, the Stayman Convention, asking partner to bid a major suit of four or more cards.

If he bids a major suit, you plan to raise to four of that suit; if he bids three diamonds, denying a major, you plan to take him to three no-trump.

New Fire Chief Is Welcomed

The San Rafael Fire Commission has welcomed the new city fire chief, Robert E. Marcucci, and asked him to outline any departmental changes he may want to make for the commission's consideration on Jan. 4.

Secty. Joan Henriksen said the commission, meeting Tuesday, also discussed whether to hire a new battalion chief to replace Marcucci or to have a deputy fire chief, and whether to hire a training director, but took no action.

Dr. Rafael G. Dufficy was appointed chairman of the group, replacing Harry M. Williams, who relinquished the chairmanship for health reasons. Williams was appointed vice chairman.

New Strain Of Winter Barley

PULLMAN, Walsh. (UPI)—Three northwestern experimental stations have developed a new variety of winter barley that will produce yields about 10 per cent higher than present strains.

Dr. James Nielson, director of Washington State University's Agriculture Research Center, said the new variety, called Kamiak, would replace the Hudson strain, "particularly in areas where winter hardiness is required for maximum production."

The new six-row winter barley strain was developed by university experiment stations in Washington, Idaho and Oregon.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court ordered a warrant issued for one of the men who failed to appear Tuesday for a preliminary hearing in the case. He set bail on the warrant for Richard Evans Cannings, 28, of no known address, at $50,000.

Cannings, Ellsworth Roy Smith, 24, of no known address, and Earl James Pitchford, 29, of no known address,and Earl James Pitchford, 29, of Lagunitas, are charged with possessing marijuana for sale.

Drug agents said they seized in the raids more than 150 kilos of marijuana.

Obscenity Count Is Dismissed

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)— Obscenity charges were dismissed Tuesday against the former publisher of the Berkeley Barb.

Max Scheer, 55, was arrested in March, 1969 following publication in the Barb of a picture of two men and a woman in an erotic pose.

The charges were dismissed by Municipal Judge George Tyler after Scheer's attorney said his client had cancer and was too ill to stand trial.

Cases Go To Juvenile Court

The cases of two Mill Valley youths arrested Sunday on suspicion of burglary have been transferred to Marin Juvenile Court.

George William Froberg, 19, of 330 Edgewood Avenue, and Warner Bayley Kingsbury, 18, of 8 Magdalena Court, were arrested along with Bruce Anderson Smith, 17, also of 330 Edgewood Avenue.

Smith was booked at juvenile hall. Froberg and Kingsbury were booked at Marin County Jail. The two were charged in Marin Municipal Court with six counts of burglary, but their cases were then transferred to juvenile court.

Mill Valley police said the three were arrested in the Fondue Pot restaurant Sunday. In their car was a banana cream pie police said had been stolen earlier that day in a burglary of the El Paseo Restaurant at 17 Throckmorton Avenue.

Police said the three were also connected with a series of burglaries during the last two months in Mill Valley, including burglaries of the Sequoia Theater, Vogue Cleaners, One-Hour Martinizing Cleaners, Redwood Restaurant, and Hamby's Drive-In.

Panel Reports Mercury Levels In Food Low

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Mercury contaminated animals and fish have not poisoned any Californians, a federal-state task force has reported.

Nevertheless, the panel warned more study is needed on the problem of mercury contamination.

Dr. Ephraim Kahn, head of the task force appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan said Wednesday almost all fish and other food products tested were below the federal danger level of .5 parts per million.

Kahn said mercury contamination was found in fish. But he said the panel did not know whether the mercury concentrations are increasing or how long they have existed.

Inductions Out In 1971 Unless President Orders

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Unless President Richard M. Nixon signs a special executive order along with the draft extension bill now on his desk, no one will be drafted before Dec. 31, an official in the state headquarters of the Selective Service System said today.

Col. Don G. Redpath, information officer, told the Independent-Journal that no quotas have been set for induction during the rest of 1971.

Redpath said the eligible men would continue to receive notices to report for classification and preinduction physical examinations. Only by presidential order could the national draft headquarters in Washington set up quotas and order inductions to resume before Dec. 31, Redpath said.

Welfare Rolls And Costs Skyrocket

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In the biggest annual increase in history, national welfare costs skyrocketed 27 per cent last year and relief rolls increased 17 per cent, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare reported Thursday.

John D. Twiname, administrator of HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service, said welfare costs for the fiscal year ended June 30 totalled $16.3 billion and relief rolls increased to 14.3 million persons.

"These are the biggest annual increases in the history of the program," Twiname said.

But Twiname said that the annual increase for the past fiscal year was offset by a decline for three consecutive months in welfare spending and a two-month reduction of welfare rolls.

"It is too early to call these decreases a trend," said Twiname, "but there is an obvious tightening up in the states."

Twiname said 11 states have cut the level of welfare aid recently in fiscal belt tightening moves, reducing the number of persons eligible for aid. They are Alabama, Arizona, Delaware, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York and Washington.

The government's newest welfare report also disclosed a $3.4 billion annual increase in costs, including $2.2 billion more in direct payments to persons on welfare and $1.2 billion in payments for medical care of the needy.

HEW said welfare costs for the year ending in June, 1968, were $8.9 billion. Doubling since then, costs increased to $10.6 billion in 1969 and $12.9 billion in 1970 before reaching the $16.3 billion mark this year.

While costs were soaring, the average monthly payment to a welfare client rose from $47.20 in June, 1970, to $49.30 in June, 1971, HEW said.

Welfare rolls added 2.1 million persons during the same period.

In the biggest of all welfare programs, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, the annual increase was 23 per cent to 10.2 million persons. Except for a slight drop in West Virginia, all states and the District of Columbia reported increases in needy family clients for the 12-month period.

From May to June this year, needy family rolls swelled in 35 states. The largest increase, 16,000, was in Illinois. Other increases from 5,000 to 7,500 persons were reported in Florida, Mississippi, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Texas. California led the states that trimmed family rolls, dropping 42,700 persons.

HEW said the overall decline in welfare rolls between May and June resulted from increased Social Security benefits that took 24,000 aged persons and 5,000 blind persons off relief. The benefits became effective last January and checks covering the January-April increases were paid in late June.

Because the federal government puts up more than 50 per cent of the nation's welfare costs, it requires monthly accounts from the states on which it bases its reports of trends in welfare.

Pleads Innocent To Marijuana

Virginia Eileen Cowell, 22, of Oakland, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to misdemeanor charges of possessing marijuana and driving under the influence of drugs.

A pretrial conference was set for Oct. 13.

She was arrested by the California Highway Patrol Sept. 14 on Highway 101 on suspicion of possessing narcotics, as well as the other charges, but the narcotics charge was not filed against her.

Officers said they found red capsules and a bag containing suspected marijuana in her car.

Palestinian Threatened In Novato

An unidentified man reportedly threw a copy of yesterday's Independent-Journal at Nayef S. Jaber, 22-year-old student from the Old City of Jerusalem, because of his pro-Israeli views reported in that edition.

Jaber told Novato police he was accosted by two men at Romar Court and Fourth Street as he was walking home at 10 p.m.

Both men spoke in Arabic and told him they had read the story and accused him of talking against other Arabs, Jaber reported.

One of the men threw a copy of the newspaper at him and then the pair left, he said.

There was a notation in Arabic on the newspaper, Jaber said, and he translated it as:

"Don't think you are far from our Palestine organization. We are the 10,000 Arabic (sic) in San Francisco. We read what you give the newspaper about the life in Israel and you will see the answer soon."

Jaber, a student at the College of Marin, who has been in the United States for 11 days, told the police he had never seen either man before.

Severe Fiscal Pinch Faces Hub District

The San Anselmo School District, which appealed unsuccessfully to voters this year for more money, is faced with losing additional thousands of dollars because of unexpected drops in enrollment.

According to Trustee Mary Helen Olive, the decrease has prompted a review of the budget and the number of teacher positions.

The board will take up those matters during a special meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock at Red Hill School.

Based on last year's ADA (average daily attendance) income, the district could lose more than $40,000 in state aid because of the drop in enrollment, she said.

The district's budget, adopted last month, planned on an enrollment of 2,070 students in figuring state income. On Friday, the district's student population stood at 1,978, she said.

The problem is compounded by an increase in kindergarten children with the overall decrease spread over the higher grades.

Meanwhile, the number of kindergarten teachers was reduced by one this year with the position shifted to the district's new and controversial alternative education program.

That program, now in progress, has lumped students of all ages into single classrooms managed by teams of teachers.

Petaluma Girls Are In Good Condition

Two Petaluma girls were reported in good condition today at Petaluma General Hospital with injuries suffered in an accident on Chileno Valley Road, west of Petaluma, Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Injured was the driver, Denise Alger, 16, of 53 Wilson Hill Road, with a left leg injury. Her passenger, Rebecca Boles, 15, of 420 Seventh Street, suffered neck injuries. The California Highway Patrol said the car struck an embankment and overturned.

Appeals Court Rules State Wiretap Legal

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI)— An appeals court has ruled that evidence obtained through wiretaps initiated by local authorities without judicial authorization may be used in state trial courts.

The California 4th District Court of Appeal made the ruling here Wednesday in denying the appeal of Thomas and Rebecca Halpin of Leucadia, who were arrested in an Ontario marijuana seizure last year.

Justice Robert Gardner, rendering the three-judge court's decision in a 12-page opinion, said that the Federal 1968 Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Street act did not apply to the case because the phone call in question was between two points in California and thus was not in interstate commerce.

Giants Jubilant After Breaking Astrodome Jinx

HOUSTON (UPI)—The San Francisco Giants were jubilant in the clubhouse.

They had just overcome two jinxes—that horrible habit of losing indoors which had reached 21 defeats in their last 26 games in the Astrodome and their own batting slump.

Juan Marichal, who would rather pitch on the equator in July than in the Astrodome in September, had just stopped the Houston Astros 3-1 to reduce the Giants' magic number to five in the National League West.

And those Los Angeles Dodgers, who have been stalking the Giants with deadly ideas for the last month, lost in Cincinnati to fall 2 1-2 games off the pace with seven games remaining.

"This is one of the biggest games all year," outfielder Bobby Bonds said between whoops. "We're three up in the lost column."

Bonds led San Francisco's 10-hit attack with a homer and a run-scoring single to knock in the Giants' first two runs. The Giants averaged only five hits a game and were hitting .161 in losing 13 of their last 16 previous games.

Marichal and Manager Charlie Fox were as happy as Bonds.

"I think this was a real big game for us, but I think we gotta go the same way tomorrow," Marichal said after winning his first game in the Dome since July, 1968.

It was a big game . . . big game," Fox said. "We broke out of it (our slump) tonight. I felt all along the pressure was on the Dodgers. Now I feel it even more so."

Manager Harry Walker of the Astros, who used seven pitchers to try to beat the Giants, was even more optimistic about the Giants' chances.

"I said all along the Dodgers couldn't win and now I'm even more sure," Walker said.

Walker will throw his stopper, Don Wilson (16-8), tonight against Gaylord Perry (14-12). Perry has lost all three decisions to Houston this year and also has always had trouble pitching in the Astrodome.

But not as much as Marichal. The high-kicking right-hander has had such an intense dislike for the air conditioning in the Astrodome that he hasn't pitched in it this year and started only one game last year.

Marichal said he dislikes air conditioning so much that he turns it off in his hotel room at night. He said the air conditioning in the Astrodome gives him sinus and ear trouble.

"I can't hear too good," he said after the game. "I feel like I'm in a tank. I don't care how good I pitch here, I feel lousy."

Marichal, who tossed a six-hitter to run his record to 16-11, said he had been using too many screwballs and players were looking for it as his "out" pitch.

"I decided to do something different tonight," he said. "I used more fast balls. "I think that's why I pitched a good game."

Bonds' home run, his 32nd and his seventh against Houston, broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth. He singled in a run in the first after Jerry Howarth and Tito Fuentes walked.

Bonds is hitting .338 against the Astros but still does not feel comfortable in the Dome's batter's box.

"I don't like it," Bonds said. "It's tough to have good depth perception."

Pirates Pop Champagne Corks

Bucs' Win Over Cards Clinches Playoff Spot

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Pittsburgh Pirates broke open the champagne in St. Louis and the rich fragrance was seductive enough to intoxicate the San Francisco Giants in far-away Houston.

Unfortunately for the Los Angeles Dodgers, they're the only ones feeling the hangover today.

Pittsburgh clinched its second consecutive Eastern Division title in the National League by whipping the second-place St. Louis Cardinals 5-1 Wednesday night as Luke Walker and Dave Giusti combined on a six-hitter. The traditional champagne, which had been cooling since Sunday, was brought out immediately following the game and it took only a few minutes before the Pirate players, as well as the floor of their clubhouse, were soaked in bubbly.

The Giants, meantime, moved closer to a champagne celebration of their own by riding behind Juan Marichal's sharp six-hitter for a 3-1 victory over the Astros in the Astrodome. Although this was only the fourth triumph for the Giants in their last 17 outings, it stretched their Western Division lead to 2 1-2 games over the Dodgers, who dropped a 4-1 decision at Cincinnati.

San Francisco, which has only seven more games to play, can boost its advantage to an almost comfortable three games by beating the Astros again tonight while the Dodgers are idle. Gaylord Perry goes for the Giants against Don Wilson.

In other National League action Wednesday night, Clarence Gaston hit a three-run homer and Ed Acosta threw an eight-hitter to lift the San Diego Padres to a 7-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves; Bill Stoneman allowed eight hits for his 17th triumph as the Montreal Expos beat the Philadelphia Phillies 20; and pitcher Bill Hands won his own game with a bases-loaded double in the fifth inning as the Chicago Cubs beat the New York Mets 4-1.

Cincinnati completed a two-game sweep of the Dodgers with George Foster delivering the key blow, a two-run double in the sixth inning, and an unhappy Los Angeles Manager Walt Alston said later, "There's no question we were out-hit and out-pitched, and when that happens you get beat."

Gary Nolan, who had been removed from a game against Houston last Saturday when he was leading 1-0 after the fifth inning, allowed the Dodgers only five hits.

Luke Walker, working six innings and allowing four hits, gained credit for his 10th victory against eight losses in the Pirate clinching. Bob Gibson (16-13) was the loser.

During the post-game celebration, Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh said, "We had eight games to go and one to win and we sure weren't going to lose eight in a row. It's good to clinch it against a club that's contending."

Manning Worries Nolan

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Faced with coming back after an upset loss to Atlanta in his National Football League opener, San Francisco 49ers coach Dick Nolan is worried about two things this week —the New Orleans Saints defense and Archie Manning.

New Orleans also upset Los Angeles in their opener, with Manning scoring the winning touchdown on the last play of the game, and Nolan knows his players will have their work cut out for them Sunday in New Orleans.

"The Saints play a lot of different defenses," Nolan said, "and we've got to be ready for them all. They use some bump-and-run, some man-to-man and some zone. And they like to blitz."

Manning, a rookie from Mississippi, completed 16 of 29 passes for 218 yards against the Rams. He also showed he could run, carrying the ball three times for 14 yards and pushing in with a second effort for the winning score.

Raiders' Madden Confident

OAKLAND (UPI) —Oakland Raiders coach John Madden, trying to pull his team together after a stunning loss in their National Football League opener against the New England Patriots, knows he will face a "different" San Diego Chargers team Sunday.

"They're a completely changed team," Madden says. "We made it tough on ourselves by losing the opener. And San Diego, by beating Kansas City is riding high. They got the Chiefs at home, now they get us at home, they're out in front of the pack and they probably feel they have the momentum."

But Madden said he is confident the Raiders, which have a number of rookies in the starting lineup, will bounce back after the opening loss.

"Two things you guard against," he said, "becoming overconfident when you win, losing confidence and panicking when you lose."

A'S BLANKED

Impressive Stint For Vida Blue

By JOE SARGIS
UPI Sports Writer

OAKLAND (UPI) — It's official now, Vida Blue will pitch against Dave McNally in the opening game of the American League playoffs.

Earl Weaver, the Baltimore Orioles manager, announced Wednesday that McNally, his big righthander who has won 20 games and lost only five even though he was on the shelf for 38 days, will start the playoffs against the Oakland A's in Baltimore on Oct. 2.

Dick Williams, the A's manager, wasn't quite that sure about Blue, until Vida showed him Wednesday night that he is ready. Blue threw only 54 pitches in the five innings he worked against the Chicago White Sox, gave up two singles, struck out three and did not walk a man.

"That did it as far as I'm concerned," said Williams. "Vida showed me he is ready and that's all I wanted to know. He hasn't been sharp lately but he was against the White Sox."

Chicago won Wednesday night's game, 3-0, behind the four-hit shutout pitching of young Tom Bradley. It was Bradley's sixth shutout of the year, three of them coming at the expense of the A's.

Blue will pitch five more innings on Sunday against the Milwaukee Brewers in his final tuneup. McNally, more than likely, will also pitch on Sunday in his final game before the playoffs.

McNally is 20-5 and Blue is 23-8. Both, along with Wilbur Wood of the White Sox and Mickey Lolich of the Tigers, are candidates for the Cy Young award.

Chuck Tanner, Chicago's personable manager, has done an outstanding job with the White Sox in his rookie big league season, is one who isn't conceding the playoffs to the Orioles, although he admits they have an edge because of experience in post-season play.

"It will be all up to Blue," said Tanner, "and he showed me he is ready. If he does well in the first game then I'd say the A's have a fine chance, although if you have to make one team the favorite you have to go with the Orioles.

Bradley stopped the A's on four singles as the White Sox swept Oakland to win the season series 11-7.

The A's, worrying a lot about Blue of late, haven't been hitting, and one man who seems deeply concerned is catcher Dave Duncan.

"We've all worried so much about Vida that we have forgotten about hitting the ball," said Duncan. "No one has hit well lately. It seems we've all been sitting around waiting for the playoffs. We better start hitting soon or we may be in trouble. In baseball you just can't turn it on overnight. You have to have your hitting down pat before a big series such as the playoffs."

Funeral Atmosphere For Senators' Game

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There were 43,558 empty seats in the home stadium of the all but defunct Washington Senators Wednesday night. One seat was more empty than others.

It was seat 12, row 1, box 112.

For most games over the past three seasons, the beige front row seat has been occupied by Robert E. Short, the Minneapolis millionaire who bought the Senators in 1969 and won permission from the American League Tuesday to move the 71-year-old Washington baseball franchise to Texas.

Owner Bob Short was not at the game between the fifth-place Senators and the last-place Indians which his team won 3-2. Nor was there any indication that he would be on hand in Robert F. Kennedy Stadium next week for the final three games of the season.

A total of 1,458 paying customers did turn out however for the first Senator game after major league baseball voted to abandon the nation's capital for greener pastures in the Fort Worth-Dallas-Arlington, Tex., area.

It was the second worst turnout of the season, only outdone by the 1,311 fans who turned out to see the same teams play Tuesday.

As the paying customers came through the turnstiles, a tape recording played various numbers including "Bye, bye, Blackbird."

There was no crowd hostility manifested despite knowledge that Short was moving the team. When the Senators ran on the field, not a boo was heard —nor a cheer either.

It took on the atmosphere of a high-class funeral home where visitors are asked: "Which body do you wish to view?"

Oscar Molomot, Short's hand-picked promotion director, was asked if in the upcoming final three games with the New York Yankees there would be an appreciation night for fans as once planned.

"Oh no," said Molomot. "We never announced that. We may have a pot luck night for souvenirs."

The Senators drew 435,000 before the mid-point in the season, but when Short began flirting with Texas, Toronto and Hawaii as possible locations for his franchise —the Washington fans, already jilted once when Calvin Griffith pulled his team out for Minnesota in 1961 — attendance cooled.

The club has failed to draw noticeable attendance in recent weeks by giving away little league bats, helmets, T-shirts and for grownups, panty hose.

Even before the game, Short had lost one supporter —an important one —President Nixon, who let official word go forth he was switching his long-standing baseball rooting allegiance from the Senators to the California Angels.

Ratty Rulla Wins At Bay Meadows

SAN MATEO, Calif. (UPI) — Ratty Rulla outdueled Crafty Patient in the stretch Wednesday to win the featured $12,500 added El Camino stakes at Bay Meadows.

It was the fourth stakes triumph for Ratty Rulla and his sixth victory in nine starts. Pallisades Prince finished third in the field of nine two-year-olds.

Charlie Tohill rode Ratty Rulla to a time of 1.10 4/5 for the six furlongs and the winner paid $3.80, $2.80 and $2.40. Crafty Patient returned $4.00 and $3.80 while Pallisades Prince paid $3.60.

Seals Drop Fourth Exhibition In Row, 4-1

KINGSTON, Ont. (UPI)—The California Golden Seals lost their fourth straight National Hockey League exhibition season game Wednesday night, falling to the Philadelphia Flyers, 4-1.

Bill Lesuck scored two goals for the Flyers while Ron Stackhouse scored the only Seals' goal. The Seals, who have six more pre-season games, meet the St. Louis Blues tonight in Sudbury, Ont.

WEST COAST FOOTBALL

Two Injured Cal Players Back In Starting Lineup

BERKELEY (UPI) —California coach Ray Willsey says two starters, center Bob Purnell and defensive guard Bob Kampa, both hampered with injuries, will start for the Bears here Saturday against San Jose State.

Purnell, who had been out with a bruised knee, and Kampa, out with a pulled hamstring muscle, both went through light workouts Wednesday in the team's last hard drill before the Saturday contest.

But Willsey said starting linebacker Sam Garamendi, suffering from a shoulder pointer, and offensive guard Neil Agness, who disclocated an elbow in last week's game against West Virginia, will not see action against the Spartans.

Southern Cal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — University of Southern California coach John McKay says split end Mike Morgan may see action Saturday night against Illinois.

Morgan, who suffered a broken nose against Rice, was able to get in some running and wore a helmet Wednesday but was kept out of contact drills.

The Trojans stressed offense in the last hard drill prior to the counter here with Illinois.

UCLA Bruins

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA may have lost linebacker and co-captain Greg Snyder, one of the team's defensive stars, for Saturday's game at Michigan.

Bruin coach Pepper Rodgers reported Wednesday that Snyder said he was suffering from headaches and dizziness, apparently from a head blwo in last Saturday's game with Texas. He was hospitalized for observation, but Rodgers said he will make the trip to Ann Arbor.

In another change, Mike Clayton was named to start at flanker in place of Reggie Echols, who sprained an ankle Monday.

Oregon

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—The Oregon football team went through its third day of practice Wednesday in preparation for its Saturday afternoon encounter with the defending Pacifici-8 champion, Stanford, with both the offensive and defensive units sharing the spotlight.

The offensive unit, with Bobby Moore and Jim Anderson leading the rushing attack, which is on top in the PAC-8, went through various drills which included running against simulated Stanford defenses.

The defensive units worked against Stanford type offensive formations, and concentrated on pass protection which saw the Ducks intercept four passes last weekend against Utah.

In the injury department, Tom Graham, who missed the Utah game because of a sore shoulder, will be ready for action Saturday against the Indians. However, Graham's replacement against Utah, Dave Sheurman, is definitely out of the Stanford contest with an ankle sprain.

Oregon State

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI)—Four Oregon State gridders, Dave Schilling, Dave Nirenberg, Jim Mott and Dan Zellick, returned to practice Wednesday after missing one workout with a flu type virus.

The Beavers went through their final full-speed workout before meeting Michigan State Saturday. Drills included kicking field goals under game-type pressure with senior Lynn Boston handling the kicking chores.

OSU finished practice with a goal line scrimmage inside the 10 yard line.

Washington

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Washington football squad ran its offensive plays against reserves using Texas Christian defensive alignments Wednesday during a 1 1-2 hour drill, the longest practice session of the week.

Coach Jim Owens said he was pleased with the work of tight ends Dan Gosselin and Tom Roehl during Wednesday's practice. Regular tight end Jim Brady was excused from practice to attend a funeral.

Defensive back Phil Andre, who wks injured in the Purdue game last Saturday, returned to action. But Dick Galuska, another defensive back, was still out with injuries suffered in a Saturday night automobile accident, however, Galuska is expected to rejoin the squad later this week and be available for the Texas Christian game.

BEATING HEARING

Judge Drops Carty Charges

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

ATLANTA (UPI)—A Municipal Court Judge, after hearing both sides tell their version of a beating incident involving Rico Carty, took less than a minute Wednesday to dismiss charges against the Atlanta Braves' slugger

Carty, who suffered multiple bruises and a split finger in the brawl, had been charged along with his brother-in-law, Carlos Ramirez, with simple battery on a police officer and creating a turmoil.

But at the conclusion of the three-hour hearing, Judge Robert M. Sharp declared, "any battery was justified. Mr. Carty and Mr Ramirez have been shamefully handled. Both deendants are not guilty."

No prosecutor for the city was present at the hearing, and the only person to give the other side of the incident was J. R. McEarchen, the former officer who arrested Carty and was later dismissed from the police force with two other policemen involved in the incident.

Carty said he and Ramirez were driving home from Carty's restaurant late at night when two white men pulled up alongside their car and began shouting racial epithets. Carty said he became worried and stopped on an expressway overpass when he saw a police car

The two white men, later identified as off-duty officers, also stopped and got out of their car and a fight ensued. Carty said he was clubbed by McEarchen, who was in uniform, but he denied ever striking him. He said after he was handcuffed, one of the whites kicked him in the eye.

McEarchen claimed he tried to break up the fight but was grabbed by Ramirez. He said he intended to arrest all four men, but the two whites managed to get away.

The city's aldermanic police committee, after holding a hearing into the case, dismissed the three policemen and Police Chief Herbert Jenkins called it "the worst case of misconduct by a police officer I've ever seen."

Stan Smith Advances In L.A. Net

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Top-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena takes on Ismael El Shafei of Egypt today in the featured match of the $73,000 Pacific Southwest Open tennis championships.

Smith had an easy time Wednesday downing New Zealand's Onny Parun, 6-4, 6-4, in the day's feature center court encounter.

Second-seeded Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, who drew a bye Wednesday, swings back into action today against Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn.

Cliff Richey, San Angelo, Tex., the third seeded performer, had an even easier time than Smith as he polished off Terry Ryan of South Africa, 6-0, 6-1. But Clark Graebner of New York was forced to three sets to defeat Frew (cq) McMillan of South Africa, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

In another international match, James Connors of Santa Monica, Calif., defeated Ray Ruffels of Australia, 6-3, 6-2.

Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., women's Open champion, had little difficulty defeating Nancy Ornstein of Anaheim, Calif., 6-2, 6-2, despite five double faults.

Rosemary Casals, San Francisco, second seeded in women's singles, won by default from Ching Ling Chang of Taiwan who failed to appear.

In the night's final match, Bob Lutz of Tiburon, Calif., downed Ray Moore, South Africa, 7-5, 6-1.

Marichal Criticizes Astro Boss

HOUSTON (UPI)—Juan Marichal, the San Francisco Giants' ace pitcher, criticized the use of seven pitchers by Manager Harry Walker of the Houston Astros in Wednesday night's game.

Walker pulled rookie James Rodney Richard in the first inning with the bases loaded and no one out after he had walked three men and given up a hit. Reliever George Culver retired the Giants without another run scoring.

Marichal, who won the game 3-1, said Walker should not have pulled Richard because it showed a lack of confidence in the young pitcher.

Walker used three pitchers in the eighth to prevent the Giants from scoring after they loaded the bases.

"The way Mr. Walker played this game, it looked like he don't want us to win," Marichal said. "I'd like to see what Mr. Walker does against the Dodgers."

The Astros finish the season in Los Angeles next week. Walker said he pulled Richard because two more hits at that point would have given the Giants a 4-0 lead.

"That big a lead with Marichal pitching would have been too much to overcome," Walker said. "He's an old pro and he hitches up and gets tough in games like this. I didn't want to give him a big lead to start with."

Only 1,458 were on hand at RFK Stadium last night as the host Washington Senators trimmed the Cleveland Indians 3-2. The Nats will move next year to Arlington, Tex., between Dallas and Ft. COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Bill Etter Surprise Plus For Notre Dame Offense

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The return of Bill Etter to play quarterback was one surprise bonus for Notre Dame football this season, and the second-ranked Irish will try to overcome another imposing handicap Saturday when they travel to Purdue.

Notre Dame always has trouble dealing with the Boilermakers, and haven't won at Lafayette, Ind., since 1961, losing four games in a row since then. In fact, the Irish had a three-game losing streak overall against Purdue before snapping back with a 48-0 rout last year.

Although the Irish had a strong nucleus of veterans returning from their outstanding team of last year, they were concerned about the key quarterback position following the graduation of Joe Theismann. But Etter, who sat out the entire year in 1970 because of severe migraine headaches, received medical clearance to return to the team just five weeks ago and he and Pat Steenberg turned in an outstanding performance last week as Notre Dame battered Northwestern, 50-7, in the season opener.

"The year layoff hurt me as far as technique, game plans and reading defenses are concerned," Etter said. "What you don't use you lose. There are an awful lot of things that have to come back and total recall just isn't automatic. But I've been able to concentrate on play selection concepts rather than worrying about the little fine points which I did when preseason practice first started."

Purdue, considered a darkhorse contender in the tough Big 10, lost to Washington, 38-35, last week.

Nebraska, the No. 1 team, and third-ranked Texas both figure to have easier tasks than Notre dame Saturday. The Cornhuskers, who have romped past Oregon and Minnesota in two starts and now are riding a 21-game unbeaten streak, are rated 28 points better than Texas A&M and Texas is picked by 17 points over Texas Tech.

There will be two games pairing members of the top 10 with fifth-ranked Ohio State a seven-point choice over 10th-ranked Colorado and No. 7 Auburn going against eighth-ranked Tennessee in a pick'em affair that probably will have a strong bearing on deciding the Southeastern Conference championship.

Fourth-ranked Michigan is a 14-point favorite over UCLA, sixth-ranked Alabama is 11 points over Florida and ninth-ranked Arkansas is highly favored over Tulsa.

Aside from the national rankings at Stake, Tennessee has special reason for beating Auburn in their game at Knoxville. The Vols lost only one of 12 games last year, and that was a 36-23 decision to Auburn. "We beat them in Birmingham last year and they have spent a lot of time getting ready for this game," said Auburn Coach Shug Jordan. "They are thinking strictly revenge."

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Orioles Cinch Title Tie; Near 51-Year Record

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Baltimore express churns on—toward another division title and toward a 51-year old record.

The Orioles gained at least a tie for their third consecutive American League East title Wednesday night as they clubbed the New York Yankees 10-1 while the Boston Red Sox edged second-place Detroit 3-2.

The victory went to Jim Palmer, who pitched a sixhitter to gain his 19th triumph. The Orioles now have a week in which to become the first team since the 1919 Chicago White Sox to boast four 20-game winners. Dave McNally won his 20th Tuesday night and the Orioles' three remaining starters—Palmer, Mike Cuellar and Pat Dobson—each has 19 victories.

Boog Powell had a pair of two-run homers, his 20th and 21st, and rookie Bobby Grich had his first homer in the majors—a three-run blast in the eighth—to highlight the Baltimore attack.

Elsewhere in the AL, Chicago shut out Oakland 3-0, Kansas City clubbed California 10-3, Washington edged Cleveland 3-2 and Milwaukee -Minnesota was rained out.

Luis Aparicio doubled in two runs during a three-run eighth as the Red Sox beat Detroit and 25-game winner Mickey Lolich. Lolich had allowed only three hits until the eighth when Billy Conigliaro and Duane Josephson singled and Phil Gagliano was safe on a fielder's choice. Conigliaro scored on an infield out and Aparicio followed with his double.

Pro Grid Probe Recesses

CLEVELAND (UPI) —A federal grand jury probe of alleged blacklisting of players by the National Football League was recessed Wednesday following testimony from Detroit Lions assistant coach John North.

The investigation, being directed by the antitrust division of the U.S. Justice Department is expected to be reconvened sometime in October.

North, receiving and offensive backfield coach for the Lions, said he was asked about blacklisting, but did not elaborate.

Before his appearance, he said he had no idea why he was subpoenaed to appear before the jury.

The investigation began last November, was recessed four months over the summer and was resumed Monday.

Appearing before the jury this week besides North were Cincinnati Bengals coach Paul Brown, former San Francisco 49ers coach Jack Christiansen, New England Patriots personnel director Rommie Loudd and John Danahy, NFL security director.

PREP FOOTBALL

Tam, Redwood On Road

Tamalpais travels to Skyline High in Oakland and Redwood visits Encinal of Alameda in a pair of 3:30 games tomorrow, kicking off a full slate of weekend Marin County prep football action.

In other games tomorrow, Terra Linda hosts Harry Ells of Richmond on the San Rafael High School field and San Marin visits Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park at Petaluma High, both at 8 p.m.

On Saturday: Novato entertains Petaluma High, 1 p.m.; Marin Catholic treks to Piner of Santa Rosa, 7:30 p.m.; Drake is at Vallejo, 8 p.m.; and Montgomery of Santa Rosa invades San Rafael High, 8 p.m.

Redwood, a 28-7 winner over Sacred Heart of San Francisco last Friday, hopes to make Encinal victim number two, but the Jets have other ideas. The speedy hosts present a fluid ground game featuring the blinding speed of the Sheltons, John and Eric.

The pair destroyed San Marin's opener with a 27-6 triumph last Saturday with Eric doing most of the damage. He bolted 50 and 75 yards for Encinal's first two tallies in ringing up 146 yards on only eight tries. Brother John climaxed the point outbursts with a three-yard, fourth quarter run.

"We'll have to contain them by keeping the two from turning the corner. We're in trouble if they get around end," Redwood coach Phil Roark said while explaining team strategy.

To stop the dynamic duo, Roark has appointed linebackers Dan Young and Bob Fulton "to key on them. We want to force them to throw."

Roark contended that the Encinal air attack is inconsistent, but quarterback Bob Leach did connect on four of 10 passes for one touchdown against San Marin.

However, Roark is not underestimating the Jet supporting cast. The East Bay boys are thigh deep in backfield depth with Dory Smith, Dennis Cheathan and Mike Lowe. Smith accumulated 85 yards in 14 carries, Cheathan, a gaudy 64 in two attempts and Lowe, 50 in seven jaunts, all versus San Marin.

Despite the bevy of brilliant backs, Roark sought no sympathy; his team is relatively healthy with only backup quarterback Bob Troppmann "definitely out." He is still recovering from a knee injury suffered in the Alameda High scrum two weeks ago.

Starting signal caller Bob Brown is also ailing slightly with the intestinal flu. Brown, instrumental in the Giants 28-7 season opening victory over host Sacred Heart of San Francisco, is expected to play.

Brown's availability plus the rushing of the Edralins, Daryl and Bill, underline Roark's attitude of "thinking win."

While Redwood attempts to jump its log to 2-0, Tam will try to even its mark at 1-1, at Skyline's expense. The task won't be easy, but the Indians have been working in earnest to achieve this end, particularly in the backfield. Coach Mike Davlin is slowly working All-League back Cliff Hall into a running slot. "He got his first contact against Bishop O'Dowd, because he couldn't work before then with his bad ankle," injured in summer basketball action.

Other Indian alterations include subplanting quarterback Mark Lawson with Pat Locey. The latter threw a 14-yard scoring pass to Alvin Price after coming off the bench against O'Dowd. Tim Nowell is the likely Locey substitute with Dawson relegated to spot duty. Davlin stressed that all three are still in the running for the starting nod at this unsettled position.

With Locey at the throttle, Davlin has installed a couple of pass-oriented attack formations utilizing slots and wingbacks. "We'll use these different formations to spread the defenses, because we don't have the power to run over them," Davlin commented.

He added that the Indians will have to face the highly physical Titans without back Tom Collins, still under the affects of a broken arm.

The lineups:

Redwood (Offense) LE Mike Connors, LT Rolph Chamberlian, LG Scott Cochrane, C Bob Fulton, RG Dan Young, RT Joel Johnson, RE Gary O'Neal, QB Bob Brown, LH Daryl Edralin, FB Jay Lehman, RH Bill Edralin. PREP NOTEBOOK

Redwood, Novato Runners Favored

By RON LENT

A pair of perennially powerful teams, Redwood and Novato, are the projected teams to beat in 1971 Marin County Athletic League cross country competition.

The two teams dominated harrier doings last fall with Novato locking the varsity title and sharing the sophomore honors with Redwood.

Both are likely to be near the top again, particularly Redwood with junior Rick Norton leading the way. In addition, the Giants boast the sophomore class second, third and fourth finishers in Ned Overand, Pete Sweeney and Brian Brown.

However, San Marin High has the sophomore champion in Gary Lathop. The Mustangs also sport veteran Dan Turck, sixth last year as a sophomore, Ron Zechlin, 11th in this yearling field, and Dennis Bradley, a two-mile track stickout.

This four-veteran, seven-rookie squad lacks depth, a quality sure to hurt the Mustang chances of staying with the leaders like the Giants, Hornets and the next echelon, San Rafael and Tamalpais.

Tam lost stalwarts Vian Collier and Mike Arago, the varsity king, to College of Marin, but the Indians do have Kian McCarthy, a fast developing junior who took fifth in first year or sophomore battles.

Another Indian junior, Bill Busby is also coming on strong, reports indicated. But, if anyone is going to put the bite on the Indians, it will probably be Bill Ranney's Bulldogs.

The San Rafael spikers possess consistent Jerry Lansing, last years's top running Bulldog, Dan Johnson, a four-year vet, Phil (Fast) Slobody, Fletcher Lesley and Ron Webb, the number five man for San Rafael last annum. Lesley and Slobody were on the San Rafael contingent which took the North state meet at St. Helena as sophomores two years ago.

If San Rafael or even Redwood are to be upended, the likely culprit will be Novato. The Hornets have sting with Dan Hutton, second-ranked in varsity jousting last year, plus Tom Szostak, a hard-training junior.

Terra Linda and Drake High schools log a step or two behind the leaders, but both have talent. Veteran Gray Barker remains as Terra Linda's finest, while Fred Fraunes enjoys similar recognition at Drake.

In the Frosh-Sophomore category, again Redwood is the top rated team, followed closely by San Rafael, Novato and Tamalpais. Terra Linda, San Marin and Drake will fight for consolation plaudits.

NBA Player Reps Oppose Cage Merger

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Oscar Robertson of the Milwaukee Bucks, president of the National Basketball Association Players Association, and Dave DeBusschere of The New York Knicks Wednesday asked Congress to reject the proposed merger of the NBA and ABA.

Robertson said that all players were "dramatically helped by the competitive aspects of a second league" and added that he had total support of all NBA players in their opposition to the merger.

DeBusschere, who at one time coached the Detroit Pistons, called for the abolition of the reserve clause, which binds a player to a certain team. Appearing before the Senate antitrust subcommittee headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin of North Carolina, DeBusschere said that, "the clause puts the professional basketball player in a position that is different from any other American. What is fair for the player is where he can bargain like any other person in the U.S." Ervin, an opponent of the proposed merger, is arguing that pro basketball players have a specialized skill and that their bargaining rights should be treated accordingly.

Headline Net Stars In Tourney

Barry MacKay of Ross has quite a racket Saturday.

On that day, the Redwood Bank International Open Tennis Championships begin at noon, featuring top pro Rod Laver of Australia. Joining Laver in the group will be Arthur Ashe and Ken Rosewell, two former U.S. Open kings, tourney director MacKay, Wimbledon singles champ John Newcombe and independent pros like Berkeley's Jim McManus, Tom Gorman, a two-time winner over Laver this year, and Lafayette's Jeff Borowiak. National collegiate victor Jimmy Connors of UCLA is also entered.

Other standout contenders in the 64-man field are: Czechoslavakia's Jan Kodes, Frank Froehling, Stanford's Roscoe Tanner, Tom Brown, former Wimbledon and Forest Hills finalist, and Cliff Richey, America's top seed.

This aggregate will be augumented by eight survivors of the eliminations play at the Berkeley Tennis Club Saturday starting at 9 a.m.

In addition, the opening day festivities boast a "Youth Tennis Foundation Day," also at the Golden Gateway tennis club in San Francisco.

The charity event pits two former U.S. Open champions, Arthur Ashe and Ken Rosewall, in a 3 p.m., "winner take all" singles match for a $1,000 purse at the Golden Gateway Tennis Club.

The Ashep-Rosewall encounter precedes a celebrities doubles match featuring Ashe and Ethel Kennedy against Rosewall and Clint Eastwood, subbing for composer Burt Bacharach. Comedian Jonathan Winters and actress Stella Stevens will officiate.

Proceeds from the $25, $10 and $7.50 tickets for the two matches go to the Youth Tennis Foundation, a 14-year-old organization geared to exposing youth to tennis.

After listing the cast, MacKay said a packed house is nearly assured. "The only individual tickets we have left," he said, "are for the earlier rounds at Berkeley Saturday through Oct. 2 and for the weekday matches at the Golden Gateway Club.

There are a limited number of season box and general admission seats for the Berkeley portion remaining, MacKay added.

Monday through Thursday Berkeley match ducats sell for $3. The Oct. 1 quarter-final seats and Oct. 2 semifinal tickets go for $5 and $6, respectively. Golden Gateway match tickets are $2 per match.

These ducats are available at Ticketron outlets and in the Redwood Bank of San Rafael.

GETTING READY

HAFB Boxer's Olympics Hopes

By SGT. SHERRY RYBAK

HAMILTON AIR FORCE BASE — "Preparation is what I consider the most essential ingredient in the making of a good boxer."

That's what Jerry Otis, 24, from the Aerospace Defense Command's Hamilton Air Force base has to say anyway, and he's got a silver medal from the recent Pan-American games to back him up.

The most recent kudo for Otis was his knockout of 23-year-old European middleweight champion Alec Nastac of Romania. The U.S. versus Romania Boxing Match was held in Albany, N.Y. on Sept. 10. The K.O. came at 2:30 of the second round.

"I caught him with a right cross in the second round and he went down but he beat the eight count," said Otis. Up on his feet again, "I threw another right cross and this time I knew I had him with a kayo by the expression on his face. During the entire bout I was ahead, but not a great deal. He was definitely in good shape!"

The 5-foot-11, 165-pound sergeant says he began fighting in the ring when he was 16. "I used to get in a lot of fights when I was in high school and it seemed I had a monopoly on street fights too. I then decided to do my fighting in the ring rather than the streets, and joined the city league."

It was at this time that Jerry met Larry High, Navy light heavyweight champion at the time, and the man that he credits with his initial training and interest in boxing.

"The Navy used to fight in my hometown of Bremerton, Wash., and every chance I got I'd go watch them," Otis said. "They practiced at the gym where I used to play basketball and we'd stop playing our game long enough to watch them. First thing I knew I had the gloves on and I was learning how to box."

Jerry entered the Air Force in June, 1968, and submitted an application to Randolph Air Force Base, Tex., to become a member of the Air Force Boxing Team.

With a total of 50 fights in the ring so far, Jerry believes that preparation is the most essential ingredient in the making of a good boxer. "There's a lot of sacrifice, hard work and physical training a boxer must go through, otherwise there's no use in fighting or even climbing into the ring. Confidence plays a large role, but I'd say training is practically 80 per cent of what you need."

Jerry will go on to compete in a series of matches, all leading up to the 1972 Olympics. He thinks his chances of making the Olympic team are good, but says he knows he's in for some pretty rigorous training. "You don't have to train too much for a single fight, but when you enter a tournament where you're in that ring just about every night you better be prepared. More matches, more training."

What does a boxer think about when he steps into the ring? Jerry says he's a lot more nervous when he's watching his friends fight, rather than when he's in the ring himself. "Sure, I'm nervous when I first get in there, I think everyone is, even pros, but once you first get hit you seem to relax and concentrate on the other guy's ability. You don't have time to concentrate on yourself and you shouldn't have to. It's just like driving a car; you drive the car, the car doesn't drive you."

Jerry wants to become a mechanic or heavy equipment operator when he separates from the service next June, though he may be at the peak of his boxing career. "Boxing's become a part of me, but I'll probably work with kids in the art of the sport. I'm not planning to spend too much more time fighting myself."

No Betting On Albatross; Horse Too Good For Field

DELAWARE, Ohio (UPI) — Today's field of the Little Brown Jug harness racing classic included such a heavy favorite that for the first time in the 26-year history of the event no pari-mutuel betting was allowed on the horse.

Race officials said they were afraid heavy betting on Albatross, winner of 16 consecutive races and 17 out of 18 this season, would cost the track thousands of dollars.

Albatross was such a heavy favorite in his last win at Detroit it cost the track $16,359 in a minus pool and when the horse won the Jug Trial last week in Columbus, Scioto Downs lost money.

Although Jug officials in the past have prohibited win place ticket on certain horses, it was the first time a horse has been taken completely off the boards.

With Albatross off the betting line, Nansemond became the early favorite at 3-to-1 odds.

Stanley Dancer, driver and trainer of Albatross, said he was somewhat surprised at the large field of 15 in the race.

Dancer is looking for his fourth Jug victory.

Economy Is Bright In Puerto Rico

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI)—Probably the most spectacular local economic expansion drive in history, Puerto Rico's "Operation Bootstrap," is entering its third decade with new laurels.

For example, in the last few years production of electronics firms on the island has jumped to $100 million a year.

Started during the days when Luis Munoz Marin still was political kingpin of the Commonwealth, Operation Bootstrap has brought two thousand new businesses to Puerto Rico and increased the island's annual Gross National Product from $750 million to $4.6 billion.

It has raised per capita income from $179 to $1,426 and has created 110,000 new steady jobs on the island.

But, according to the Puerto Rican Economic Development Administration, one of the most significant points about Operation Bootstrap is that it has created more jobs on the mainland than in Puerto Rico. That's because large portions —90 per cent in the case of electronics —of the output of Puerto Rico's new plants come to United States as compenents of products completed in American mainland factories. Also, a substantial portion of the basic elements and raw materials for Puerto Rican industry is bought on the mainland.

For this reason, organized labor on the mainland never has seriously criticized the 100 per cent Puerto Rican tax exemption that, along with the island's low direct labor costs (about 60 per cent of those on the mainland) have attracted so many firms to the Commonwealth. If it were not for Puerto Rico, Japan and Hong Kong would get these jobs.

The tax exemptions commonly run for 10 to 17 years depending on location of the plant. Puerto Rican officials say the firms do not pull up stakes and leave when their tax exemptions run out but stay and pay taxes —"Often they have expanded their plants and obtained new exemptions on the expanded facilities."

Puerto Rican officials say Commonwealth income, sales, real estate taxes and excise taxes paid by the workers and customers and suppliers of the exempt plants amount to much more than the waived taxes on the factories. Puerto Rico is exempt from the federal income and direct federal excise taxes.

The Development Administration, known on the island by its Spanish name, Fomento, was a spectacular success from the start and its activity has resulted in an annual compounded growth rate of more than 10 per cent in the Commonwealth's industry.

In the early years, Fomento naturally went after labor intensive industries such as textiles, footwear and gadget manufacturing in order to create jobs fast for the poor. But Fomento was spectacularly successful in attracting sophisticated capital intensive businesses, too. Petrochemical investments in Puerto Rico alone have amounted to $700 million.

In spite of the great success of Operation Bootstrap, Puerto Rico still has an unemployment rate of 10 to 12 per cent in most years, twice that of the mainland. This forces a lot of migration to the mainland of Puerto Ricans seeking work.

"In the coming decade," said a Fomento spokesman in New York, "we hope to supplant Operation Bootstrap with Operation Lift Off, an accelerated rate of progress that will cut Puerto Rico's jobless rate to or below the national average and again raise per capita income substantially."

Another Branch For Homestead

Homestead Savings and Loan Association, San Francisco, will open its sixth Bay Area office in the Montecito Shopping Center, San Rafael.

Approval for the new branch was granted last week by the State Department of Savings and Loan.

The office, expected to open in three or four months, will be under the management of Mrs. Jane Collins, who is presently manager of Homestead's Sausalito office. Total assets of the association now exceed $53 million.

Market In Decline For Fourth Session

NEW YORK (UPI) —Stocks declined today for the fourth consecutive session. Key market indicators pointed slightly lower, while declines topped advances by a little more than a two-to-one margin.

Selling stemmed largely from uncertainty over what action President Nixon will take after expiration of the wage-price freeze on Nov. 13. Wall Street was hoping Nixon might reveal some of his post freeze plans tonight in a question-and-answer session with a business-dominated panel in Detroit.

Prices also backpedaled in light trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Among the most active Amex issues were Guardian Mortgage Investors down fractionally on 35,000 shares, TWA warrants also down slightly on a volume of over 15,000 and Kinney preferred C, slightly easier on 13,000 shares.

Other active stocks included Kresge, down a point, RCA, unchanged, and American Telephone, 1-4 higher.

Union May Stage A Recovery

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Could you please tell me something about Union Corp. (NYSE)? I bought about 100 shares back in October. — J. A.

A. Through numerous acquisitions in recent years, Union Corp. extended its already diversified operations into several high-technology fields including the production of components for the computer and electronics industries, aerospace, automotive and mobility equipment parts plus lenses and other opthalmological items. Company is presently working on the new soft contact lens, FDA application for which is expected in the next few months.

Reflecting general softness in the computer and electronics areas, Union's earnings started slipping in the second quarter of fiscal 1970, a trend which has continued thus far into fiscal 1971. For the first nine months of this year, per share net slumped 52.5 per cent to 31 cents on a 2.2 per cent dip in sales to $51.76 million.

With the acquisition program continuing in more favorable business areas, and in view of the projected pickup in the computer and electronics industries, Union offers speculative appeal as a potential recovery candidate.

THE OLD LENS SQUEEZE

Unlike conventional rigid plastic contact lenses, the new soft lens — such as the one Dr. William Boyts is removing from the eye of Mrs. Gay Cone — are flexible and can be bent. The contact, called "Soflens," was developed by Bausch & Lomb Inc. and demonstrated by Boyts, central district manager for the firm. The lens offers simplified fitting procedures and increased wearing comfort for users, but is more difficult to keep clean.

Education Goals Set In Novato

Novato Unified School District trustees have selected educational standardization and continuity in learning as its top educational objective.

Trustees selected four goals for special emphasis, drawn from a list of 50 submitted by the citizens educational goals committee.

Besides standardization, the objectives given priority were the program for less able learners, inservice training for staff members and individualized instruction, reported Edith Pewitt, administrative assistant.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

BUILDING — Took under study nine bids for construction of a student center and fine arts center at San Marin High School, ranging from $587,000 to $612,900.

YOUTH NEWSPAPER — Approved participation in a countywide newspaper for high school students, sponsored by the Marin County Youth Commission.

ATHLETICS — Approved a flag football and basketball program for seventh and eighth grade pupils in conjunction with the Novato Parks and Recreation Department.

TRANSFER — Added a provision to its transfer policy for high schools providing that when a school is overloaded, new pupils will be enrolled at the nearest school having space available.

Concord Firm Seeks First Sewer Connects

A concord firm has filed papers in Marin Superior Court asking that if anyone gets sewer connection permits from the Richardson Bay Sanitary District, it should be the first.

A hearing was set for Oct. 5 on the request filed Tuesday by Seaport Development Co., which owns 62 acres of undeveloped property behind Strawberry Town and Country Village shopping Center.

New sewer connections in the district were banned by a June 24 order of the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board until a subregional sewage system is completed in southern Marin.

The board's ban has been attacked in three previous suits filed in superior court.

Seaport's attorney, Robert C. Marks of Martinez, said the company had contracted with the sanitary district prior to the water quality board's order for 170 permits and later applied for 47 more.

Special Session On Water Service

The Rohnert Park City Council will meet in special session at 7:30 p.m: today to consider extending water service to Los Camponeros Mobile Home Park.

The council will consider installing a water main on Snyder Lane to service the new facility.

Driving Course To Be Offered

A defensive driving course for licensed drivers will be conducted Oct. 5, 12, 19 and 26 at the First Methodist Church of San Rafael, 9 Ross Valley Drive.

The course, starting at 10 a.m., is sponsored by the San Rafael National Retired Teachers Association and the American Association of Retired Teachers and will be given in cooperation with the National Safety Council.

Trained instructors will use films and other visual aids.

Registration information may be obtained from J.C. Uhte, 51 Bothin Road, Fairfax.

Concern Aired Over Proposed Apartment Plan

A proposed development of 87 apartments and townhouses has drawn expressions of concern over potential traffic problems last night from the Petaluma Board of Zoning Adjustments.

Developer Milton Formed seeks approval of plans to build Cherry Hill Residential Village at 180 Cherry Street. Assistant Planner Richard D. A. Anderson said the board was concerned Tuesday night about the central driveway location and that there might not be enough sight distance for traffic coming over the hill on Cherry Street.

Anderson said the commission continued discussion of the plan to its Oct. 5 meeting.

In other matters the board approved a site design for the C & M freight forwarding terminal to be located at 21 Bridge Street and plans for a duplex to be built at 230 Edith Street by Earl Andersen.

Firemen Slate Picnic Sunday

The Marin County Association of Fire Departments will hold its annual barbeque and picnic Sunday, beginning at 10 a.m. at Marinwood Community Park.

The event will begin with softball championship games and will feature a barbecued chicken dinner. Beer and soft drinks will be available.

The picnic is open to the public.

Subdivision Plans Sent Back To Drawing Board

The Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee has sent a plan for the 135-unit Villa Marin subdivision in the Tennessee Valley area back to the drawing board.

Planning department secretary Evelyn McCrary reported the committee asked developer Norman T. Gilroy of Sausalito to submit revised plans for the townhouse-apartment development at its Oct. 5 meeting.

Among the changes the advisory group would like to see, she said, are a lower density of units in the development, improved street circulation and reduction of the visual impact of parking garages. Mrs. McCrary said the committee did not specify how many units should be allowed in the development.

In other business, Tuesday, the committee asked for a revised plan for street lighting in the Shelter Ridge subdivision, now under construction in Mill Valley. The group asked that light standard heights be limited to 12 feet and bulbs used in the street lamps be no brighter than 100 watts.

Performance Set By Indian Dancer

A NEW HIGH IN MARIJUANA

The tape measure tells the story as Lt. Bill Walsh (left) and Chief Dan Terzich of the Mill Valley police size up one of two 12-foot marijuana plants seized yesterday during a routine building inspection of a city dwelling. In addition to the 12-foot specimens, eight other pot plants were confiscated from the home at 630 West Blithedale Avenue. The occupant, Barbara Joan Bertol, 22, was booked into Marin County Jail for investigation of cultivating the narcotics, and released on $500 bail to appear tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

Teacher's Rehiring Is Ordered

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The state Court of Appeal ordered yesterday that the Tamalpais High School District rehire Elizabeth Blodgett, the portly physical education teacher once called a "living hypocrisy" of her profession.

Miss Blodgett, 45, weighed 228 pounds when she was dismissed in 1968 by principal Donald Kreps of Redwood High School, who said her size made her unfit for her work.

The teacher said from her Marshall home last night that she was "delighted" with the unanimous decision of the three-man court, adding it's been a "tough three years" since she was fired.

"I've had three years of what amounts to professional ostracism over this thing," she said.

Her attorney, A. Leonard Bjorklund Jr., called the ruling "just fabulous" and said the feeling of his client was that it was "a great victory for all the Charlie Browns in the world."

Miss Blodgett said she has coached football for an elementary school, worked as a substitute teacher and driven a school bus since her dismissal and "at the moment, I'm unemployed."

Although Bjorklund said his client "weighs about the same now as she did then," Miss Blodgett declined to discuss her size. "If you see any weight mentioned anywhere it will be somebody playing guessing games," she said.

The court, in an opinion written by Presiding Justice Daniel R. Shoemaker, said that despite Miss Blodgett's weight, she was an "exceptionally competent" teacher and the school district must rehire her at once.

"A thorough review of the evidence shows that the plaintiff was overweight but that this condition did not render her unfit to teach," the opinion said.

ELIZABETH BLODGETT
Appeal successful

Miss Blodgett, who is five feet, seven inches tall, first was hired as a substitute teacher at Redwood High in 1966, becoming a full-time probationary teacher in the 1966-67 and 1967-68 years.

In March 1968, she was told her teaching contract would not be renewed on Kreps's recommendation "because her overweight condition rendered her unfit for service." Her weight fluctuated during this period between 250 and 226 pounds, and she went on a crash diet and vigorous exercise program shortly before her dismissal.

Although the court was silent on the issue of back pay, Bjorklund said Miss Blodgett was entitled to three years' back wages at 7 per cent interest, but didn't know how much this amounted to.

But Richard V. Godino, assistant county counsel who has represented the school district through three years of legal proceedings, held out the possibility of a rehearing petition to the appellate court or an appeal to the state Supreme Court. And Miss Blodgett said she was still holding her breath.

"Even seeing the possibility of a conclusion at this time is something I don't care to put too much trust in," she said.

Bjorklund had appealed to the state Court of Appeal after district trustees fired Miss Blodgett on the recommendations of both Kreps and a state hearing officer, and after Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court, although sympathetic to the teacher, ruled Miss Blodgett had received fair treatment in earlier legal proceedings.

Nelder Quits His Police Chief Job

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Police Chief Alfred J. Nelder announced today he was resigning.

Nelder, named by Mayor Joseph Alioto to the position two years ago, told newsmen he wanted "to do something else."

Alioto immediately named Deputy Chief Donald M. Scott to succeed Nelder.

The 56-year-old Nelder is credited with improving morale among the city's 1,800-man force after taking over from Chief Thomas Cahill, who held it for many years and was asked to quit by Alioto.

Asked whether differences with the mayor or the Police Commission caused his resignation, Nelder said "No."

He said a recent report on the police department by the San Francisco Crime Commission "may have had" a bearing on his decision but there were also other factors.

The commission report was sharply critical of the police department and law enforcement in the city, but was based largely on a study made before Nelder took office.

"I have assessed my position in life and have decided now is the time for me to have another future," Nelder said in a surprise announcement at a news conference.

His resignation is effective as of today. Deputy Chief Dan Scott will assume his duties as acting chief until the position is filled.

Nelder, a native San Franciscan, joined the police force 28 years ago after a period as a Municipal Railway inspector.

He became a sergeant in 1950 and a lieutenant in 1956 and two years later became deputy chief.

CHIEF ALFRED NELDER
Surprise resignation

"I will wait out the day," he said. "Then the deputy chief will take over. I have been considering for some time this move and made my decision last night."

Appearing in full-dress uniform at the news conference, he told reporters:

"I don't know what my future will be—whether in law enforcement, whether with the state or federal government. I just have to wait."

Nelder said he had turned in his written resignation both to Alioto and to the Police Commission.

"The Police Commission tried to talk me into staying last night, but I have refused," he said.

Nelder was named chief Feb. 6, 1970.

President Approved Viet Raids

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon personally approved the bombing strikes against North Vietnam the White House said today, but insisted it represented no change in policy. (See War story, page 2).

White House Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the Chief Executive was involved in military planning leading up to the nearly 200 bombing sorties against antiaircraft guns and gas and oil depots in North Vietnam.

Ziegler said the heavy raids were consistent with Nixon's past statements that he would take action "to protect American troops as they withdraw from Vietnam." Ziegler insisted the raids did not represent a repudiation of the U.S. pledge to halt the bombing of North Vietnam on Nov. 1, 1968.

"Isn't this a resumption of bombing?" a reporter asked.

"No," said Ziegler, "I wouldn't characterize it as that."

He said the air action was "consistent with the President's statements in press conferences speeches."

American fighters on Tuesday flew nearly 200 combat strikes into the North.

Military spokesmen in Saigon said today American F4 Phantom jets crossed the border into North Vietnam again on Wednesday to attack an antiaircraft gun that fired on fighter-bombers carrying out strikes against communist supply convoys in nearby Laos.

It was the 61st of what the U.S. command called "protective reaction" strikes into North Vietnam. It came more than 24 hours after U.S. fighter-bombers flew the strikes into the north on Tuesday.

PEKING SHAKEUP RUMORS SPREAD

Polish Newspaper Quotes Sources Saying Chou Will Be Given An Increase In Power

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Polish newspaper Zycie Warszawy, quoting "information from Peking," said today important political changes are expected in Communist China including an increase in power for Premier Chou En-lai. Hungarian reports also hinted at political changes.

The Polish newspaper Zycie Warszawy, quoting "information from Peking," said today important political changes are expected in Communist China including an increase in power for Premier Chou En-lai. Hungarian reports also hinted at political changes.

The China mystery deepened hourly and although western diplomats said they did not know what was going on in Peking they said something important obviously was happening. The Chinese were saying nothing except that Chairman Mao Tse-tung is in "good health."

In Tokyo, the mass circulation Asahi Shimbun reported the Japanese government has monitored a message indicating all soldiers on leave in mainland China have been ordered to return immediately to their units. Earlier reports said air service had been disrupted for days.

About all that was known was that the big outdoor celebrations at Peking's Gate of Heavenly Peace, scheduled for Oct. 1, have been canceled. Explanations ran from Peking statements the celebrations would be "reformed" to reports they were curtailed for economy reasons.

In Budapest, the Hungarian news agency MTI published a report from its Peking correspondent, Denes Barcs, which said cancellation of the national holiday celebrations caused a "great sensation" among diplomatic circles in Peking, who apparently were as puzzled as anyone.

Barcs said the cancellation probably will mean that the Chinese leading officials will not appear in public on the

By WAT TAKESHITA

The National Park Service is not inflexible and will consider expanding the proposed 5,150-acre wilderness area, in Point Reyes National Seashore, a park official disclosed today during a hearing at Marin Civic Center. (Another seashore hearing story, page 19.)

The inflexibility charge came from Jerry Friedman, chairman of the Environmental Action Committee of West Marin. Friedman said he was disturbed by statements made on television last night by a park official, indicating that 5,150-acres was all that qualified for wilderness status. He charged "rigidity and lack of vision" on the part of the park service.

During the morning recess, John W. Henneberger, wilderness coordinator for the park service, told the Independent-Journal he is not "wedded" to the 5,150 acres.

"We will consider and reexamine the wilderness area in the light of the testimony. There is a possibility of expanding the wilderness area."

He said the most logical area for expansion would be into Lake Ranch, which comprises the southern area of the seashore, including a series of lakes and Double Point, the gathering place for seals.

One problem would be to see what access roads can be closed because a wilderness designation means no buildings and no roads, not even for maintenance, said Henneberger.

Pierre W. Joske, director of parks and recreation for Marin reiterated the county's position, asking for expansion of the wilderness area, which is now confined to a portion of Inverness Ridge, from Mount Wittenberg to the Bear Valley Gap.

The county wants other "fragile areas" like Double Point, Tomales Point, most of the esteros, the Lake Ranch and inter-tidal zones added to the wilderness. Until the wilderness area is determined, the county wants the collection of all specimens banned from those fragile areas.

The Sierra Club and other conservation groups lined up solidly today in favor of expanding the wilderness area from 5,150 acres to almost 33,-

Supreme Court Justice John Harlan Resigning

WASHINGTON (UPI) —John M. Harlan, 72, is retiring as a Supreme Court associate justice, the White House announced today. His resignation followed by only six days that of the Court's senior member, Hugo L. Black.

Harlan's retirement means President Nixon will have an opportunity to appoint a third and fourth justice to the Court. The Court's new term opens one week from next Monday.

Like Black, Harlan has been ill recently. He has been hospitalized more than a month with an apparent back ailment. Black, 85, submitted his resignation last Friday and has since suffered a stroke that left him in critical condition.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, who announced the retirement, quoted Nixon as saying, "Mister Justice John Harlan is one of the great legal scholars in the history of the court and will be regarded by history as one of the towering figures of the court."

Harlan retired "for reasons of health" in a letter delivered by special messenger to the White House. This was the

U.S. Battle Deaths Show Slight Drop

SAIGON (UPI)—The number of American battle deaths dropped slightly to a total of 13 last week but the total number of wounded more than doubled to 111 despite sparse reports of ground combat involving U.S. troops, allied spokesmen said Thursday.

For the South Vietnamese, who have been engaged in heavy fighting in the U Minh Forest at the southern tip of South Vietnam, the killed-inaction list soared more than 50 per cent to a total of 397 deaths last week.

Magee Wins Battle For Another Haley Autopsy

By MARY LEYDECKER

After a closed hearing described as "intense," Judge Richard E. Arnason yesterday granted a request by Ruchell Magee's attorney that the late Judge Harold J. Haley's body be exhumed and a new autopsy be performed.

The request was opposed during arguments in visiting Judge Arnason's chambers in the Marin Hall of Justice by both an attorney for Judge Haley's widow and the prosecutor, Asst. Atty. Gen. Albert W. Harris Jr.

The judge, who declared that he had a headache after the two hours of argument, acceded to the request by Magee's court-appointed attorney, Ernest L. Graves of Los Angeles.

A major contributor to the decision was a complete about-face made by the pathologist, Dr. John Manwaring, in connection with his opinion on the direction of bullets which caused deaths of two other persons in the Aug. 1970 shoot-out.

(Magee is charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy along with Angela Davis in connection with the shoot-out. She is accused of providing the guns and he with actually firing the shot which killed the judge.)

It was learned that Graves yesterday also told the judge there had been another switch in an autopsy report in connection with the death of George Jackson at San Quentin on Aug. 21, but the judge said he would not consider that in his decision.

Through the new autopsy Graves seeks to show that the judge was dead before the firing of the shotgun Magee is accused of shooting. Earlier Dr.

CAPT. ERNEST L. MEDINA
Found innocent of all charges

Capt. Medina Says He Will Leave Army

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (UPI) —Although his acquittal on charges of being responsible for the My Lai massacre leaves him free to continue his 16-year military career, Capt. Ernest L. Medina says he wants out of the Army.

"I don't know exactly when I'll be able to leave, but that is my intention," Medina said Wednesday while surrounded by wellwishers.

Medina, 35, a Mexican-American described by fellow officers during his courtmartial as "one of our finest company commanders in Vietnam" said he was convinced his military career was ruined by the trial.

"I woundn't want to waste another year or two for nothing" by staying in the Army, he said.

Medina was the last officer charged in the slaughter at My Lai. The jury deliberated only 57 minutes and the verdict came at 4:19 p.m. EDT Wednesday. That was in sharp contrast to the verdict in the conviction of Lt. William L. Calley Jr., which took 13 days.

One other officer, Col. Oran K. Henderson, is on trial at Ft. Meade, Md., but he is accused of covering up the massacre, not with the actual killings.

Although Medina is leaving the Army, he said he was not sure what he would do. He was offered a job immediately after the verdict from Glenn W. Turner of Orlando, Fla.

Turner said Medina "has a job with me if he wants it — and I'll pay a lot more than the Army does."

Medina's attorney, F. Lee Bailey said Turner had paid many of the expenses for the Medina defense — probably in excess of $20,000 or $25,000.

When the decision came, Col. Kenneth A. Howard, the military judge, called Medina before the bench and then the president of the court, Col. William Proctor, rose and addressed Medina:

"Capt. Ernest L. Medina, it is my duty as president of this court to advise you that the court in closed session, and upon secret written ballot, has found you not guilty of all specifications and charges."

Bailey gave a party Wednesday night to celebrate Medina's acquittal. About 100 persons, including Howard, attended. Medina wore a pink shirt and black bell-bottom trousers with red stripes. His wife was clad in a blue pants suit and was barefooted.

Curran Beaten In San Diego

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)— Mayor Frank Curran, who ran on the platform "If you like San Diego, why make a change?" has finished a badly beaten fourth in his bid for a third term.

Curran 58, president of the National League of Cities last year, was indicted on bribery and conspiracy charges last October in connection with taxicab rate hearings. He later was acquitted by a superior court jury.

He received only 10.4 per cent of the vote Tuesday while top vote-getter assemblyman Pete Wilson obtained 37.1 per cent. Wilson will meet runnerup Ed Butler in the Nov. 2 general election.

Children Killed; Afraid To Jump

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Keith Dabney, 9, jumped from a second floor window of his home Wednesday night to escape flames and choking smoke that took the lives of his five brothers and sisters.

The other children ages 2 to 10 were afraid to jump.

Keith and his mother, Grace Dabney, 26, were the only survivors of the fire that gutted their two-story row house in what fire Lt. Roman F. Granados described as the worst he has seen in 13 years.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Malta Agreement

LONDON (UPI)—Britain and Malta have reached a six-month interim agreement on British and North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) use of the Mediterranean island's naval facilities.

Simultaneous announcement of the settlement was made in London and Valetta last night. It was reached after weekend conferences between Premier Edward Heath of Britain and Premier Dom Mintoff of Malta.

A Foreign Office spokesman said final agreement will depend on a "series of bilateral arrangements" yet to be negotiated between Malta and individual NATO countries.

Money Solution?

TOKYO (UPI)—Prime Minister Eisaku Sato said today Japan will table a "drastic measure" at the forthcoming meeting of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) in order to stabilize the world monetary crisis.

The leader of Japan's Conservative government told the opening session of the Japan Chamber of Commerce and Industry that he has directed Finance Minister Mikio Mizuta to present the Japanese program to the IMF conference, scheduled to open in Washington Sept. 27.

Disarm Pact Near

GENEVA (UPI) — The 25-nation disarmament conference will complete work next week on a new international treaty banning biological weapons and send it to the U.S. General Assembly for world approval, western officials said today.

U.S. and Soviet negotiators expect their respective governments to approve a final draft of the treaty so that it can be presented at next Tuesday's session, the officials said.

Then, barring last-minute hitches, the conference will end its 1971 session at the end of the next week and submit the treaty to the General Assembly.

The United States and Russia presented the first treaty draft to the conference Aug. 5.

Wants A Southerner

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, today urged President Nixon to appoint a southerner to the Supreme Court.

In a statement, Eastland said that "the truth is the South has no real representation on the court.

"All we have is a presidential promise that this region of the country will be represented," he added.

Pay Hike Delay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A record $2.4 billion in military pay raises, tacked on to a draft extension law and scheduled to go into effect Oct. 1, will be delayed until after President Nixon's wage-price freeze ends Nov. 13.

The White House announced the plan to delay the raises yesterday.

"It is our intention that the increase not be applicable during the period of the freeze," said Gerald Warren, deputy White House press secretary.

The draft bill, which extends military conscription until June 30, 1973, won final approval in the Senate Tuesday. It awaits Nixon's signature.

Hits Two Chinas

TAIPEI (UPI)—Nationalist China charged today that Washington's "dual representation" formula to keep both Chinas in the United Nations was a "flagrant violation of the charter."

Dr. Wei Yu-sun, spokesman for the Foreign Ministry, said in a statement that Washington's move "to sacrifice a founding and faithful member (of the United Nations) is in flagrant violation of the charter of the United Nations."

"This move," he added, "is not only against the wishes of the Chinese people but also undermines the dignity of the United Nations, destroying its moral strength as well as the basic principles of the charter."

Pounds Bermuda

MIAMI (UPI)—Hurricane Ginger slapped the Bermuda area with 72 mile an hour winds and heavy seas today on its westward trek through the Central Atlantic.

Forecasters said, however, that Ginger was a "minimal" storm and was not expected to cause any serious damage to the island that is the frequent target of winter storms.

To be safe, two cruise ships and a British navy ship left the island ahead of schedule Wednesday to get out of the path of Ginger.

SALT Rounds Over

HELSINKI (UPI)—American and Soviet negotiators today wound up the fifth round of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) on a "positive note" and agreed to meet again in mid-November in Vienna, conference sources said.

Today's meeting at the American Embassy — the 92nd overall since SALT began in Helsinki 22 months ago — lasted 60 minutes in a formal plenary session, followed by 40 minutes of informal discussion.

More Shots Fired

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Gunmen fired a number of shots at British soldiers and a crowd hurled nail bombs, bottles and stones at troops conducting search operations in Belfast today, an army spokesman said.

No casualties were reported in the clash in the Tullymore Gardens area of the Northern Ireland capital, the spokesman said, and soldiers were able to take control.

A bomb thrown from a passing car exploded near the long Nesh Internment Camp near Lisburn outside Belfast and blasted a hole three feet deep in the bank of a main highway near the outer perimeter of the camp where security suspects allegedly have been confined without trial, an army spokesman said.

Harris To Run?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., will hold a news conference Friday in the Senate caucus room that was selected by Eugene McCarthy and John F. and Robert F. Kennedy, to announce their candidacies for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Harris, who declared July 16 his intention not to seek re-election to the Senate, was expected to declare formally that he was in the presidential race. Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., is the only other declared candidate.

With five months to go before New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary, other potential Democratic candidates have still not announced their decisions.

Dump Agnew Report Denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A chief political aide to President Nixon knows of no plan to drop Vice President Spiro T. Agnew from the Republican ticket next year.

"There never has been such a plan here (in the White House)," Harry Dent said Wednesday. "I'm not saying what will happen down the road, because I don't know."

Dent confirmed he had written a letter to Wilfred Dalton, head of the Queens County Conservative Republican Association in New York, denying that the dropping of Agnew was under consideration.

Brezhnev Plays Up To Tito

BELGRADE (UPI)—Leonid I. Brezhnev dismissed as a fairy tale the fears that the Soviet Union would invade the Balkans. Yugoslav officials were jubilant today, but some wondered if there was a price to pay for the Soviet Communist Party leader's apparent concessions.

Brezhnev arrived yesterday for a three-day "unofficial and friendly" visit that had Yugoslav officials visibly nervous about the possibility of tough new Soviet demands. Instead, in a toast at a formal banquet last night, Brezhnev reeled off a string of pronouncements that, if taken at face value, could have a major effect on world communism.

He said the "so-called new doctrine of limited sovereignty" —the "Brezhnev Doctrine" which Russia used to justify its invasion of Czechoslovakia — was a "fable ... a slanderous invention."

He also dismissed "rumors of Soviet armies which are allegedly getting ready to start marching on the Balkans."

Brezhnev, who continues private talks today with his host, Yugoslav's President Tito, also reaffirmed the 1955 Soviet-Yugoslav agreement. This gave Yugoslavia "equality" with Russia and the right to build its "own road to socialism."

However, the Soviet party leader said this agreement must be "realized under contemporary conditions," the phrase that some officials here found ominous and had them wondering if it meant there would be a price to pay. The two leaders were greeted by applause when they arrived at a government reception Wednesday night after the banquet. Most Yugoslav officials at the banquet appeared delighted with Brezhnev's speech — particularly his affirmation of the 1955 agreement, which is the basis of Yugoslavia's independent status within the Communist world.

Brezhnev blamed both the "doctrine of limited sovereignty" and "rumors" of Soviet invasions on unnamed "various forces."

German auto manufacturers say blue is the most popular color.

U.S. Setback In First U.N. Test

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)— The United States suffered a preliminary defeat Wednesday night in its struggle to keep Generalissimo Chiang Kai shek's Nationalist Chinese regime from being expelled from the United Nations if mainland China is admitted.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush predicted a "very, very close" vote when the issue comes up for General Assembly debate Oct. 18.

The assembly's 25-nation steering committee defeated 12-9 with three abstensions a U.S.proposal asking that opposing American and Albanian resolutions be debated at the same time.

The Albanian proposal asks that mainland China be admitted to the United Nations and the Nationalist regime be expelled. The two American resolutions seek to keep the Nationalist regime in the world body.

Among the nations voting against the United States on combining of the opposing resolutions were the Soviet Union, Britain and France.

The China representation issue was to come up for assembly debate Oct. 18. A decisive vote on whether to seat Communist China and oust Nationalist China was expected by the end of the month.

American Air Raids Hit Red Fuel Dumps

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. command said today the massive American air raids into North Vietnam Tuesday set off sustained fires in fuel storage dumps and destroyed at least three Communist air defense radar stations.

The military command also reported that U.S. F4 Phantom jets crossed the border into North Vietnam Wednesday to attack an antiaircraft gun that fired on fighter-bombers hitting Communist supply convoys in nearby Laos.

It was the first report on the results of the nearly 200 bombing strikes into North Vietnam Tuesday, the heaviest raids north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) in six months.

The command said the raids produced "large fires" of gas and oil depots.

"Strike aircraft reported numerous large sustained fires and heavy, black smoke indicating that strikes on oil storage areas had been successful," the communique said. "In addition, three air defense radars were put out of commission. An accurate (previous) assessment was hampered by the smoke and weather, which was cloudy and overcast."

The command did not mention any bombing runs against antiaircraft sites and missile emplacements.

Under U.S. policy, so-called "protective reaction" strikes into North Vietnam can be carried out if Communist gunners fire on unarmed U.S. photo reconnaissance jets or their armed escorts or at American planes on missions over the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

New Drug Abuse Boss To Proceed Slowly

By MARY LEYDECKER

Marin County's new drug abuse and alcoholism coordinator, who left his native New York City because of the "hopelessness" of conditions there, said he "really turns on to Marin County."

Lloyd Churgin, who at 34 has had many years of experience working with addiction programs in New York, recently took over the newly created Marin post.

In an interview, he compared New York to India, which he recently visited, where "the problems are even more drastic but even fewer people are responding."

Marin is different, Churgin believes. Speaking of the programs already underway in connection with drug abuse and alcoholism, Churgin, said, "I'm impressed with the scope of the programs in Marin — with the community support, both from professionals and lay people."

Talking rapidly, with an accent that immediately marks him as a New Yorker, Churgin said, with a smile that he likes "the diversity in life styles" he finds in Marin, where he is also "amazed at the richness of skilled and concerned people."

His first job will be to try to get "an accurate picture of what's happening — the scope of the problem — where it is and how much," he said.

Studies not only to find out what kind of drugund alcohol problems Marin has will be made but also to determine what services are being offered and to whom and how much they cost.

"No one really knows the number of alcoholics in Marin County," for example, Churgin said.

He termed alcoholism a much more serious problem in Marin than drug abuse — "but that's not to demean drug abuse, which is also a serious problem," he said.

"The costs to the community of alcoholism are staggering," he continued. For example, he said that during the month of March this year, 45 per cent of the persons in the county jail were in for alcohol-related offenses.

Going on to discuss heroin, Churgin drew on his long experience in New York.

As for the various approaches to curbing addiction, he believes that "anything that works for some people" is fine.

Methadone definitely has a role — certain addicts who will not respond to traditional psychotherapy will respond to methadone," he said.

"Methadone is not a panacea," however, according to Chrugin. It is more addicting than heroin and the withdrawals are worse, but he believes that it gives many addicts a chance to "stay out of jail and stop robbing . . . so that causal problems can be dealt with."

Synanon-type methods also work for many addicts, Churgin said, although "the therapeutic communities," as he termed such places as Synanon and Mendocino State Hospital, "have reentry problems" persons returning to society.

People start to use drugs for several reasons, including curiosity, peer pressure and excitement but not for psychological reasons.

"Why they continue is another things," Churgin said.

'Marin has a richness of skilled and concerned people'

"Heroin fills a function . . . (for addicts) . . . they feel good; it gives identity and a life style," he explained. He emphasized that something else has to be available to fill the need of the heroin.

Finally, he said, "Every addict thinks 'I'm different — I'm not going to get addicted,'" when he starts using heroin.

Along with programs for curing addiction, Churgin hopes to improve drug education efforts so that people will learn "you can't solve complex human problems with chemicals."

"Education is not for someone already into a heavy drug scene," however, in Churgin's words.

He believes that efforts to reach young persons should be ongoing — "not just one shot," such as having a former addict talk to a classroom once. "Young people have a role too," he said. "They care about what's happening to their friends.

To his new job, Churgin brings experience which began in 1964, when he started working with a street gang of Puerto Rican youths in New York.

The youths, who were heavily involved with drugs and alcohol, ranged in age from 14 to 18, according to Churgin. Although he got along well with the gang members "I con9 affect their behavior. I way only one person in their lives," he said.

Several years later he revisited the neighborhood of the gang and found that several members were dead, some were in jail and some were addicts. "I felt a lot of pain," Churgin said about the fate of his young friends.

Churgin went on to work for the Addiction Services Agency, run by New York City, where he said, "We touched so few people."

He said that only about 1,000 of New York's estimated 50,000 to 100,000 drug addicts were being treated under the program.

"I was burned out," he said after working with addicts and last year took a long trip, which included a visit to India, which he found a more discouraging place than New York City.

"I came back with a very good feeling about America," where so many people are concerned about problems and trying to do something about them," Churgin said.

He even views New York as a "fantastic place in many ways — in spite of the brutality and violence."

As for life in general, the mustached New Yorker who smiles a lot said, "I think the world is a pretty good place."

Innocent Plea To Heroin Sale

Otis Dell Robinson, 38, of no known address, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of selling heroin.

Preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Robinson was arrested last Thursday on a warrant charging he sold three balloons of the drug to an undercover agent in front of Gerstle Park in San Rafael Aug. 5.

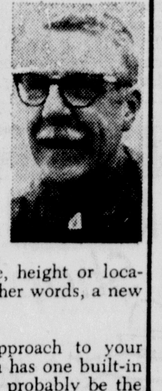
Changing Your Point of View



One thing that separates the striking and original photograph from "just another snapshot" is a fresh way of looking at the subject. Often that comes from looking at it from a different angle, height or location . . . in other words, a new point of view.

The first approach to your subject for you has one built-in hazard: it will probably be the first approach for everyone else. So the easy way is suspect. Try for something different.

Remember that things look different coming and going, from a high angle looking down, or sharply upward perspective. Shadows change from the right or left side, the front or rear. The relation to the background also changes.

Even if your photographic subject can't move around, you can. So don't take the first picture you think of. Instead, take a walk . . . around your subject, looking for a new point of view!

Election Stand By Senate Ires Thieu

SAIGON (UPI)—Saigon newspapers said today President Nguyen Van Thieu was so angry and surprised at a senate resolution calling his one-man presidential race illegal that he invited the National Assembly itself to reorganize the election.

Political observers said the strong tone of his reaction as reported in several reliable newspapers seemed to indicate that Thieu not only was angry but worried. They said his invitation to the assembly to "carry out its responsibilities" and do something to stop the Oct. 3 election could be a sign he was preparing to surrender on the issue.

Although the National Assembly is considered to be staunchly pro-Thieu, the Senate backed Thieu even more strongly until yesterday when it passed a resolution by a vote of 28 to 3 calling the election illegal.

Thieu's reaction was reported by the newspaper Tin Song, which is directly backed by Thieu's private secretary and principal spokesman, Hoang Duc Nha. Almost identical reports were carried by the moderate opposition newspaper Chinh Luan and the Hoa Binh, run by a conservative Roman Catholic priest who strongly opposes Thieu.

Tin Song said Thieu was told of the Senate action while flying back from a campaign visit to Pleku and that he immediately responded with: "Why didn't the National Assembly dare to correctly carry out its own responsibility, instead of appealing to others to be aware of their responsibility?"

It said Thieu's viewpoint was that the Assembly writes the constitution and he only follows it. But the main implication was that Thieu is aware that even his strongest political supporters are splitting away from him because of his power-grabbing tactics.

Thieu met earlier in the day with one of President Nixon's top security advisers, the U.S. Embassy announced.

Brig. Gen. Alexander M. Haig, deputy assistant for national security affairs under Henry Kissinger, met the South Vietnamese president for one hour and 45 minutes in late afternoon. He was accompanied by U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth C. Bunker.

The meeting coincided with an announcement that all 215,000 U.S. troops in Vietnam would be placed on Grey Alert Friday "in anticipation of possible enemy acitivity" during the final 10 ays of the South Vietnamese election campaign.

U.S. Embassy policy is that the subject of meetings between American officials and President Thieu is not discussed.

holiday and that no protocol list will be published. The lists generally list the Chinese leaders in order of importance.

In Taipei, Nationalist intelligence sources speculated that developments on the mainland indicate Peking's power structure has undergone a drastic change. They said any such drastic change also will touch off a new purge.

Taipei also seethed with rumors as did many world capitals. One was that President Nixon already was in Peking. But Washington reports said he was in Washington, would fly to Detroit for a public appearance tonight, and then would fly to Alaska Saturday to meet Japanese Emperor Hirohito. The Japanese speculated earlier Nixon might fly direct to Peking from the Alaska meeting.

Other Japanese reports hinted that military moves in Red China might have something to do with a new confrontation with the Soviet Union in their long festering border dispute.

While Zycle Warszawy was reporting possible political upheavals in Peking, the Chinese Embassy in Warsaw began decorating for its National Day observance. There were four pictures of Mao Tse-tung on a bulletin board outside the embassy, one of his presumptive heir, Lin Piao, several pictures of Chou En-lai, but none of Mme. Chang Ching, Mao's wife.

Youth Denies Burglary Count

Anthony Paul Bell, 18, of San Francisco has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of burglary.

Preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Bell and Roy Chester Johnson, 27, of San Francisco, were arrested last Thursday when they were reportedly seen leaving the residence of Herman A. Vanderkamp of 72 Ridgecrest Road, Kentfield, with a television.

Johnson pleaded innocent to the charge on Monday and also has a preliminary hearing set for Tuesday.

Trial Ordered For Ex-Convict

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Ex-convict Harry B. Conwell, 43, yesterday was ordered to stand trial Oct. 18 in the knife murder of the 89-year-old father of a Marin woman.

The victim, George Cushman, was fatally stabbed and his wife Elinor, 75, seriously injured during a robbery of their Marina district apartment Aug. 13.

Conwell was captured after a chase. He gave his address as a San Francisco hotel.

He pleaded innocent yesterday in San Francisco Superior Court, and the judge ruled on the basis of psychiatric examinations ordered earlier, that Conwell was sane and should stand trial.

The slain man was the father of Jean Wiedenmeyer of San Rafael.

Residents Lost In Redistricting

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors has approved redistricting of the five supervisorial districts that will reduce the second district by 513 residents.

The second district, encompassing Rohnert Park, Petaluma and Cotati, formerly totaled 42,451 residents. The new population for the district will be 41,938.

The Santa Rosa district was most heavily affected with an increase of 5,000 residents. The redistricting was required to comply with federal standards on the one man, one vote principle.

The Novato Boys Club Building Fund campaign for $100,000 has reached $26,500, bolstered by two donations of $1,000 each, according to Edward T. Ghirardo, bond chairman.

The Bank of Marin and builder Ronald F. Antonioli of San Rafael each have purchased a $1,000 boys club bond, he said.

The average contribution in the bond campaign is $227, Ghirardo reported.

Another Oil Spill Fouls Bay Waters

MARTINEZ (UPI) —About 420 gallons of oil spilled into San Francisco Bay today while a tanker was loading at a refinery in the second such incident in the area in a week.

A spokesman for the Shell Oil Co. said the oil escaped when a coupling broke aboard the S.S. Catawba while bunker fuel was being pumped aboard.

BLACK

same procedure that was followed in Black's announcement.

Harlan has been on the Court 16 years—one of five appointees that President Dwight D. Eisenhower made to the high bench.

On only four previous occasions in the 20th Century have there been two vacancies simultaneously on the Supreme Court.

Harlan, the Court's second ranked justice after Black's retirement, entered Bethesda Naval Hospital Aug. 16 but his office did not disclose that fact until a month later.

He had suffered from a recurrent back ailment. He was transferred Sept. 16 to George Washington University Hospital and is still a patient there.

He was appointed to the Court by Eisenhower on Jan. 10, 1955, and has been considered one of its more conservative members.

"The President, of course, recognizes that there are now two vacancies on the Court," Ziegler said. "He will want to move as swiftly as possible in finding highly qualified persons for these positions."

But, Ziegler said the President will take as much time as he thinks he needs to settle on the right individual for the lifetime appointment.

Ziegler noted that Nixon had discussed with Attorney General John N. Mitchell last Saturday seven possible nominees to the court. Ziegler said the list of possibilities would probably be expanded beyond seven because there now are two vacancies.

Nixon has been considering a possible nominee to succeed Black since a few hours after getting the Alabaman's letter last week.

With Harlan's retirement, there was growing speculation one of his two new selections would be a woman. Mrs. Nixon herself confided that she has urged her husband to select the first woman associate justice.

Unlike his announcement when Black retired, Ziegler carefully avoided saying Nixon was looking for the right "man." He used the term "person."

Nixon also was known to be reviewing a number of possible candidates from the South in line with his notice, after failing to get two previous southern choices approved by the Senate, that he still intended to try to get a southerner on the Court if he had the opportunity.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D Miss., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, urged Nixon today to pick a southerner.

Man Arraigned, Pleads Tuesday

Francis James McManus, 43, of San Pablo, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on misdemeanor charges of reckless driving and failing to pay toll on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge.

He is to plead to the charges Tuesday.

McManus was arrested last Friday after California Highway Patrol officers said he drove at speeds of up to 115 miles an hour across the bridge before colliding with two other cars at the Highway 101 overpass of Highway 17.

Interviews Set For Fireman

Directors set the interview date last night and authorized moving a fire hydrant on South Novato Boulevard, south of Center Road, at a cost of $255.

John T. Preston, hearing officer, presided today at the second day of public hearings on the seashore master plan and wilderness proposal. With Preston were Joseph C. Rumburg Jr., director of the western region of the National Park Service, and John L. Sansing, superintendent of the seashore.

Rumburg promised that the park service would be responsive to the public testimony and added that his responsibility is to the entire national public as well as to local requests.

Written statements may be mailed until Oct. 23 to Sansing at Point Reyes National Seashore, Point Reyes, Calif.

ORDER

Manwaring had said he was not sure whether the shotgun blast or a wound in the chest which was caused by another San Quentin inmate killed the judge.

If Magee were not guilty of firing the fatal shot, he might be saved from an automatic death penalty he faces if convicted of murder as a convict serving a life sentence.

Attorney John G. Buresh, who represented the judge's widow, Gertrude, in yesterday's hearings said that he did not bring sentiment into his arguments.

Rather, he said, both he and Harris argued that Graves had not yet exhausted other means to determine which shot killed the judge.

He said later, however, that the decision was up to the judge and that "if Harold (Judge Haley) had been sitting on the same case, he might have made the same decision."

Judge Arnason yesterday told Graves to prepare an estimate of the cost of the new autopsy, which Buresh said he thought would be "staggering."

Graves said that he plans to bring a Viennese pathologist, a Prof. L. Breitenecker, and his son, who lives in Baltimore, to perform the autopsy in San Francisco. He is also seeking to have medical photographers from Los Angeles involved in the proceedings.

The date of the autopsy is to be kept secret, the judge said.

Judge Haley is entombed in a crypt at Mount Olivet Cemetery in San Rafael.

In other action yesterday, Graves filed a request that Magee be transferred to either the Marin or San Francisco County Jail from San Quentin. He said that his case is being adversely affected by his being housed in the same building as the two surviving Soledad Brothers as well as others who might have been involved in the Aug. 21 violence at San Quentin.

There is no date set for Magee's next court appearance but Miss Davis is due in court Monday (which was to have been her trial date) for setting times on hearing two final pretrial motiof.

One asks her case be transferred to San Francisco and the other that certain evidence be suppressed.

Youth Denies House Burglary

James Demello, of no known address, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of burglary.

Preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 5.

Demello and Robert Elton Yates, 18, of San Rafael were arrested Monday after witnesses told police they saw the youths leaving a residence at 108 Coleman Drive, San Rafael. Police said they found property from the residence in Yates's car when it was stopped a short distance from the house.

Yates's case has been transferred to Marin Juvenile Court.

MONKEY ON HER BACK

Jeffrey, a worried-looking monkey, appears content to remain on his master's shoulder as the clear waters of Corte Madera Creek in San Anselmo flow below. Jeffrey and his owner, Jo Feldman, took part in yesterday's "creek walk" by the city's public works department to inspect the creek for obstructions. In the background, Public Works Director Charles R. Leitzell (center) discusses one such obstruction with a member of his staff, Arthur Lewis, as Earl C. Cordy, a citizen, looks on.

Last Coast Preservation Bill Squeaks By Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly yesterday barely passed ed the last surviving major legislation to protect the California coastline from land developers and sent it to an uncertain fate in the Senate.

The bitterly contested legislation would create a powerful statewide commission and six satellite regional commissions which would enforce a moratorium on development while a masterplan was drafted for submission to the legislature later.

The commissions could, however, allow development along the coast by granting permits. The permit area would extend 1,000 yards inland from the high tide land.

The chief bill in the coastline protection package by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Beverly Hills, cleared the Assembly on a 54 to 16 vote. It needed two-thirds or 54 votes. Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, voted for the bill.

Sieroty's proposal represented the last major coastline protection program this year. Three rival proposals were killed Monday in the Senate ate Natural Resources and Wildlife Committee.

Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti of Van Nuys called for a favorable vote, asserting that "it is not going to happen that we rescue this state and its natural resources accidentally."

"Our choice is to do something or nothing," Moretti said. "I realize we are stepping on a lot of very important and powerful toes with this legislation but it isn't as strong as some would like it to be."

Sieroty implored the Assembly to respond to the appeals of conservationists and citizens who "are attempting to work within the system to try to develop effective legislation to protect one of our great natural resources."

The measure was bitterly opposed by local governments and private landowners, who felt they would be "subjugated to the whim of a commission."

One opponent, Assemblyman Robert Badham, R-Newport Beach, argued the measure was sought by "the landlocked who want to control the be-jeepers out of our coastline."

But Assemblyman John Dunlap, D-Napa, an advocate of strong controls, asserted that the coast of California "does not belong to the few people fortunate enough to have property there or to communities that happen to be located there. The coast of California belongs to everyone."

Badham replied that the California coastline "from the wet sand seaward belongs to everyone in the world, I suppose, but we do have property owners in the State of California ... We do have property owners along the coast and those people have rights."

While the masterplan for protection of the coast was being drawn, the moratorium on new development would be in effect. The plan would be submitted to the 1975 legislature for approval.

The commissions could, however, issue waivers for certain developments by special permit such as for dredging, constructing high-rise buildings, and reducing the size of public beaches.

Assemblyman Paul Priolo, R-Pacific Palisades, whose dis Palisades, whose district includes scenic Malibu, noted that regardless of how they voted legislators would "take heat" from constituents but urged passage, calling the bill the "only game in town."

Postal System Will Be Tested

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Starting Oct. 1, the U.S. Postal Service will test the electronic transmission of mail.

The facsimile mail system will be tried out between New York City and Washington.

Post master General Winton M. Blount told the national postal forum Wednesday message will be transmitted electronically by facsimile equipment. They will be placed in envelopes for delivery by letter carriers.

Largely business mail will be used in the test. If it proves successful, Blount said, the system probably "would be continued on a permanent basis."

'I Can' Talk

Senate Panel Backs New Regional Agency

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation creating a development and conservation agency for nine San Francisco Bay Area counties has been approved by the Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee.

The measure, which was opposed by San Francisco and Napa counties, would establish an 83-member board of trustees to create a development plan for the area.

Opponents labeled the board a "super-government," and called for the bill to be ratified by voters in the affected counties.

The measure, by Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, was sent to the Senate floor on a split voice vote.

It would require the board of trustees to study transportation needs, open space, park provisions and environmental quality control. The board would develop its plan during a three-year period.

Counties involved are San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Alameda, Contra Costa, Solano, Napa, Sonoma and Marin.

An amendment allowing counties to ask the Council on Intergovernmental Relations to exclude them from the proposed agency was added to the bill by Knox after protests by the Sonoma County Board of Supervisor .

The Sonoma supervisors asked that their county be taken out of the measure.

The agency would have the power to see that local governments abide by its development plan. The agency would be supported by a tax of four cents per $100 of assessed valuation on all property transactions.

Local governments and regional agencies would supply 43 of the members and the other 40 would be elected to four-year terms.

Scientists Alarmed By Energy Demands

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—An international panel of scientists warns that man's growing demand for energy could cause the Arctic Sea ice to melt witin a century — possibly unleashing drastic changes in the world's climate.

The 30 atmospheric scientists from 14 countries said in a report released yesterday that too little is known about the "complex systems that determine climate" and urged an international program of research and measurement.

Until these systems are understood, they recommended that an international agreement be made, preventing any largescale experiment in climate modification, such as a Soviet proposal to reverse the course of four rivers flowing through Central Asia.

The scientists issued the warning in their "report of the Study of Man's Impact on Climate (SMIC)" presented Wednesday to a U.N. committee preparing for a conference on the human environment in Stockholm this June.

"We recognize a real possibility that a global temperature increase produced by man's injection of heat and CO2 (carbon dioxide) into his environment may lead to a dramatic reduction, or even elimination, of Arctic Sea ice" over the next century, they said.

The effects on climate, especially in the Northern Hemisphere, "might be large and include changes in precipitation, season temperatures, wind systems and ocean currents," the report said.

Unlike the glacial ice at the poles, the skin of ice on the Arctic Sea is no more than 10 feet thick. The scientists said there were indications that it would take only a rise of a few degrees centrigrade in the average temperature of the Northern Hemisphere to begin the melting process.

The production of energy, now rising at a rate of from 5 to 6 per cent a year worldwide, releases heat into the atmosphere. The carbon dioxide diffused in the burning of coal, oil and natural gas retains heat by absorbing solar and infrared radiation, they said.

Other factors influencing the climate, the report said, include the clearing of forests and jungles, the drawing of groundwater and diversion of rivers for irrigation, seeding of clouds and the exhaust products deposited high in the troposphere or the lower stratosphere by jetliners.

Indicted On Avoiding Draft

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The 24-year-old son of San Mateo County District Attorney Keith Sorenson has been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges he refused induction.

The indictment against Thomas K. Sorenson, Redwood City, was signed by U.S. Attorney James Browning, a former San Mateo County deputy district attorney.

Sorenson was charged with failing to report to the Army's Oakland Induction Center on Nov. 12, 1970.

The former Brigham Young University psychology student said he told the Selective Service Board that he was a conscientious objector. However, the board turned down his request and the panel's decision was not appealed.

RENAISSANCE CENTER MODEL

A model of old English style houses represents a setting the Renaissance Center hopes to construct in Marin on the recently purchased Grady Ranch in the Upper Lucas Valley. The center is intended to be a recreation of an Elizabethan era English village as a cultural study center in Renaissance and Medieval arts, crafts, humanities and performing arts.

MARIN COUNTRYSIDE — This typical setting on the 1,000-acre Grady Ranch just purchased by the Renaissance Center resembles the terrain of an English countryside, according to Phyllis and Ronald Patterson, president and secretary of the nonprofit education foundation. The Pattersons said they hoped to transform the ranch into a Renaissance cultural center.

Jade Case Points Up Policy Lack

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — "We don't have a public policy — that's why we're picking on the jade case," said Assemblyman Kenneth Cory, D-Orange County, at a meeting this week of the Joint Committee on Public Domain.

The jade case — in which a five-ton boulder of the gem was taken from off the shores of Big Sur — started when it was learned that the finders had no permit and were operating on state lands. With a permit the state would be entitled to 20 per cent of the value.

"There is an understanding that the jade is the property of the state, and in indications are that there will be arrangements for the state to receive 20 per cent of the jade's worth," said F. J. Hortig, executive officer of the State Lands Commission.

"There is an agreement not to dispose of the stone until settlement is made with the state," Hortig added, explaining that in 1959 a fisherman found jade in the same area, but was unable to find a commercial market for the rock.

"There is no record of anyone having profited from such a find," he said.

Hortig told the committee the next step is to determine the real value of the jade, and whether there is a market. He said that administrative practice over the years has established the policy individuals have the right to collect small amounts of minerals on state lands, but there is no statute regulating such policy.

"So many people have picked up small pieces of jade there's not much left on the beach," Hortig said of the Big Sur area.

Though there is no state regulation, the U. S. Department of Interior has set a 100-pounds-per-person-per-year limit on rock collecting on public domain lands.

Donald Wobbler, who headed the group that found the jade in question, disagreed "with some of the things said of what happened in the case," but said he feels the place to deal with those details is directly with the State Lands Commission.

"It would be well, I think, to consult the confederation of Gem and Minerologists and to get some recommendations from the public," added Wobbler. He too supported the state need for a definite land use policy.

New Water Supplier For Olema Is Likely

The North Marin County Water District board has passed a resolution of intention to form an improvement district to provide water service to Olema.

Directors acted Tuesday night after receiving a petition from 37 property owners for formation of a district, according to Dist. Mgr. Eugene S. Churchill.

The petitioners, representing 95 per cent of the property owners in the area, currently are receiving water from the Olema Water Co., but there are problems of quality and quantity, Churchill said.

The proposed district would cover 605 acres and would serve the headquarters of the Point Reyes National Seashore and the Olema area, Churchill said.

A hearing on formation of a district will be held at 8 p.m. Oct. 19 in West Marin, location not yet set, he reported.

The Olema Water Co. obtains its supply from a spring on the Old Bear Valley Ranch and a well along Olema Creek, Churchill said. If a district is formed, water could be supplied by extending an existing district line down Bear Valley Road.

Earlier this year the district took over the Point Reyes and Inverness Park water companies in the West Marin area.

The North Marin County Water District board also:

WATER STORAGE — Received a report from Churchill that water storage levels have increased to normal after dropping below the halfway mark last Thursday, closing day of the hot spell.

JANITORIAL SERVICE — Awarded Dun-Rite Maintenance Service of Petaluma, lowest of five bidders, a contract to provide janitorial service at the administration building and corporation yard building at $347 a month.

BOND CONSULTANT — Hired Bank of America as bond consultant on its $1.6 million bond measure up for a vote Nov. 2., its unsold $1,290,000 in bonds from 1961, and $250,000 in bonds for the Point Reyes Improvement District, at a fee of $10,000.

Building Of Club Backed

The Novato Parks and Recreation Commission has endorsed plans for construction of a $100,000 Novato Boys Club.

Commissioners agreed Monday night to establish close coordination with the club, which is in the midst of a campaign to obtain building funds.

David E. Milano, president of the boys club board, sent commissioners a letter urging coordination. He foresaw no overlap of services and suggested there could be time when the city could use the proposed clubhouse and the boys club could use city facilities and programs.

Boyd Museum Announces Activities For Autumn

The Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science has announced its annual autumn activities — including field trips, handicraft lessons, hikes, nature studies, films and other family activities — will start Monday.

Enrollment information may be obtained at the museum, 76 Albert Park Lane, San Rafael.

Field trips will include morning nature walks for mothers and preschool children, a family Bear Valley hike, weekly family excursions in Marin, bird hunts, tidepooling and father and son fishing.

There will be films on animals and weekly nature films, as well as nature studies in bird skins, birds of prey, natural photography, snakes and reptiles.

The museum will offer classes in leather; childrens' crafts such as mobiles, chimes, beading tie-dying and collages; papier mache work, printing with linoleum blocks; macrame, weaving and natural dyes.

Arraignment In Marijuana Case

John Anthony Pancamo, 21, of Houston, Tex., has been arraigned in Marin Municipal Court on a misdemeanor charge of possessing marijuana.

He is to plead to the charge Monday.

He was arrested Friday, along with Joseph Francis Meyer, 25, of Tiburon, when a sheriff's deputy allegedly saw the men rolling marijuana cigarettes in the backyard of Meyer's residence.

Meyer is to be arraigned on a similar misdemeanor charge Monday.

Snarl Over Successor To Foreaker

The Marin Municipal Water District board, because of an unexpected legal entanglement, yesterday postponed a decision on whether to elect or appoint a successor to director Ray W. Foreaker Jr.

After hearing seven letters from organizations and residents who favored the election procedure, atty. Peter B. Brekhus, district counsel, said it would be illegal for the board to conduct an election to replace Foreaker who has resigned to become county public works director.

Brekhus, referring to the state water code which governs municipal water districts, said the language states directors "shall appoint" a replacement. The law provides for an election after 60 days if directors are deadlocked.

According to Brekhus, the phrase "shall" traditionally has been interpreted to mean a "mandatory duty."

Directors debated at length whether or not to break the law by calling for an election and ultimately decided to ask counsel to investigate previous use of the law and any penalties that might be incurred.

A suggestion that the board call an advisory election with the prior agreement that it would appoint whoever was elected also was referred to counsel. The proposal was made by atty. Thomas H. Thorner, chairman of Marin Alternative.

During the meeting, directors came close to asking the board of supervsiors to allow Foreaker to remain on the board until April when an election could be held.

That proposal, which was discussed in great detail, was killed when Foreaker said he would not withdraw his resignation unless the board would commit itself to an election. (Earlier in the session, Foreaker had said he would consider withdrawing his resignation if the supervisors unanimously approved his temporarily remaining on the water board).

Director Eugene A. Miller suggested the board go on record favoring an election. However, Chairman Robert G. Anderson and directors John M. MacPhail Jr. and Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. said they were not ready to make such a decision and the motion failed for lack of a second.

Earlier, Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger criticized board members for using Foreaker as a "pawn."

Seeger declared, "In my opinion, you're putting Ray Foreaker in one hell of a postion)6I kn't see him going into a new career in the county as a pawn."

In his letter of resignation, which the board finally accepted effective Sept. 30, Foreaker had said his new job might result in a conflict of interest if he remained on the water board.

MacPhail brought the discussion to halt, agreeing with Seeger that Foreaker should not be kept on as a "lame duck director."

In addition to the letters received by the board, several audience members spoke out in favor of a District I election to fill Foreaker's term which extends until December, 1974.

Directors received a letter from Halsey H. Lyon of San Anselmo, president of Diesel Systems Inc. of San Rafael, asking to be considered for the post.

Two Big Hurdles Before Pact For Water Becomes A Reality

Marin Municipal Water District directors yesterday approved in substance a 25-page contract with the Sonoma Water Agency which outlines the Russian River water project.

Before the contract can be executed, however, two things must take place.

A bill that will allow the district to enter into such an agreement with another water agency must be signed by the governor. It already has passed the Assembly and Senate.

A majority of district residents voting Nov. 2 in a special referendum election must authorize the district to enter into the agreement with the Sonoma agency.

Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger reviewed the contract for more than an hour, but directors made few comments on the document.

Details of the project embodied in the contract (fully reported in the Independent-Journal July 26) drew little board or audience discussion of the overall project. But some points in the lengthy agreement were questioned from the audience and drew the following information from Seeger:

A clause has been included that gives the Sonoma agency title to all lands and rights-of-way that the aqueduct will be built on in an attempt by the Marin water district to avoid paying a possessory interest tax on the property.

Source of water for as long as 10 years is the Coyote Creek. Once the total water required for the Sonoma and Marin districts exceeds 25 million gallons daily from the Creek, water will be taken from the Warm Springs Dam on the Russian River.

Once the district begins using water from Warm Springs Dam it is liable for its entire share of the construction cost even if, at some point in the future, it has no need for the additional water.

There is a possibility that the North Marin Water District will not enter the agreement with the Marin and Sonoma districts. However, no additional cost will be added to Marin's share of the project if that should occur.

Until the aqueduct is constructed, Marin plans to bring additional water into the district by buying surplus from the North Marin district. There is no guarantee on how much water will be available to Marin, however.

The district is obligated for the cost of the project at the time of construction. Estimates of $35.3 million, Marin's share of the cost, do not include interest charges and only allow for a 5.8 per cent raise inconstruction cost annually.

The agreement specifies that, if Marin can not make its annual payment out of revenue before July 1 of any year, the district agrees to levy a tax to raise the unpaid amount.

The district has the right to prepay its share of the aqueduct cost at any time, although a subsequent reduction in interest cost is not spelled out.

Marin must pay for the aqueduct even if it does not become operational or later ceases to be operational.

Water Measuring Stick Takes Heat Wave Dip

Residents in Marin Municipal Water District used an extra 18 million gallons of water daily during the recent four-day hot spell, according to district engineers.

J. Dietrich Stroeh yesterday reported to the district board that a total of 185 million gallons of water was used during the heat wave between Sept. 12 and 16 when temperatures reached as high as 111 degrees in Woodacre.

Average summer usage of water is 36 million gallons daily, but on the hottest day, Sept. 14, a maximum of 54 million gallons was recorded used in the district, Stroeh said.

The average for the four days was 46.25 million gallons daily.

The highest previous water use was July 4, 1970 when residents used 48.8 million gallons when temperatures went over 100 degrees.

Stroeh said the district was able to maintain adequate service by notifying golf courses, schools, cities and the state highway department to discontinue watering lawns and shrubbery. The irrigation halt came on the third day of the hot spell.

Marin Municipal Water District board also:

RACES — Approved a request from College of Marin to use Lake Lagunitas area to hold cross-country races Oct. 2 and Nov. 10.

ORDINANCE — Approved an ordinance amending the limited purpose facilities provision to require that persons be informed, before they purchase land, that they will have to pay for installation of water.

RETIRED — Extended praise to Charles J. Soldavini, district treasurer, who will retire Oct. 1 after 47 years in the district.

EEL RIVER — Heard a review of the history of the Eel River Water Council from Jerry Butchert, executive director, who also outlined some of the council's objectives.

LAND SWAP — Indicated present unwillingness to exchange its 5.5-acre pipeyard property north of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard below Hutchinson Quarry for a four-acre plot next to its corporation yard in Corte Madera. Title Insurance Properties Corp., according to its planner and spokesman Norman T. Gilroy, has an option to buy the Corte Madera property and would like to trade it for the pipeyard property in order to consolidate holdings in the quarry area which might one day provide a right-of-way for rapid transit.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 1:30 p.m. tomorrow to prepare ballot arguments for a referendum election Nov. 2.

SPITE FENCE? — A workman proceeds to put up a barrier that the director of the Sausalito Arts Center says is intended as "petty harrassment" by the Sausalito School District administration. Not at all, says the district superintendent. The barrier at one end of the center driveway is intended to protect children attending nearby Bayside School.

Gate Strains Good Neighbor Policy

A redwood barricade-gate now under construction at the west end of the circular driveway in front of the Sausalito Arts Center has triggered renewed acrimony between the center and Sausalito School District officials.

Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg, who ordered the barricade raised, says it is needed to keep cars from turning onto the street in front of the center from a blind driveway and endangering students on their way to nearby Bayside School. The district owns the Old Bayside School building in which the center is located.

Center director Shelagh Considine, on the other hand, contends the single barrier will create a more dangerous situation than already exists. She pointed out that cars parking in front of the center will now have to back downhill and into the street in order to exit from the parking area.

Mrs. Considine also complained she was not notified of the district's plans for the barricade and found work on it begun when she came to work yesterday morning.

"If I had been notified, I could have called our board together and we could probably have worked out a better solution to the problem with the school district," she said. "Perhaps we could have clipped the hedge (alongside the driveways) for better visibility or installed speed traps to force cars to proceed out of the driveway into the street at very slow speeds.

Lindberg said he tried several times Tuesday to contact Mrs. Considine, but was unable to reach her. "For the safety of the kids, we had to get something up there right away," he said. Mrs. Considine told the superintendent she had been in her office all day Tuesday and there had been no calls for her from the school district.

Lindberg admitted the barricade would force cars to back out and suggested he may ban all parking in front of the art center during school hours. To accomplish this, he said another barricade-gate (which would be opened after school hours) would have to be constructed at the other entrance to the parking area.

If day-time parking in front of the center is abolished, the superintendent said art center cars could use a lower parking area west of the facility during the day.

Mrs. Considine, who has been center director since early August, called the building of the barricade without notification to the center "petty harrassment." When I became director, Mr. Lindberg told me the district's biggest problem with the art center had been that the center did not inform the district of what it was doing," she said. "I have tried to be a good neighbor and keep the district informed of our activities, but apparently the district does not believe in returning the favor."

Lindberg said that no harrassment was intended.

In July the Sausalito School board voted to evict the center from the school property within 30 days. Later the board changed its mind and directed representatives of the district to meet with attorneys for the art center to work out a lease on the building that was satisfactory to both parties.

Lease negotiations are still continuing.

Bus Firm Still Wants Key Role

Marin Transit Systems officials and those of the Golden Gate Bridge District remained in contention today as they discussed the Marin City-based firm's claim to be included in the district's huge new bus system.

Panelists on KTIM's "Sounding Board" program who debated the issue were Lowell J. Edington, president of the bridge district board; Thomas Jenkins, attorney for the bridge district; Theophus Barron Jr., president of Marin Transit System, and Albert B. Bianchi, attorney for the Marin City based company.

At stake is what role the small new bus company, now operating a five-bus pilot project, will play in the 152-bus system which the Golden Gate Bridge District will start operating both for commuters and within the county on Dec. 1.

The Marin City company has based its hopes of taking over one-third of the new buses on language of the law under which the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration operates. (This agency is processing a $6.3 million grant which will pay part of the cost of the new buses.)

Barron today charged that the law provides that existing private firms should not be put out of business and that the Nixon administration has pledged to support minority enterprises.

"We are not asking charity, he said, but rather his company wants to be rewarded for hard work and sacrifice.

"We are going to fight to stay alive," Barron continued, saying he was not interested in merely getting jobs for his employees in the new Golden Gate Bridge system.

His attorney, Bianchi, agreed that the federal law provides that "the program shall encourage to the maximum extent feasible the participation of private enterprises" and that the mere offering of jobs did not meet this requirement.

He compared the job offer to the attitude of an "1860 plantation owner.."

Bridge board President Edington, however, maintained the main reason that Marin Transit Systems can't be cut into operation of the new bus system is that it's not feasible for two entities to run it.

He said that the Marin Transit District (a county body) had already agreed to have the bridge district run the new transportation system, made possible by profits on the bridge in combination with the federal grant.

"The field of public transportation . . . is a loser," Edington said, indicating that any transit system will have to be subsidized and that Marin residents are fortunate that bridge money is available for such subsidy.

Furthermore, attorney Jenkins said, the Marin Transit System was not in operation when plans first started for the bridge district system, which will supplant Greyhound Bus in Marin.

Both he and Edington suggested that the transit system buses could be utilized as charter buses or in accordance with a suggestion made last week, as shuttle buses in Point Reyes National Seashore.

"If they still can't succeed with all the subsidies, we will give their employees jobs," Jenkins said.

Although Barron said that "we are ready and willing to provide" intracounty transportation, Edington suggested that the "convenience and beauty" of the new bridge district buses may provide better service.

He explained that buses will be used primarily for commute runs in the early morning and evening and during the daytime, for intracounty routes.

"We will not run a spine system like Greyhound," he said.

The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be rebroadcast at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Several Types Of Baldness; Most Common Kind Inherited

Hair patterns are set by heredity. Those with too much or too little should blame their grandparents. No wonder the young 20-year old who is destined to become bald cannot stop his hair from thinning or his forehead from receding. One of my colleagues has the right attitude. According to him: "I don't have too little hair, other people have too much." He never feels sensitive about his shiny dome, and I must admit it is always neat.

THERE ARE several types of baldness. The ordinary kind is hereditary and varies from slight thinning on the crown to complete loss of hair. As we said, nothing will help this form of hair loss except grafting tufts of hair from the sides of the head (hair transplantation). Toupees also are popular.

But most baldies should learn to live with their inheritance and save their money. After all, baldness cures have been touted for the last 40 centuries. They have one similarity — all fail to grow hair.

BALDNESS RESULTING from infection, such as ringworm, gives the scalp a moth-eaten look. For this type, remedies are available. Alopecia areata, which should not be confused with hereditary baldness, is confined to smooth, round patches. Patchy baldness accounts for less than 3 per cent of all cases. Spontaneous improvement is common, and others are helped with active treatments. So-called "cures" make excellent advertisements for before-and-after pictures published by hair specialists.

BILLIONS ARE spent on hair restorers, dyes, tints and wave sets. It shows that few individuals are satisfied with their own thatch. But I prefer to believe that these products are used to improve the appearance of existing hair. Many people make the mistake of working too hard on this project. The scalp should not be abused with strong chemicals or electrical devices to stimulate the circulation.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

MILK DIET

H. I. S. writes: From time to time I go on a milk diet for my duodenal ulcer. What is the most effective treatment for this disorder?

REPLY

If milk does the trick, let it go at that. On the other hand, diet, antispasmodic drugs and antacid tablets are important in healing the open ulcer. For lasting results, you must learn to control your emotions and avoid anxiety, stress and fatigue. It has been said that an ocean voyage or equally tranquil-type vacation promotes healing of 90 per cent of all peptic ulcers (without drugs). Persistent and severe ulcer distress usually responds to surgery.

THICK NECK

Mrs. B. writes: My 17-year-old son is rather short and is developing a thick neck. Is this an indication of any trouble?

REPLY

No. Short boys are liable to have short necks that thicken as they become more muscular.

SIT UP TO EAT

S.D. writes: Is it harmful to feed a 5- month-old infant solid food while he is lying down?

REPLY

No, but it is more natural and easier when the youngster sits up.

ALCOHOL AND PRESSURE

J.K.B. writes: Does chronic alcoholism lead to high blood pressure?

REPLY

No.

Today's Health Hint — Never discard medicines where children or pets might get at them.

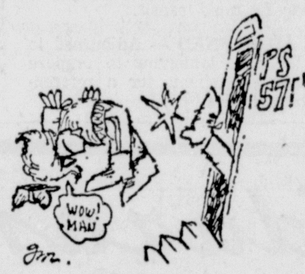
LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Fair Hearing For Students



In 1960 several students of a state school were expelled after participating in demonstrations against discriminatory practices at lunch counters. The reasons for their expulsions were not made clear.

The students claimed that they could not be expelled without a hearing. The court agreed. It held that a state school had a right to discipline students, but that a student had a right to a fair hearing and "due process."

The California Education Code outlines a method for review of alleged student misconduct in the public schools. An imposition of punishment by a teacher or principal may be challenged before the superintendent of schools. A decision by the superintendent may be reviewed by the Board of Education.

The board must give notice to the pupil, and to his parent or guardian, of the reasons for the disciplinary action. If they are dissatisfied, they may then request a public hearing.

What kind of hearing is required? First, the hearing is not a trial. The student must be given notice of the charges, and told that if the charges are proven, they would justify his expulsion from school.

Second, the student is not entitled to cross-examine or confront his accusers. The hearing need not wait the outcome of a criminal procedure, and proof need not be "beyond a reasonable doubt." However, the student should be given the names of witnesses against him, and a summary of their testimony.

Third, there is no right to be represented by counsel at the hearing, although attorneys are occasionally present for the students. The basic requirement is that the hearing be fair. (Note: California lawyers make this column available so that you may know about our laws.)

Princess Is Against Abortions

MONACO (UPI) — Princess Grace of Monaco said today she agrees entirely with most of the aims of the women's liberation movement but not on abortion.

In an interview with the newspaper Nice Matin the former actress Grace Kelly of Philadelphia said, "I am not keen on talking about such a complicated problem" as abortion. "But for my part, I am against it.

She is a Roman Catholic.

"I agree entirely with their (feminists') claims for the equality of women alongside men in work and, of course, in all social responsibilities," she said.

"What shocked me in listening to the American 'suffragettes' was that when they demand an abortion law, you have the impression that it is above all a legal guarantee which will end their personal responsibility," she said.

Urban Coalition Issues Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The National Urban Coalition issued another report today on U.S. inner city conditions. It said most things were getting worse, but ghetto and barrio residents were beginning to "reach for the levers of power."

Its commission on the cities in the '70s issued no new recommendations, which coalition chairman Sol Linowitz said pointed up a conclusion that "What is needed —urgently needed —is not a new set of priorities but a new sense of national commitments."

The comission, headed by Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York and Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., avoided any specific criticism of President Nixon. Mrs. Aileen C. Hernandez, president of the National Organization for Women and a commission member, said if there was blame, it attached "to every administration since Franklin D. Roosevelt's."

Courthouse Pitch Ties Rec Bond Talks

San Rafael Park and Recreation Commission members agreed last night to await the outcome of city negotiations to buy Courthouse Square, before asking the city council to consider holding another bond election to finance a new city recreation center.

Andrew J. Snyder Jr., parks and recreation director reported that he told the commissioners a recreation center was urgently needed. The city recreation program has been operated out of temporary quarters, most recently in the Courthouse Annex, which is temporarily closed during demolition work on the old courthouse building, destroyed by fire in May.

The city council on Monday night instructed City Mgr. James H. McCown to negotiate with Marin County officials toward eventual acquisition of the square where the courthouse stood for 98 years.

San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission Also:

VANDALISM — Discussed continued vandalism at Gerstle Park, and decided to repair the nighttime closing sign so it could not be removed. Snyder reported the city police have cooperated in patroling all the city parks to deter vandals.

PROGRAM — Snyder announced that signups were to begin today at Albert Park clubhouse for the fall recreation classes.

TENNIS — Snyder reported that Commissioner Norma Wall's suggestion for a system of using plastic cards to unlock tennis courts was investigated and found to be too costly to install.

MARCH — Granted, subject to use fees and clean-up deposits, permission for the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom to use Albert Park as the end-point of a peace march from San Anselmo on Oct. 25.

BIKE SIGNS — After learning that the city council felt the proposed bicycle trail signs were too large, agreed that the signs should be uniform with neighboring cities, but suspended action on the issue until completion of the city portion of South San Pedro Road.

HIRING — Heard that a screening committee of recreation professionals will review 50 applications for the job vacated by Gary R. Frugoli, assistant recreation supervisor, as of Sept. 1. Frugoli took a police department job.

PLAY EQUIPMENT — Commissioner Robert Schoen reported the Bank of Marin has offered to donate play equipment for small children in the East Canal area. Parks Supervisor Scott Tilden was instructed to confer with bank officials about the most suitable type of equipment.

Association Eying Planting Of Bushes

Lynwood Park Improvement Association members are considering placing bushes along the backs of fences facing South Novato Boulevard for beautification.

Members, who gathered Tuesday night, also talked about planting bushes at other locations such as the end of Sunset Parkway and Leafwood Drive, reported Kathleen Loeffler, corresponding secretary. No action was taken, she said.

Mrs. Considine Is Granted An Annulment

The marriage of nightclub operator Michael R. Considine, 35, and Shelagh Considine has been annulled in Marin Superior Court.

The annulment was sought by Mrs. Considine who was named director of the Sausalito Art Center last month.

According to her petition, the couple was married in Reno Sept. 12, 1968, and separated Nov. 25, 1968. She filed for the annulment in January 1969.

Mrs. Considine was granted custody of a daughter, Shawn, 4.

She had charged Considine with cruelty and said he caused her mental suffering and bodily injury.

Considine formerly operated the Lion's Share coffee house in Sausalito, but it was destoryed by fire in 1968. He now operates the Lion's Share on the Miracle Mile in San Anselmo.

FBI Reports Arrest In Bomb Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The FBI said today it has arrested Charles Noel Hess, 29, also known as David Allen Werner, in connection with the bombing and burglary of the Santa Cruz National Guard armory July 24.

Hess was arrested Wednesday night in a remote area of Santa Cruz County near Corralitos, and a large number of weapons taken in the burglary were recovered.

Picked up at the time of Hess' arrest were 16 machine guns, 47 .45 caliber pistols and a grenade launcher. The FBI said some weapons had been recovered previously.

Hess has lived in the Salinas area for about four months and was employed as a time keeper in a produce firm at Salinas. He was arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Francis J. Carr on charges of possession of stolen government property.

Penalty on the charges is 10 years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Hess was lodged in Monterey County Jail in Salinas when he was unable to meet $50,000 bail.

FBI agents said the armory burglary occurred after a pipe bomb was set off in one room and the door to the weapons storage area was broken open.

Draft Evasion Charge Dropped

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Federal draft evasion charges against a 21-year-old San Rafael man have been dropped, the U.S. Attorney General's office said yesterday.

Charges were dropped, it said, on orders of a U.S. District Court Judge in Jacksonville, Fla. who found Wayne Edward Gardner of 239 D Street physically unfit for service.

A friend, Rodney Alan Woods, 21, of San Anselmo, is awaiting trial Oct. 19 in Los Angeles on charges of harboring Gardner from arrest.

Pilot Quotes Bible in Delay

LONDON (UPI)—Officials at London airport said they called for a Bible today when a Royal Air Force pilot en route from Gander, Newfoundland, was ordered to divert his VC10 airliner to Keflavik, Iceland, and pick up some equipment.

The pilot answered the diversion order with the message, "Deuteronomy, Chapter 27, Verse 18," the airport officials said.

The officials said a Bible check showed the verse cited by the pilot read: "Cursed be he that maketh the blind to wander out of the way. And all the people shall say amen."

Hub Youth Hurt

A 17-year-old San Anselmo youth was treated yesterday at Marin General Hospital for a sprained neck and back hospital officials said he received in an auto accident at about 3 p.m. Details of the accident involving Christy Mauer, 75 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, were unavailable.

San Quentin Art Show Scheduled

San Quentin Prison's 17th Annual Fall Arts and Crafts show is slated to open at 8:30 a.m. Saturday with more than 2,000 paintings and handicrafts on sale.

Officials at the prison yesterday advised visitors not to wear blue denim clothing since that is the inmates uniform.

Persons so dressed will be turned away at the door, the spokesman said.

The art show is a major source of income for many inmates and last year was attended by about 20,000 people who purchased $35,000 worth of merchandise.

The show will run from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. with an auction slated for 2 p.m.

Elsewhere around the prison, normal operations were resumed today for the first time since the Aug. 21 escape attempt which left three guards and three inmates dead.

Although inmate traffic within the walls was restricted, information officer Joseph R. O'Brien said, the facility was "just about" normal today.

He said about 1,700 men had returned to jobs while 350, including inmates in the adjustment center, remained locked up. The adjustment center was the scene of the Aug. 21 violence.

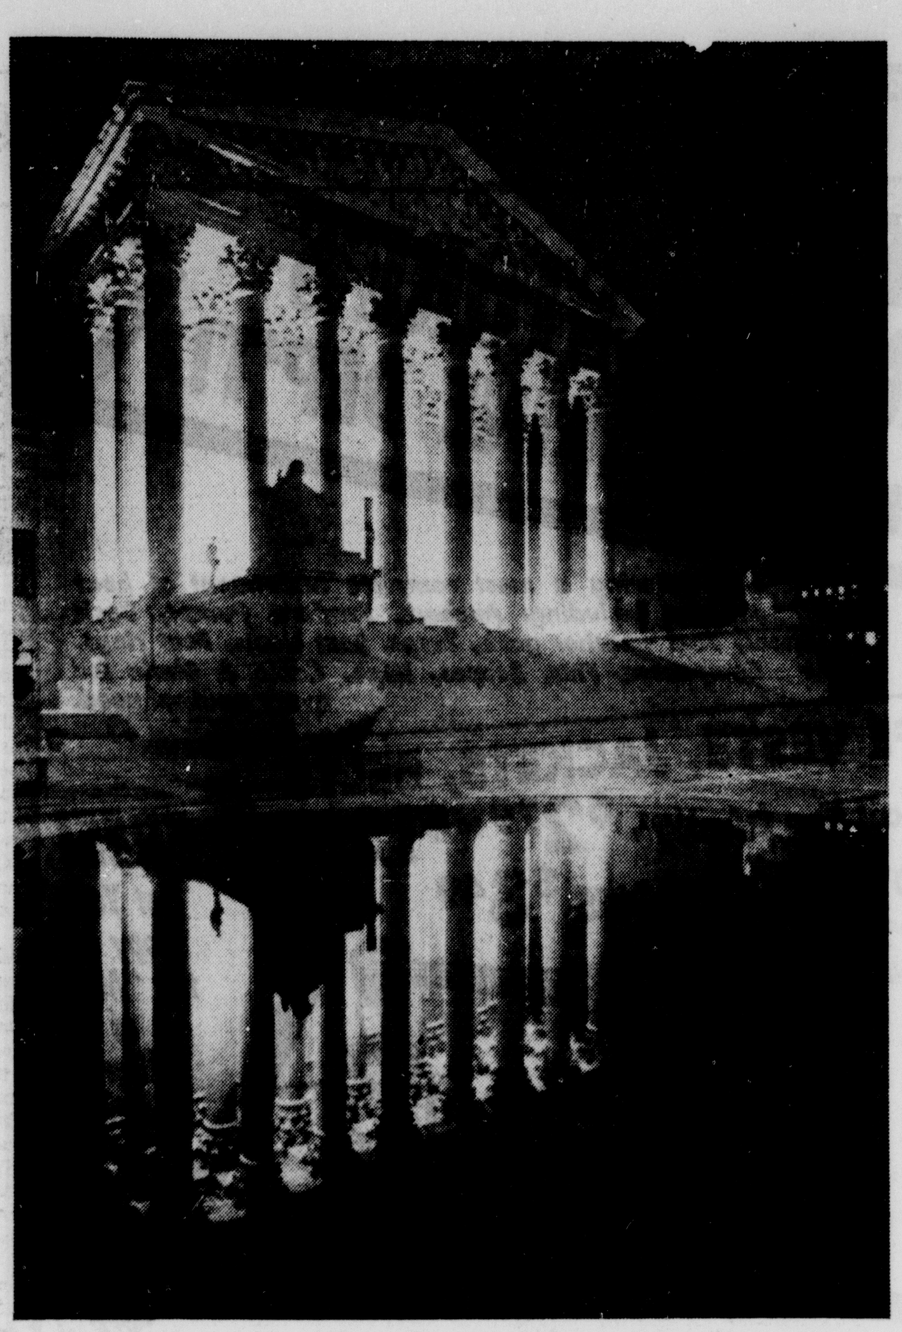
Innocent Plea In Theft Case

John Keith Scherbarth, 18, of Dunbar, Wis., pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to felony charges of car theft and possession of stolen property.

Preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 5.

Scherbarth was arrested Monday by Mill Valley police who said he was driving a car that had been stolen Sunday from in front of the residence of its owner, Jack Benjamin of 84 Buena Vista Avenue, Mill Valley.



REFLECTIONS AT NIGHT

Postal Hike Hearings Nearing End

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The new Postal Rate Commission said today it was nearing the end of its lengthy hearings on higher mail rates which already are in effect on a temporary basis.

The commission, created under the 1970 Postal Reorganization Act to act on postal rates sought by the semi-independent U.S. Postal Service, has been holding hearings since May 17, the day after the $1.45 billion in higher rates were put into effect.

The rate group had proposed changes in the rate scales to the Postal Service's board of governors which will make the final decision.

The rate commission's chairman, William J. Crowley, said in a speech to the fifth annual National Postal Forum that even after the hearings are completed, a "monumental task" remains to analyze the 11,000-page record and prepare a recommendation to the service's governors.

While indicating it still will be considerable time before there is a final decision on the rates —including a one-third jump in charges for most types of mailings—Crowley defended the process as giving all sides "complete freedom" to present their views.

Another speaker at the forum, W. J. Usery Jr., praised both leaders of the postal service and representatives of workers' unions for "some of the noblest leadership" he had encountered during negotiations for their first contract.

Tests Show Tranquilizers Make Pigeons Work More

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At Georgetown University here a scientist dosed some working pigeons with tranquilizers.

Instead of slowing the pigeons' work pace, the tranquilizers increased it.

Does this mean that tranquilizers are not, after all, tranquilizing, and that human beings may not find them relaxing?

Not necessarily. Pigeons aren't people, of course, but the Georgetown experiments with them suggest the possibility that a little tranquilization can ease the pain of work and thus improve performance.

The Georgetown pigeons were given the chore of getting food by pecking a key. The number of pecks was increased for each successive work session.

Dr. Donald M. Thompson, assistant professor of pharmacology, explained it this way:

"Eight pecks would be sufficient to summon the first food reward, but 16 would be required the next time, then 24, and so on."

After 60 sessions, when the pigeons' normal pecking responses had been established under the increasing work loads, they were tested with varying doses of two tranquilizers — Librium and phenobarbital. "Under the influence of either drug," Thompson said, "the pigeons worked more— they completed more demanding work requirements."

Thompson said he believes the tranquilizers made the pigeons' chores seem less onerous to them, "and therefore led to greater performance."

Might human beings, exposed to the stress of increasingly demanding but essentially tedious jobs, also benefit from judiciously prescribed doses of relaxing drugs?

It may take considerably more study to tell whether what seems to be good for pigeons is also good for people.

Screams Do Not Halt A Slashing

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)— "I screamed out to them, "I don't have any money. I don't have any money!"'

But Bruce Lamar, 22, was viciously attacked, his skull fractured, his tendons severed on both hands and his face disfigured. He was the sixth victim of what police call "totally senseless" recent slashing assaults in this University of California community.

Police said all of the slashings have apparently been aimed at inflicting injury since none of the victims were robbed and the two women attacked were not molested.

Six persons, all Caucasians, have been attacked in the campus area since July 27, apparently by "two black adults" who used a "heavy-bladed knife" such as a machete or a cleaver, police said.

Students are becoming wary about walking about at night and the university's administration has issued a memorandum warning women staff members not to walk alone after dark.

"I don't go out walking now at night and I worry about the children walking on campus," said Karen McNally, 31, a graduate student in geophysics who is married with two children. She said she was going to enroll in a free university self-defense course.

Fewer Children, Higher Rents In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The city's child population has taken a drastic drop in the last 10 years, the U.S. Census Bureau reported Wednesday.

Officials said the number of those under five years of age dropped from 58,851 in 1960 to 43,003 in 1970—a 26.9 per cent decline.

The ranks of those between 5 and 14 dropped 8.8 per cent to 89,564, the bureau said.

There was a 6.5 per cent increase in the number of persons 65 and older. The 1970 total was 99,738.

Other Census Bureau figures showed:

—The median rent in the city rose to $128 last year. This is 88 per cent higher than the figure for 1960.

—The value of the median home climbed 62.4 per cent to $28,100.

No Letup Seen In Brazilian Terrorism

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)— The slaying of Carlos Lamarca last week left Brazila's guerrillas without a nationally known leader, but the military government of South America's largest nation does not expect the terrorist movement to collapse because of it.

On the contrary, army intelligence officers said they believe the threat of urban terrorism remains as strong as ever. Some predicted the number of political terrorist acts may even increase.

Lamarca, a former army captain who deserted in 1969 to join the guerrilla movement, earned his fame as a terrorist by receiving the official blame for directing the kidnaping of three ambassadors.

The three kidnaped diplomats were C. Burke Elbrick of the United States, who was abducted in 1969, and Ehrenfried Von Bolleben of West Germany and Enrico Giovanni Bucher of Switzerland, both of whom were kidnaped in 1970. Each was subsequently released after the government freed a group of political prisoners and flew them into exile in Algeria and Mexico.

Diplomatic sources said the death of Lamarca, who was trapped and killed in a gunbattle with security police last Friday in Bahia state, was another boon to the prestige of the hard-line military officers who took over the government in 1968 and have pressed stern measures not only against political terrorism but also against any open political opposition.

Before Lamarca, the military government hunted down and killed his predecessor as the Brazilian terrorist leader, Carlos Marighela, two years ago in Sao Paulo, Brazil's largest city.

But just as Lamarca emerged to replace Marighela, so could another guerrilla rise to the stature of a national figurehead or leader to replace Lamarca.

There are numerous small, independent terrorist cells in Brazil, and army intelligence sources predicted these could create further trouble even without any symbol of national leadership.

The main significance of Lamarca's death, however, is that it left the terrorist movement at least temporarily without leadership and booted military and police morale that had been stung by the diplomatic kidnapings. The army held a special grudge against Lamarca since he was once a model soldier and one of the top marksmen in the Brazilian armed forces.

The prestigious Rio newspaper, the Jornal do Brasil, called Lamarca "the last leader of subversion." And another Rio newspaper, O Jornal, said, "the last leader of the terror is dead."

But in Sao Paulo, the newspaper O Estado de Sao Paulo said that there are expectations of "new leaders to emerge."

Art Festival In San Francisco To Open Today

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The 25th annual Arts Festival opens today in Civic Center Plaza with the emphasis on the big and gaudy.

More than 2500 pieces of arts and crafts are on display and painter Susan Kelk said "there have never been so many visionary painters in the festival."

There was an extra-life-size sculpture of a woman with a guitar in psychedelic colors created by thousands of bright objects glued on to the basic figure.

"People kept bringing things to us and saying 'this is for the lady,'" Larry Fuente of Larkspur explained. He and Dickens Bascom of Bolinas created the work.

The festival will run 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. through Sunday.

Attica Panel Impartiality Questioned

ABANY, N.Y. (UPI)—A state legislator who served on a citizens committee which tried to end the Attica prison rebellion has said the committee "turned into a pro-prisoner group instead of a formal neutral negotiating committee."

Assemblyman James L. Emery said black and Puerto Rican members of the committee, and recognized spokesmen for minorities, failed to take steps which could have freed hostages and not endangered human life.

After five days, police stormed the rebel-held compound in the prison and the death toll reached 40.

In other developments Wednesday, the labor union representing 8,000 prison workers threatened to lock all convicts in their cells Oct. 7 unless Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller implements immediate prison changes.

And a source in the Rockefeller administration estimated that damage to the Attica Correctional Facility would total more than $3 million.

In calling for the "lock-in" of all state prison inmates in two weeks, officials of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes cited the need for improved prison conditions.

House Expected To Approve Tax Slices

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., will take a $15 billion tax reduction bill to the House for expected rubber stamp approval about Oct. 4.

The package, which includes provisions for increasing personal exemptions to $675 and for low income tax relief, passed the House Ways and Means Committee under the guidance of chairman Mills.

While Mills prepared to present the bill, whose measures spread over three years, President Nixon was scheduled to fly to Detroit to deliver a speech that will be broadcast nationwide on radio at 9 p.m. EDT today.

(Nixon will be heard at p.m. today on radio station KTIM.)

Nixon may reveal some of his economic plans to follow the wage-price freeze that ends Nov. 13.

The Mills' bill sharply modified tax-easing proposals made by Nixon, increasing relief for individuals from a suggested $2.2 billion to $5.6 billion and reducing his tax cut for business by $4.9 billion.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally said the administration preferred its own proposals, but that "on balance the actions taken by the committee represent constructive consideration of the President's recommendations."

Connally said the administration would support the Mills' bill when the House votes, and appealed to the Senate Finance Committee to open hearings on it soon.

The Labor Department reported a .03 per cent increase in the cost of living in its first monthly statement since Nixon ordered the 90-day freeze Aug. 15.

Man Is Booked On Check Fraud

A 26-year-old Marin City man was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on a warrant charging two counts of fraudulent possession of checks.

Oscar Mickey Curry, 69 Cole Drive, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court and held in jail in lieu of $2,500 bail to appear today for plea.

Two checks dated April 2 for $45 each were made out to Curry with a forged signature of Capt. Lincoln Borba of the San Rafael Police Department, according to an affidavit filed with the warrant.

The affidavit states that Borba had his personal car washed that day at Wade's Polish Service where Curry was employed and six days later Borba found that three checks were missing from the checkbook he had in the back of his car.

Innocent Plea To Drug Count

Sarah Kit Cousins, 22, of San Francisco, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to felony charges of possessing and cultivating peyote.

Preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 12.

She was arrested Aug. 23 after Sausalito police stopped her car on Bridgeway because it had no 1971 registration sticker.

Police booked her at Marin County Jail when they discovered there were $316 worth of traffic warrants out for her from San Mateo and San Francisco.

While booking her, a greenish peyote cactus button was found in her purse.

She also has a preliminary hearing set for Tuesday.

Mrs. Nixon For Woman On Bench

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pat Nixon wants her husband to appoint a woman to the Supreme Court and has told him so.

"Don't worry, I'm talking it up," the President's wife said. "If we don't get one this time, they're certainly grooming them for next time."

Mrs. Nixon chatted with a group of newswomen Wednesday as her plane flew back to Washington from Newport News, Va., where she christened the new Navy missle frigate, USS California.

She confided she had passed on to the President "some suggestions" on women qualified to succeed Justice Hugo L. Black, 85, who retired last week.

Nixon has been urged by several politicians and groups to appoint the first woman to the Supreme Court. Several Democratic presidential hopefuls have endorsed the idea.

Mrs. Nixon indicated her suggestions included the three women Nixon has appointed to judgeships in the lower federal courts —Cornelia G. Kennedy, U.S. district judge for the Eastern District of Michigan; and Sylvia Bacon and Normalie Holloway Johnson, both serving on the District of Columbia Superior Court.

There has been speculation Nixon soon may have another vacancy to fill on the Supreme Court. Associate Justice John M. Harlan, 72, is ailing.

Mrs. Nixon also:

—Revealed she secretly entertained Mrs. Rose Kennedy at tea May 27 when she invited the matriarch of the Kennedy family to view the portraits of President John F. Kennedy and his widow, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

—Lamented the loss of the Washington Senators baseball franchise, which will be moved to Dallas-Ft. Worth.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Meat ravioli need have only 10 per cent meat, according to Agriculture Department standards.

But lasagna with meat sauce must be comprised of at least 12 per cent meat, and at least one-fourth of a meat pie must be meat.

COMBINES HOME, STUDIES

A New Career For Law Student

By PAT BALMES

When her three children went back to school this fall, 42-year-old Mrs. Bernard Bradman of Lucas Valley began her second year at Hastings College of the Law.

Jean Bradman, a psychiatrist's wife, enjoys intellectual challenge, and says she hopes through law to participate in society's changes concerning race, family life, women in society and re-examination of technological goals in light of deteriorating environment and consumption of natural resources.

"When my children were all in school I was left home with just objects," recalls Jean, who then analyzed the time mothers spend in beauty parlors, meetings, shopping and otherwise away from home and decided she had time for school.

Her husband suggested law and introduced Jean to San Rafael attorney Salle S. Soladay, who arranged a luncheon for her with other women lawyers. Jean learned that there is room for her in law.

Interested in aspects which have primarily social value, not merely participating in resolving disputes between private individuals, Jean is not interested in earning large sums of money.

As a girl in New York City she once spoke to her father about going to law school.

"He discouraged me by saying I would end up washing diapers anyway; then we had a fight. Even then I felt I could combine a family and a career", she says.

JEAN SAYS with good health and household conveniences there is enough time to "do the family bit" first and then move out into the larger society, particularly with the trend to, smaller families.

Because of her children, Sandra, 14, Jesse, 13 and Myron, 10, Jean didn't want a full-time job yet. Law school leaves her afternoons flexible and summers free.

When she started in 1970 women comprised 10 per cent of the class. This year the first year class at Hastings is 20 per cent women. A new course, "Women in Law," is being taught about abortion, employment, equal protection and equal rights, control of the body, public accommodations, family law, property rights, education and criminal law as it relates to women.

Feeling slightly guilty when she began law school last year "because of my feeling that I might have been taking away from my children," Jean was surprised that her children were delighted she went back to school.

Then she noticed a different attitude among younger women students who are not family-centered but separate people with greater awareness and self-expression. She also noticed young fathers at law school who seem to participate more in their children's care.

"These young women's goals are different from mine of 20 years ago — to help my husband's career and have a family," says Jean. "But somebody has to take responsibility for children. Alternatives are commune-type living, competent day care, flexible working hours and part-time jobs for women."

The Women Students Union at Hastings will open a child care center in October for men and women students and faculty.

"There should be more choices for women, more part-time jobs. A mother who feels trapped and slaps her child in the supermarket is doing him no favor by staying home. However, reasonably content mothers should stay home when their children are small to give guidance, love and security," says Jean.

"I did this for 10 years and loved every minute of it. If the phone rang while I was reading them a story, I'd let it ring. In discipline I was rigid. Now my children are beautiful because I was home."

NOW JEAN can prepare their breakfasts and sack lunches and see them off for school because she avoids 8:30 a.m. classes and starts her day at Hastings, where she is an average student, at 9:30 a.m.

She tries to be back across the bridge by 3:30 p.m., when she phones her children from the Marin Civic Center Law Library. They can also reach her there. Rock music and unnecessary interruptions prevent Jean from studying much at home.

At 5:30 p.m. Jean returns home refreshed by the legal discussions but "sick of reading," and delights in talking with her children. Cleaning up the kitchen at night has become an intimate talk-session. She also has household help.

"Too many hamburgers last year" sent Jean to the public library for two books on freezer cooking. Now she has a freezer full of meals the children can start cooking themselves after school.

Every Friday night Jean bakes bread, and her children's friends are invited in to taste the bread and sleep out ic the yard. Saturday Jean markets and studies after lunch saying, "You go weed. I have to brief a case."

Saturday night she goes out with her husband. Sunday morning Jean studies, saving afternoon for her family.

Jean says of her future, "this is an exciting time because I am not afraid of change. I taught my children to try to change laws they don't agree with, but which hurt no one. Laws which do hurt people are not laws we can obey.

"Children today are not as obedient to law as I was. They don't view a policeman as a friend and protector. Some of this disrespect is based on unenforcable laws like our marijuana laws, which I believe compare to the attempt to prohibit alcohol from 1919 to 1933 and which caused such havoc."

IN 1951 Jean "suspended" her education to marry Bernard Bradman, who was about to leave for medical school in Switzerland. She had been working days and studying in her junior year at New York University Evening College.

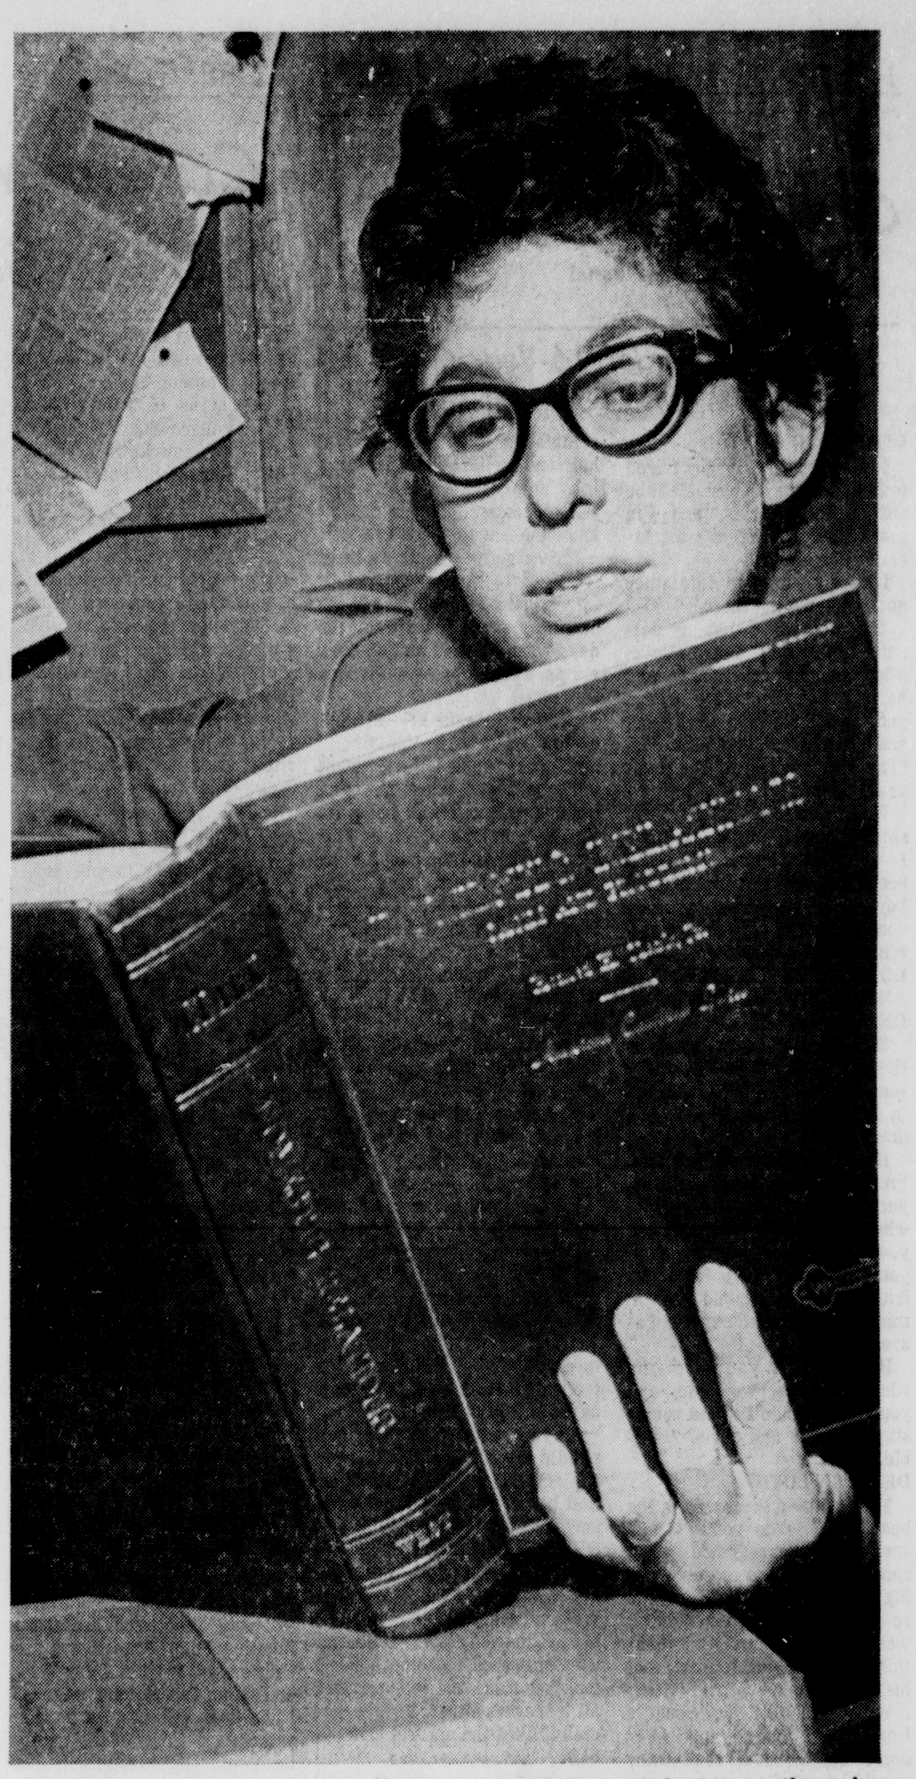
During the next five years in Switzerland Jean worked and they had their first child while Bernard attended medical school. Returning to Long Island, Bernard interned for a year.

In 19588they moved to Cincinnati, where Bernard did his specialty training in adult and child psychiatry.

"I had Monday night out," says Jean "so I studied history for my own enjoyment at University of Cincinnati night school."

Teaching in one of Cincinnati's first Head Start programs, she learned she couldn't continue the following year because she lacked a college degree. She applied to University of Cincinnati to finish her education in her mid-30s, but was told she was "too old."

When the family moved to Lucas Valley four years ago Jean earned her final credits at Dominican College. Now she plans a whole new career.



SECOND-YEAR law student, Mrs. Bernard Bradman of Lucas Valley briefs cases in the dining room she converted to her study. The 42-year-old Hastings College of the Law student says there is enough time in a woman's lengthening life to rear a family and then move out into the larger society.

Loneliness Key Single Life Problem

By JOAN LISETOR

Everyone who entered the home of Don Sederberg in Ross last night was handed a small piece of paper ad asked to write in one or two words what he considered the most difficult or complicated problem of being single.

Everyone at the home was single with the exception of the man who handed out the slips of paper, Dr. Reed Brockbank of Kentfield, who was there to lecture on the "Psychological Adjustment to the Single Life."

Overwhelmingly, reported Dr. Brockbank, the answer was loneliness.

"NUMBER TWO was sex," said Dr. Brockbank, a psychoanalyst. "It was as I predicted, but I wanted to talk about what you people wanted to hear."

And he proceeded to talk about sex. Well, not actually talking about sex, because, he told the group attending the third in a series of round table discussions sponsored by the Organization, there is not much that can be told since everything about sex has already been said or written.

About loneliness — he defined it, redefined it and told how it differed from being alone.

"Belonging to a group doesn't solve the basic problem of relating to another person," he said to the members of the Organization, a group for single persons over 21.

"NOW I am going to use a terrible word," the psychiatrist promised. "Narcissism."

He said it had been condemned by all societies throughout the history of mankind.

"I think it's great," he said. "No one can live without narcissism. You must love yourself to love others and also in order to live, survive, function, solve problems or else you are vulnerable to aggressions and self-directed hate and will destroy yourself."

He then discussed examples of persons with too much self love who are not able to reach out. When asked if there was a way to seek the middle ground he responded with more examples of narcissism.

At this point someone in the lively audience handed the psychiatrist a piece of paper with the question, "Do you believe women should always be forced to dance backward?" written on it.

HE RESPONDED with his advice for a happy life.

"It's the same as Freud's," he said. "Learn to live, love and work."

The next round table discussion will be "Prison Reform at San Quentin," by Salie Seaman Soladay, Wednesday at the home of Charlotte Sheeks in San Rafael.

THE GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Parents Consider 16-Year-Old Girl Too Young For Real Love

DEAR BOTH OF YOU:

I'm almost 17. My boy friend is 20 and in the service. He'll be out in three years, and I'm more than willing to wait because I love him.

I have no urge to date other guys. It's just not there.

The problem is that my parents don't think I'm in love. They say I'm too young and haven't had enough experience and, besides, a high school girl needs to go out and have fun. (The old "wasting the best years of your life.")

Well, I've been liking guys since I was 12, and dating since I was 14. Experience? Who needs it? Mom and Dad like my boy friend just fine, but they don't think I'm able to love yet. What's wrong with them? — IN LOVE WITHOUT MOMMY'S AND DADDY'S PERMISSION

DEAR IN LOVE:

What wrong with them is they've been taken over by society's rules which say falling in love is "for adults only." I don't agree.

If you can love your sisters, brothers, friends, pets and especially your parents — with whom you fight most during your early years — why can't you feel lasting love for a boy friend? Parents should keep in mind their youthful experiences aren't ours.

Besides, it's your decision whether or not you date, and your folks should be glad you're staying home and out of "trouble." — SUE

DEAR "IN LOVE":

My daughter speaks from the heart, and so do you. Parents speak from experience. They remember back to those "undying" young loves that seemed so mature, but somehow didn't weather the teens. And (hear this, Sue), they realize that history often does repeat itself.

Will yours last? Best proof is time. Even though your folks don't believe it's real, they should let you find out (one way or the other) for yourself. It hinges on how truly adult you are at age 16.

Moreover, a girl can have as much fun going around with the crowd as she would madly dating — just for "popularity's" sake. — HELEN

NOTE TO 'IN LOVE'S" PARENTS: Stay cool! — BOTH SUE AND HELEN

DEAR "GENERATION RAP":

The lady photographer who complained that long straight hair and no lipstick turned girls into zombies for their high school annual pictures doesn't know the new teen attitude.

Kids simply are not as hung up on being "beautiful on the outside" as they were in the days when all they had on their minds were proms, dates and sex.

Beauty contests are an indication of where "squares" place their values. Enter what is considered an ugly girl (though talented and beautiful "inside" in one of these silly exhibitions, and see how far she gets!

I say "Right On!" to people who don't live by the mirror or spend all their time and money on "looks," when the person is what really matters. — G. B.

DEAR "RAP":

No beautiful girls today? Tell that photographer it's a different kind of beauty — not the set, painted-on-smile, or the beehive hair, but a natural look. It's something you can't wash off.

I'll illustrate by saying I'm a very homely girl, yet people say I photograph well. I wear my hair all wrong for my features, and practically no make-up. But I really dig life, and I guess it shows through in pictures. I enjoy smiling, huge teeth and all. How I look isn't as important as what I am!

Maybe this photographer should consider finding new subjects rather than trying to find beauty in the dull ones she encounters. — HOMELY

DEAR EVERYBODY:

As a long-haired, natural-lipped member of the so-called "freaky generation," I'm glad to say that only ONE of dozens who answered "Photographer" took her side. And they weren't all teenagers either. Boys, especially, liked the natural look. — SUE

NOTE FROM HELEN:

As a short-haired member of the "lipstick" generation, I must add that the ONE person who agreed modern styles are tough to photograph — was a photographer! He asked if he might reprint the letter under discussion in a national camera magazine. — H.

12 SESSIONS

Career Workshop Set At Seminary

A career-planning workshop for women will be offered to Marin women, beginning Oct. 12 in a series of 12 sessions on Tuesday mornings. They will be held at the new Lewis Marshall Lloyd Education Center, an educational facility of the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

The workshops, designed to help women use their educated skills in more satisfying ways, will be directed by Martha Sturm White, Ph.D., a nationally known writer and lecturer on women who was formerly director of guidance at the Radcliffe Institute in Cambridge, Mass.

Dr. White, a Marin resident and a social psychologist at the University of California Medical Center, has given similar programs for several years in San Francisco.

"Many women," said Dr. White, "wish to complete their education, plan for graduate school, or find new opportunities for their professional skills. Others are seeking more satisfying volunteer commitments or a better sense of direction and purpose in their lives.

"Some wish to develop new horizons, plan careers or find part-time opportunities."

The sessions will include lectures, group discussions and audio-visual feedback, as well as speakers who will discuss educational, volunteer and employment opportunities in the Bay Area.

Enrollment for the course is limited, and a preliminary interview is required for admission. Appointments for the Oct. 5 group interviews and information about the workshop may be obtained from Mrs. Gloria Perdue, director of the Lewis Marshall Lloyd Education Center at the seminary.

James Nevin Betrothed To Theresa Monardo

Mr. and Mrs. George D. Monardo of Mill Valley announce the engagement of their daughter Theresa (Terry) Monardo to James P. Nevin of San Francisco. A May wedding is planned.

Terry was graduated from Marin Catholic High School and College of Marin Nursing School and is a registered nurse. In the past year she has worked at Queen's Medical Center in Honolulu, Hawaii, and was a camp nurse during the summer in Occidental. Terry is the sister of Greg, Jeff, Debbie, Mary and Laurie Monardo.

James is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward of San Francisco. He was graduated from St. Ignatius High School and the University of San Francisco and is in his second year at USF Law School. He is the associate director of the Catholic Youth Organization in San Francisco.

James is the brother of Edward, Michael and Eileen Nevin, Mrs. Robert Radanovich, Mrs. Richard Braun and Mrs. Patrick Johnston.

Watch Pre-Schoolers

A home safe for adults is not necessarily safe for a baby or pre-schooler. If you are accustomed to storing household poisons (bleaches, lyes, detergents, polishes) beneath the sink, move them to a higher self until little guests have left. Also, when expecting little guests, make sure medications are locked away.

Do Not Pull Tufts

Occasionally a tuft will rise above the pile surface of a carpet. Just snip these high-rising tufts off even with the other tufts — do not pull them out.

Nitrates Said Bad For Babies

NEW YORK (UPI) — A University of Illinois biologist contends that the intensive use of nitrogen fertilizers increases the infant mortality rate among female babies.

Dr. Abraham Gelperin was quoted Tuesday in an article in the New Yorker magaziner as saying a study of various counties in Illinois showed "the death rate for baby girls (but not boys) born during the months when nitrate levels were high was 5.5 per thousand, as compared with 2.5 per thousand when nitrate levels were low."

Gelperin said the study was conducted in and around Decatur, Ill., where high levels of nitrates seeped into the city's water supply from nearby cornfields.

How To Halt Carpet Shading

Shading is an apparent change of color tone that sometimes appears here and there in a carpet or rug, resulting from the pressure of feet, pressing the tufts in different directions.

Light reflects in varying degrees from these tufts. Solid color carpets and those with wide expanse of color show shading more than patterned styles. Also, shading is more evident in level-surface types than in textured surfaces.

The better tufts are kept in order — going in the direction of the pile lay — the less shading there will be. Run your sweeper and vacuum cleaner with the direction of the pile. Small rugs also help to protect heavily used sections. Professional cleaning often proves a cure for shading.

Carpet Fluff

The balls of fluff you find on your carpet or in your vacuum bag are merely loose bits of yarn left in the carpet during manufacture. Some yarns tend to shed microscopic fibers throughout their lives. Fluff does not affect the life or quality of your carpet. Every tuft is intact.

A reception followed at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. After a wedding trip to Carmel and Southern California the couple will live in San Jose.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis J. Blamey of Sacramento, was graduated from McClatchey High School, Sacramento City College and San Jose State College. She is a teacher in San Jose. She is also the sister of Thomas Blamey of Sacramento.

Dreams Coming True In New Auditorium

A longtime dream will come true Saturday — two dreams, in fact.

For years and years, Marin devotees of the theater arts have dreamed of having an auditorium in the county large enough and with proper facilities for staging major theatrical and musical events.

For years and years, Marin promoters of tourist business have dreamed of having a hall big enough for major conventions.

BOTH DREAMS WILL be realized in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building, which will open Saturday night with a social hour followed by a concert by soprano Dorothy Kirsten and the Marin Symphony Orchestra.

After considerable backing and filling, county supervisors pushed ahead for completion of the auditorium with 2,000 seats -- of which 1,288 will fold into a moveable wall when it is desired to clear a hall for banquets or convention exhibits.

The facilities are the most modern: seating, lighting, acoustical controls, equipment for quick change of stage settings. Even the orchestra pit goes up and down, so that it can become an extension of the stage when that is desirable.

For convention or banquet use, the 1,288 folding seats simply fold into the moveable wall, which then clears a 130-by-75 foot flat-floored room, leaving an 800-seat auditorium.

THE BUILDING THUS fills the two dreams. It does not fill a third dream — that of veterans' organizations of a building which would provide them with meeting rooms.

The two-dream realization did not come easily. Representatives of veterans were incensed when the 1965 board of supervisors decided to go the theater-convention hall route. And — as with everything — the cost escalated considerably.

A special veterans' memorial tax levied by the county raised three-quarters of a million dollars over the years toward the project. The state added parimutuel funds earmarked for veterans' memorial buildings. When the auditorium plans were presented in 1965, it was thought these two sources would nearly finance the construction, then estimated at $2,881,700 for a 3,000-seat building. The current figure is $3,159,000 for a 2,000-seat building. Marin taxpayers have to make up most of the difference.

AS THE COST increased, the design also changed. Frank Lloyd Wright's original Civic Center model showed a circular building marked "veterans' auditorium." The sketch that accompanied preliminary plans in 1965 showed one end flattened out and extended upward for the stage. Later, that became a flat furface plus a series of what look like silos or grain elevators, and that end faces Highway 101. This has brought much unflattering comment. Perhaps the county will have to fall back on Wright's oft-quoted advice: "When an architect makes a mistake, he can only plant vines."

But the interior of the building is luxurious, attractive, and as we said before, includes the most modern facilities. How they all work out, we'll find out Saturday night.

We're looking forward to the opening — and to the attractions to follow — wth high hope.

CAPITOL REPORT

Increase in Non-Producers Brings Bigger Tax Bite

By RUS WALTON

SACRAMENTO — Brace yourself. Your state taxes will be going up next year.

Not just $100 million. More like $250 million to $300 million. That's what it's going to take to get state government out of debt and fund its next year's operations — and that amount doesn't include the increase in state revenues from withholding income taxes.

Some of that money will come from increased "sin" taxes — on cigarettes and tobacco, alcoholic beverages, various amusements. Some of it may come from an "adjustment" in the state income tax. They may even close a few loopholes and come up with a "minimum" income tax. Whatever, state taxes are going up.

PART OF THE PROBLEM is this: relatively speaking, a diminishing number of working people (producers) are carrying a growing number of non-working people (non-producers).

The term non-producer does not refer to tax dodgers. They're something else. Non-producers refers to individuals under 18 years of age and over 65. It also refers to sizeable blocs within the 19-64 age groups: the increasing number receiving public assistance, the increasing number of government employes at all levels, and the increasing number of young people who are going on to get a higher education.

Except for those who could work and won't, those who should work and don't, the term "non-producer" is not used in a derogatory sense.

A review of trends during the past 20 years will show what's happened.

SINCE 1950, the state's total population has alost doubled. In those same 20 years, the number of persons under 18 increased 2.5 times and the number over 65 more than doubled. In 1950, about 6.7 million producers provided for 3.8 million non-producers. Now, in 1971, 11.5 million producers must provide for 8.5 million.

To put it another way, in 1950 there were 1.8 producers for each non-producer. Today, the ratio is about 1.3 to 1.

FOR ONE THING, the average daily attendance in California public schools (kindergarten-junior college) has almost tripled since 1950. And, the amount of tax money for the schools in 1970 was just about 6.5 times what it was in 1950.

For another thing, the number of persons on public assistance has more than tripled since 1950. In 1950, with 7.7 per cent unemployment, one out of every 20 Californians received some form of public assistance. In 1970, with 7 per cent unemployed, close to one out of every 10 received public assistance. The total costs for those programs multiplied by almost 10 from 1950 to 1970 because of increasing caseloads, higher individual payments, and added programs such as Medi-Cal.

One other indicator: the growth of government as measured by the number of persons on the public payroll in California, at all levels. In 1950 there were 533,000 government employes. In 1970, the total was 1.425 million, not counting military personnel.

THESE ARE JUST a few of the reasons why the total tax take has gone from $4.8 billion in 1950 to more than $28 billion in 1970. On a straight per capita cost that was an increase form $461 in 1950 to $1,454 in 1970.

There's a more valid way to compute the growing burden of government. Figure it on a "per potential producer" basis. Pro-rate the cost among those from 19 to 65 years of age who work and earn and pay the taxes.

Even including those in the 19-65 age groups who might be non-producers (in school, on welfare, on government payrolls) the cost of government to the potential producer soared from $727 in 1950 to $2,577 in 1970.

It's a rough problem, one which can best be solved — not by expanding the cost and size of government, but by freemen expanding the economy, creating more jobs . . . and more producers.

RISE Correcting Paper Bin Problems

On Sept. 20, a letter was published in your paper stating that RISE (Redwood International Student Exchange) was neglecting its paper bin. This is not so; we are now correcting the problem.

The bin was taken care of by two boys this past summer. Although they ignored their job somewhat (for which they were paid) it has had little effect on the present situation. We have received more paper than can be efficiently handled. This was caused by the fact that we can only have one bin at a time. The salvage company must be given a day or two notice and excess paper accumulates before the bin can be emptied.

A shelter will soon be built to house any future overflow of paper. So please keep the paper coming, as it goes for scholarships to foreign students.

Revolutionists' Roles In Prison Violence

I am appalled at the bleeding hearts, do-gooders and segments of the mass communications media trying to make a martyr out of convict George Jackson. I suggest that he received exactly what he asked for. If anyone can be blamed for his actions, I would suggest it would be his parents. The best place to find out what kind of person he was is from his own book and writing in the underground press. The news magazine Review of the News quotes some of these sources as follows: "I can't be satisfied with myself until I am Communist man, revolutionary man." Also, he is quoted as writing "I'm an internationalist, Marxist, Leninist, Maoist admirer of the Cuban revolution, the Vietnamese revolution, and the world's workers'-people's revolution."

And speaking of revolution, Tom Hayden, founder of the SDS, told a rally in Sacramento in November, 1970, and again according to Review of the News, that "the public must be educated to understand the great jail break that is coming." Further, he is quoted as saying "the revolutionary movement is spreading from the Tombs of New York to the prisons of California. . . . Penitentiaries are the birthplace and the hardening place of the new revolutionary leadership."

How significant this is in the light of the events of the past month or so and the subsequent determined efforts of the media to play down the conspiratorial links between these same events. It has been said that history repeats itself, and in this I sense a similarity to the Russia of 1916-1923; or do I hear someone muttering with his head in the sand "it can't happen here"?

World Citizenship Fully Constitutional

In taking exception to the action of our San Anselmo City Council in its "mundialization" resolution, part of which refers to our (as yet symbolic) status as "world citizens", Mrs. Susan Tennler is quoted as saying that "dual citizenship is expressly prohibited by the United States Constitution."

The simple answer to Mrs. Tennler is that the Constitution (and its several amendments) does not prohibit, expressly or otherwise, dual citizenship. In fact, where it speaks of citizenship (in Article IV and the 5th Amendment) it makes it clear that we are dual citizens — of our state and of the United States.

I happen to believe (and it is a belief widely held by students of government) that our Constitution is one of the more glorious achievements of civilized men; and this because of the "invention" of federalism which permits me to be, simultaneously, a citizen of San Anselmo, of Marin County, of California, of the United States, of the MMWD, and ultimately, I hope, a citizen of the world, legally as well as symbolically.

There is, of course, another kind of "dual citizenship" which is practically universally prohibited, and logically so. This prohibition is that you may not exercise citizenship rights in more than one place at the same time. Mrs. Tennler (a resident of Greenbrae) cannot be a citizen of San Anselmo while being a citizen elsewhere, for it she were she could have more than one vote for the same man or issue. But this has nothing to do with world citizenship which is simply the extension of the principle of federalism.

Whales And Dolphins Deserve Protection

The humpback whale's plaintive song will soon be forever stilled. One hundred and twenty-five times each day, on an average, a whale is located and killed with an explosive harpoon. In 1970 alone, Japanese whalers took about 200,000 dolphins and porpoises, and as the whales are irreplaceably decimated, there will be increasing numbers of dolphins and porpoises slaughtered. We are now informed that the American tuna fishermen in this last year alone have killed approximately 250,000 porpoises (three types of porpoises that feed on the same fish as the tuna) and that the Japanese tuna fisherman have killed a similar number.

None of the by-products from these cetaceans are essential. Substitutes are readily available for cat food, mink food, cosmetics, etc. But more important, science hasn't begun to tap the dimensions of their intelligence as yet. Some think it will take a computer to keep up with them. The complexity of their brains (compares favorably with man) as well as the sophistication of their patterns of communications add to the mounting evidence. But most important of all, they are harmless, friendly, gentle creatures who have much to teach us, especially in the way they cooperate and help each other. If man is to regain his sense of community with the rest of life, rather than the current sense of separation and alientation due to his desire to control, I can think of no more natural "reentry" experience than the study of and empathy with the smaller cetacean, the dolphin . . .

The strongly-worded Marine Mammals Protection Bill of Harris and Pryor (S1315,HR6553) is desperately needed as is the Senate version of the resolution requesting the secretary of state to call for a 10-year moratorium on the killing of whales (SF115,HF706). The House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries is now holding hearings on marine legislation and they should be informed of your concern as should your congressmen . . .

Nixon Walking Tight-Rope On Delicate Problem Of China

WASHINGTON — The United Nations has become for the Nixon administration a Chinese prayer wheel. As the wheel turns (no such superstitions tolerated in the People's Republic of China), the petitions are cast in and you wait with what patience you can muster in the hope the petitions will be granted.

The belief, as Sec. of State William P. Rogers prepares his encounter with the general assembly, is that both American resolutions will pass. One would seat the People's Republic in the general assembly and also give the place on the security council presently held by Chiang Kai-shek's China to Peking. The other resolution would make an important question, requiring a two-thirds vote, of retaining Taiwan in the general assembly as a separate state.

THIS MAY BE the only possible compromise, given the tangled emotions both in the U.N. and in this country over the China question. Yet it would seem the worst of both worlds. Peking will never accept membership with Taiwan present as an independent nation. And the wrath of Chiang and his right-wing followers in this country will have no bounds.

The logic, from the administration's perspective, is that the United States will have demonstrated its willingness to see Peking seated and on the security council with the power of the veto. This is a big step from the annual struggle to bar "Red China" by making membership an important question. And sooner or later — next year or the year after — Peking will come in.

This last, to say the least, is doubtful, since the "two Chinas" proposal is for Peking the No. 1 obstacle to any real improvement in relations with the United States. A massive campaign is being directed in China against any solution compromising the status of Taiwan as an integral part of China's territory.

THE CONSEQUENCES for President Nixon's trip to Peking could be serious. As the exchanges go back and forth between the two capitals, the date for the journey is being pushed farther away. It is now being said it will not occur until early in the new year. That would put it far enough beyond the China debate so that some of the sting of a "two Chinas" victory would be drawn.

Since Henry Kissinger's mission to Peking, Premier Chou En-lai has staked out the toughest possible bargaining position with which to confront President Nixon. Point by point he has built up the barriers against concessions of any sort. Wide circulation is being given by Peking, both in China and among friendly nations that question Chou's motives, of a brief declaration by Mao Tse-tung of what negotiation means.

This comes from the wartime effort to bring Chiang and Mao together to defeat the Japanese. Negotiation is simply another weapon for overcoming the enemy. Among the thoughts of Chairman Mao this doctrine rates high.

THE PRESIDENT is undertaking a difficult tight-rope act over the chasm of the deep animosities between the two Communist giants. He proclaimed last May a breakthrough in the strategic arms limitation talks. On Sept. 30 Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will come to Washington to sign with Secretary Rogers two agreements, one covering consultations in the event of the accidental firing of a nuclear missile and the second the joint construction and operation of a satellite system that would make such consultations instantaneous and fail-proof.

This will cause no rejoicing in Peking. It has long been evident that a strong motive for Moscow in easing tensions with the West — the Berlin agreement, progress in the SALT talks, the expressed desire for mutual troop reduction in Europe — is to show strength in the East. The figure of a million Russian troops on the Chinese border — it is nearer a half-million — with the very great cost that must go into the installation for such a force in that climate is a measure of Soviet concern.

Success for Mr. Nixon, even comparative success, will put him in the history books as a statesman of the first order. That is a goal the Nixon of 20 years, even 10 years, ago could never have dreamed of.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Change In China Policy Not First For U.S.A.

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

As the United States leads the way toward world acceptance of the Chinese Communists and Mainland China's membership in the United Nations, it launches both itself and the U.N. on uncharted seas.

As regards the United Nations, it invites into membership a regime which never has renounced its advocacy of violent revolution, and thereby either rejects or sacrifices on the altar of reality a founding principle of the United Nations, which is the peaceful settlement of international disputes by negotiation.

As for the United States, the move obviously is representative of President Nixon's hopes for stability in Asia and therefore a contribution toward world peace.

WHETHER THESE HOPES are to materialize or whether the United States is to continue a policy of what one writer has called a "policy of deliberately contrived ambiguity" must depend on the outcome of questions still unanswered.

Some of these are discussed in the current issue of Foreign Affairs by Jerome Alan Cohen, Harvard Law School professor of East Asian legal studies.

He traces some of the turnabouts in U.S. policy toward China, and especially the island of Formosa, from the allied Cairo declaration of 1943 to the present.

THE CAIRO DECLARATION specifically mentioned Formosa as among those territories seized by Japan that should be returned to China.

The Potsdam declaration and the Japanese surrender terms agreed.

The U.S. position remained unchanged through the Communist victory on the mainland and the retreat of Chiang Kai-shek forces to Formosa.

In 1950, President Harry S Truman declared Formosa Chinese territory and declared the United States would "not pursue a course which will lead to involvement in the civil conflict in China."

At that time, the United States fully expected a Communist conquest of Formosa.

IT WAS A POLICY which remained unchanged until the start of the Korean war in June, 1950, when Truman suddenly declared occupation of Formosa by "Communist forces" would be a direct threat to the security of the Pacific and American forces. He then assigned the U.S. 7th fleet to the protection of the island.

Accompanying this reversal of policy was another—the status of Formosa, Truman declared, would have to wait upon restoration of security in the Pacific.

Thus, in one breath, he lifted the Chinese civil war to the status of international conflict and threw overboard an international agreement on Formosa's relationship to the mainland.

It was a policy replete with contradictions and set the stage for today's new set of contradictions—in which the United States moves toward establishment of diplomatic relations with Communist China and at the same time promises to honor its defense commitments to Chaiang Kai-shek on Formosa.

One or the other would seem to be an impossibility.

ART BUCHWALD

Autumn Sunday Afternoon In Football Addict's Home

WASHINGTON — "Harry . . . Harry will you stop looking at that stupid football game and listen to me? There's a very suspicious man lurking in front of the house . . . What do you mean find out what he wants? You find out what he wants . . . You're the man in this house . . . Harry, I think he's getting into your car . . . Yes, he is getting into your car . . . Let's call the police.

"How can you say that, Harry? Even if the car is insured you should at least make some effort to stop a thief . . . I don't care if it is fourth down and one to go, you can't let somebody just up and steal your car . . . Look, Harry, he's getting out now and opening the hood . . . He's probably trying to get it started . . . I think you should at least yell at him . . .

"ALL RIGHT, so the Redskins made a first down . . . But if you just come to the window . . . Look; He's got the motor started . . . Please, Harry, call the police . . . What? . . . It will ruin your afternoon if the police come . . . Yes, I know you have your heart set on watching the game, but what are we going to do for a car? . . . I'm not distracting you . . . How can you say I always think of ways of interrupting you when you're watching a football game . . . Am I supposed to let someone steal your car without telling you . . . Harry, you're getting up from your chair . . . What happened? . . . Oh, it's a commercial . . . No, the car's gone now . . . The man drove it off . . . Are you going to report it? After the Kansas City game which ends at 7 o'clock? . . . Well, you've certainly made a contribution to law and order today . . .

"All right, I promise I won't bother you again . . . Go back to your game . . .

"HARRY, THERE'S A CAB pulling up to the house . . . Harry, it's our son Jimmy who has been in the Navy for two years . . . I didn't even know he was back in this country . . . Oh, my goodness, he looks so brown and tall . . . Come Harry, let's greet him at the door . . . Harry, you don't want to greet your son after he fought for his country? . . .

"Oh you can't leave the set now because the Cardinals have just fumbled? . . . No, don't worry, I'll ask Jimmy to come in the side door so he won't disturbe you . . . Why are you yelling at me . . . Be mad at the Navy. They're the ones who let Jimmy come home on Sunday.

"Harry, I know you told me not to bother you, and I've let you alone for the entire quarter, but something has come up I think you should know about . . . Our daughter Gertrude has just called from the hospital and she's about to give birth to a baby . . . Will you stop screaming at me? . . . I know it isn't a big thing to have a baby, Harry . . . Women have them all the time. Ordinarily it isn't worth interrupting a football game to tell you about it, but I would like to remind you of one thing, Harry . . . Gertrude isn't married! . . . This could be a very traumatic experience for a 15-year-old girl . . . Yes Harry, I'm as sorry as you are that Bragg missed the field goal . . . it's very wet on that astroturf . . . Well I'll go to the hospital myself. I'm sure Gertrude will understand . . .

"I'M BACK, HARRY . . . Gertrude had a little boy . . . What game are you watching now? . . . The San Diego Chargers. What happened to the Redskins? They won? . . . Isn't that wonderful . . . Then your afternoon wasn't a complete waste after all.

"Harry I've decided to leave you . . . No, I can't wait until San Diego loses the ball . . . I wish to discuss it now . . . I've given it a lot of thought and I've decided that life is just passing me by . . . Don't turn the volume up, Harry . . . It won't do you any good. I'VE MADE MY DECISION, HARRY . . . HARRY, TURN DOWN THE SET . . . NO, HARRY, THERE IS NO SENSE TALKING ABOUT IT TOMORROW . . . WHY NOT? BECAUSE TOMORROW NIGHT DETROIT IS PLAYING THE MINNESOTA VIKINGS."

Better Fire Protection Discussed

A group of about 25 Corte Madera residents, representing homeowners' groups, gathered last night in the wake of a disastrous fire last week which destroyed two houses and damaged a third, to discuss the ton's fire protection.

Meeting at the home of Robert Flahive at 18 Endeavor Drive, the residents mapped out plans to convince the town council that more paid firemen are needed and that citizens are willing to pay for them.

The group plans first to attend a town council meeting on Oct. 4 and then to gather signatures on petitions and finally to work toward increasing the fire department next year at budget time.

From Flahive the group learned that Corte Madera has only five paid firemen (as compared to 15 in neighboring Larkspur) and that the town's two fire stations are unmanned after 6 p.m. six days a week as well as all day Sunday.

Corte Madera has one of the worst ratings in Southern Marin from the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau, according to Flahive, and savings on home insurance rates could help offset increased fire department costs.

A tentative petition that had been drawn up suggested that five more firemen be hired at an estimated cost of $75,000 a year to the town.

Flahive also said that he had learned that two trucks first responded to the fire last week but that firemen had to leave the fire to go down to the station on the east side of town to get a third truck.

The group also agreed to ask the council to man the town's two fire stations 24 hours a day.

It was also decided that in the period before next year's budget session an effort will be made to distribute literature informing residents of the facts about fire protection in the town.

"The volunteer concept is no longer viable for a town the size of Corte Madera," one man said, referring to the 17 volunteers which the department now has. "We have to be willing to pay the price," he added, asking for more full-time men.

Rumors Of Meir-Nixon Session In Works; Mideast Again Tense

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Two Israeli newspapers reported today that a senior Israeli official will try to arrange a meeting between Prime Minister Golda Meir and President Nixon to consider the tense Middle East situation but Mrs. Meir's office denied the reports.

In Washington, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said there are profoundly disturbing indications the Middle East ceasefire is gravely threatened. He called for swiftly furnishing Israel with $500 million in military credits, half of them for F4 Phantom jet fighter bombers.

Jackson said there was increasing evidence of extensive Egyptian training missions aimed at perfecting operational plans for an invasion across the Suez Canal involving as many as 100,000 Egyptian troops. His speech was for delivery on the Senate floor.

The question of more U.S. Phantoms for Israel preoccupied the Israeli press, and the English language Jerusalem Post again accused the United States of using the Phantoms to pressure Israel into making more major concessions to win an interim settlement that would reopen the Suez Canal.

In connection with this, the newspapers Davar and Haaretz reported that Simha Dinitz, 42, one of Mrs. Meir's political advisers, was trying to arrange a Meir-Nixon meeting. On Wednesday, several newspapers reported U.S. pressure for an interim settlement by the end of 1971 "almost at any price."

Egypt appeared to be turning more and more to the United Nations as the forum for presenting its views. Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad, en route to New York, told newsmen in Paris that this is the "decisive year" for winning peace in the Middle East. He said it was up to the United Nations to do this.

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said the Egyptian diplomatic campaign at the U.N. will win world public opinion for the Arab cause even if it achieves little else. It said this in turn would help isolate Israel and "unveil the U.S. role of constant support for the Zionist aggression."

The child will be christened in four or five weeks by the Bishop of Oslo.

Mitchell In Support Of Bond Measure For College

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell has announced his endorsement of the Marin Community College District's $16.7 million measure to go to the voters Nov. 2.

Mitchell said his analysis of the proposition showed it to be the most feasible means of financing the north campus in Novato and completion of the College of Marin Kentfield campus.

Such a bond issue would have a maximum tax rate of 12 cents per $100 assessed valuation and a low of about three cents during its 25-year-old life, he said.

The dollar impact would be about $9 per year for the owner of a $33,000 home, he said.

The alternative, which will be used if the measure fails at the polls, is the "pay-as-you-go" means of financing construction, a tax levy.

Though applied over fewer years, it would cost the owner of a $33,000 home about $192 a year in additional taxes, he estimated.

"In my opinion, a major capital improvement program should not be paid for solely by the present property owners but, rather, the cost be shared by future property owners . . ." he said.

Off Payroll For Politicking

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. Edwin W. Edwards, D-La., won't be getting his $3,541.66 monthly pay as a congressman for awhile.

Edwards took himself off the congressional payroll effective Sept. 8 while he runs for governor of Louisiana. An aide said he tried to get himself removed from the payroll as far back as July 30.

But the request was so unusual that House staff members had to seek advice on how to proceed. Finally Edwards was advised to ask the House for a vote, and when Congress returned from a summer recess this month, his request was approved without objection.

SCULPTURAL CANVASES — Artist Donald M. Smith captures the poetical flight of birds in this relief painting which is included in his one-man show of white-on-white paintings at Shorebirds Gallery until Oct. 2.

ART REVIEW

Donald Smith's White World: Part Painting, Part Sculpture

By ADA GARFINKEL

The current scene at Shorebirds Gallery in Belvedere is the white, white world of artist Donald Smith. Partly painted, partly sculptured, the concerns of his wall hangings are figurative: birds, flowers, balloons, animals, and one called "Reclining Woman."

Smith, a former aeronautical engineer, derives his three-dimensional configurations by manipulating strips of paint-impregnated cloth into desired shapes full of ridges, gullies and scallops which catch and deflect light.

The artist is at his best where his subject matter calls for overall use of the format as it does in "Birds" and in "Balloons." In these, the implication of space and air, the diagonal axes of birds in flight and in the slender, taut strings of the balloons, all convey airiness, loftiness, and weightlessness in a panoramic sweep of sky.

There is humor in a gay and playful frog ensconced in wavy fronds, and a nicely articulated rococo quality in the floral subjects.

Where the work doesn't quite come off is in interaction between figure and ground, where the figure is too centrally placed and is perhaps, somewhat small for its total space, as in "Horse."

A nice touch is added to the exhibit by the vaulted redwood ceiling, soft spotlights and white panelled walls, and Harold Pepperell's sandbox filled with rock birds mounted on weathered tree stumps.

Gallery hours are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Smith's show ends Oct. 2.

Innocent Plea By Suspect To Two Charges

Paul Edward LeClair, 20, of San Anselmo has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to charges of selling marijuana and hashish.

Preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 5.

LeClair was arrested Sept. 8 after he allegedly sold the drugs to an undercover agent.

Two other San Anselmo residents, arrested after agents followed LeClair to their house after the alleged drug sale, are charged with possessing marijuana and hashish and possessing marijuana for sale.

James Franklin Reel, 22, and Martha Ann Martini, 28, have pleaded innocent and have had a preliminary hearing set, also for Oct. 5.

Bicycle Maker Can't Keep Up

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A British bicycle manufacturer says that his firm can't produce the two-wheelers fast enough to keep up with the U.S. cycling craze.

"We could sell twice as many bicycles if we had them to sell," Thomas E. Barnsley, board chairman and managing director of Raleigh Industries, Ltd., Nottingham, England, said Tuesday.

Barnsley was visiting here in advance of next month's big British week promotion.

Jail Time On Burglary

Robert Dean Allen, 26, of Fairfax, has been sentenced to nine months in Marin County Jail for burglary.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court also placed Allen on probation for two years and gave him credit for time already spent in jail.

Allen was charged with burglarizing the residence of Alex J. Ker of 370 Highland Drive, San Rafael, Sept. 5, 1970, and the residence of Edward Steele of 90 Irwin Street, San Rafael, Sept. 16, 1970.

A codefendant in the case, Stephen Robert Carrino, 22, of San Rafael, was sentenced in January.

HONG KONG (UPI) — A California menswear salesman from Marin County has been sentenced to four years in prison on charges of trafficking in dangerous drugs.

Richard Edward Fagan, 24, of Lucas Valley, earlier pleaded innocent. He said he had no knowledge that the camera case he brought here from Bangkok contained 688 grams of heroin worth about $3,300.

"I don't accept the evidence that Fagan did not know what he was carrying," said Judge Frank Addison. "He was knowingly engaged in bringing drugs into Hong Kong."

The judge also rejected Fagan's plea for mitigation of sentence.

Defense counsel, R-N.R. Burnett, said Fagan had injured his back and neck in a car accident in December, 1967. He said imprisonment might adversely affect his injuries.

CORTE MADERA CREEK CHANNEL NEARS COMPLETION

Workmen of the Elmer J. Freethy Co. of El Cerrito pour the final section of concrete wall (center) as others "backfill" the Corte Madera Creek channel in Kentfield with the aid of a tractor loader. Yesterday's completion of the wall was a major step in this year's phase of the flood control project which is due for completion at the end of next month. Construction this year took the controversial project from a point just below the Laurel Avenue Bridge in Kentfield to a point 200 feet downstream of the Ross Post Office. Housing Reform Reactions Mixed

By DAVID DIETZ

A set of newly proposed housing reforms was salve to some Novato residents but uncomforting to others last night at a public hearing.

The reforms, contained in a preliminary report prepared for the city council by the Novato Housing Committee, met with varied reaction from a gathering of public officials, representatives of homeowners groups, businessmen and private citizens.

There were those who were wary of change and outright worried about the impact of some of the suggested reforms on ballooning tax bills. On the other hand, many were sympathetic to sweeping alterations in city housing policy, coupling their endorsements with additional proposals.

Jerry A. Cannon, committee cochairman, told the gathering in the Novato Community House that the committee's hope was to reverse what he called a trend that sees Novato "increasingly becoming a bedroom community where only the affluent can live."

Through such techniques as density point and bonus systems for developers, clustering and other land use ideas, the panel seeks a housing mix of both price and style, together with low and moderate income units scattered throughout the community.

These proposals, coupled with dozens of others aimed at what the report calls a "viable, socially broad community," were developed over a nine-month period by the 14-member committee, due to report soon to the city council with the final document.

Last night's session was the first test of public response.

Most of the controversy centered on a proposal that the city amend its zoning ordinance to require low and moderate income housing in large developments and to enable granting of development bonuses to builders for including such units.

"I guess it's a value judgment on what kind of community you want," Gail Wilhelm, committee member and city planning commissioner, said to critics, who feared required low cost housing would drive up property taxes and that developers should be denied any encouragement.

Both Mrs. Wilhelm and Cannon — she to guffaws from the audience — viewed the financial sacrifice as an act of patriotism. "I look at it in terms of social responsibility," Cannon said. "It's something," he added, "I can do for my country."

"I've made a value judgment myself and I'm prejudiced," said Michael Sweely, a resident of Marin Highlands. "I like the upper-middle income people I live with. I want my daughter to go to a school which I choose."

While saying he was willing to help those in need of housing who already work or live in Novato, Vance Terry of Marin Country Club Estates feared an influx of persons from outside the area, creating a burden on city services.

"Don't let them come in droves," he pleaded.

"We want a mix," Mrs. Wilhelm said. "We want a diversity and we feel very strongly against overloading with low and moderate income persons."

Speakers endorsing the report spotlighted a need for shelter for the elderly and divorced and widowed mothers fighting a losing battle against the spiraling economy. They said the need for social reform went hand in hand with housing changes and hoped for a change in national priorities so more money could be funneled into housing.

Strict Preservation Of Seashore Urged

No clamming, beach combing and collection of wildlife should be allowed along the Point Reyes seashore coastline and esteros, a marine biologist and a state senator declared yesterday during an all-day hearing on the Point Reyes Seashore preliminary master plan. (Another seashore hearing story, page 1.)

Dr. Gordon Chan, marine biology instructor at the College of Marin, called for an "immediate moratorium on all forms of fishing except possibly line and pole fishing", including collection of specimens from tidepools and beachcombing for driftwood.

From the office of U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston came assurances that the National Park Service will give immediate protection to the seashore from environmental damage, while master plan deliberations are going on.

Cranston, in a press release, said park officials plan to restrict public use in areas like Tomales Point, Point Reyes Marine Reserve, Double Point and parts of the esteros. Such restrictions would need approval by the California Department of Fish and Game because the state still holds fishing rights along the shoreline. But Cranston said park officials see little difficulty in reaching agreement with the state.

State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, appeared in person to endorse Dr. Chan's recommendation. Behr said the state law permitting fishing, and marine life removal should be repealed at the Seashore, and a marine sanctuary established along and off the seashore coast.

Almost all speakers pleaded for a citizens advisory committee to watch the park planning and development each step of the way. They also demanded the banning of cars and pavement from the Seashore interior to prevent another Yosemite or a Yellowstone.

The overwhelming demand for preservation of nature prompted these statements from Joseph C. Rumburg Jr., director of the western region for the National Park Service:

"There is a clear indication that you want much more conservation than we had ever thought of before," said Rumburg, "We will be responsive to your concerns."

He said he senses distrust of the Park Service by the people and realizes that communication with the people must be improved. "We must be more responsive. Everything we do from now on will be with citizen involvement."

After the seven hour hearing, Rumburg and other park officials gave these assurances:

1. Rumburg will recommend to the Secretary of Interior the appointment of a citizens advisory committee to work with park officials on the planning and development of the seashore. He asked the county to submit names of persons who would serve on the advisory committee.

2. He will get to work as quickly as possible on a system of public transportation for both internal circulation within the Seashore and to provide access to and from the seashore. Because of slow budgetary processes, Rumburg warned that congressional appropriation for such a transportation system cannot be expected for about three years.

3. John L. Sansing, superintendent of the seashore, said he intends to cut off the road that leads to Limantour Spit before it reaches the spit so that motorists will stay away from the spit because of the long walk.

Many conservation spokesmen, particularly Jerry Friedman of the Environmental Action Committee of West Marin, wanted the road to Limantour Spit rerouted to Santa Maria Beach to the south.

One issue on which park officials held firm was the proposed improvement of Muddy Hollow Road, which would provide a connection from the Laguna Ranch northward to the road to Point Reyes lighthouse.

G. Douglass Nadeau, captain of the park service planning team, said that without this connection, Inverness would have to serve as a main entrance. This, said Nadeau, would be more damaging than the opening of Muddy Hollow Road, where cuts and fills have existed for a century. "The cuts cannot be obliterated so we might as well use it," said Nadeau.

Marin County and most conservation groups wanted the national seashore designation changed to a national park so that retention of natural areas would be the primary aim.

Rumburg said he will not recommend a change in designation "because I think we can give adequate protection under the Seashore designation." Furthermore, a change in designation would cause problems, he explained, because Point Reyes seashore was established with dairying as an acceptable use, whereas no dairying is allowed in a national park.

Yesterday's hearing opened with statements read by spokesmen for Senators Cranston and John F. Tunney. They called for expansion of the wilderness area to include shorelines, esteros, tidelands and other natural areas.

Both called for phasing out the private automobile from the seashore and development of alternate transportation methods to bring people to and from the seashore.

Supervisor Michael Wornum presented Marin County's official position, asking for a citizens committee, exclusion of private automobiles, changing the seashore to a national park, and using public transit for access to the seashore and for internal circulation.

Margaret B. Azevedo, Marin County Planning Commissioner, and one of the founders of the Point Reyes National Seashore Foundation, urged the federal government to provide matching funds to help Marin Transit Systems Inc. of Marin City start a shuttle bus demonstration project within the Seashore, as suggested by Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste.

Brown Act Ignored By New Agency

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

OAKLAND — Members of the Metropolitan Transportation Commission have been conducting committee meetings without public notice, and the chairman of the commission yesterday advised complaining newsmen that it had no intention of providing public notices required by the state's antisecret meeting law.

Alameda County Supervisor Joseph P. Bort told newsmen after the commission's monthly meeting in the County Administration Building that "we're not going to spend our money to accommodate you."

He declared that the Ralph M. Brown Act, which requires written notice of public meetings, amounted to "a subsidy of newspapers."

Newsmen complained to Bort after commissioners received reports from the chairmen of its seven committees on meetings they had held during the past month. One was held in Sacramento, and others were around the Bay Area.

Bort said that the commission's staff was too small to comply with the Brown Act. The staff now consists of an executive director and one secretary.

Bort nevertheless insisted "there was no intent to evade the Brown Act. You fellows can call us to find out about meetings." He did not suggest how the public would know when to telephone the commission, if it received no notice of its meetings.

Bort also said he doubted "the Brown Act covers this." The act covers committees as well as regular meetings of the full governing board of public agencies.

The chairman of the commission's public information committee, Albert W. Gatov of Kentfield, asserted that to comply with the Brown Act would require sending notice to 122 newspapers in the nine-county region. The act, however, requires that written notice for such committee meetings go only to those requesting they be notified of any such meeting. About a half dozen newsmen cover the commission.

Bort, apparently irritated by the newsmen, told them that "if you want to make a big issue about it, go ahead. It won't do any good."

Commissioners, approving committee recommendations, voted unanimously to allocate approximately $25,000 a year for a public relations consultant, hire six planners from the Association of Bay Area Governments, and spend $1,000 to try to recruit unemployed space engineers to fill some of the 40 staff positions expected by mid-1973.

Its next regular meeting was set at 9:45 a.m. Oct. 27 in the County Administration Building, 1221 Oak Street.

South Develops Wrong Suit To Claim A Five-Diamond Victory

"How can man die better than facing fearful odds?" South quoted as he played today's hand. It might not be as poetic, but the answer is that you don't want your partner to die as an underdog; you want him to live as an overdog. I didn't mention this to South at the time because professional courtesy prevents me from puncturing another poet's balloon.

RUFFS LEAD

South ruffed the opening spade lead, drew trumps with the ace and nine of diamonds and then led a heart from dummy. He would make his contract if East had both the king and queen of hearts or if the six missing hearts broke 3-3.

South would have made his contract if he hadn't waxed poetic, but his actual reference to fearful odds gave East an accurate idea of what was going on. East therefore put in the queen of hearts instead of playing a normal low heart.

THE HERO

Our hero won with the ace of hearts and returned to dummy with the king of clubs to lead another heart toward his jack. This plan failed, of course, and now there was no entry to dummy for the 13th heart.

South eventually had to lose a club trick, and I sent a partner's curse to him by mail the next day. His contract was beyond the reach of bad breaks or treacherous opponents if he had only played it properly to begin with.

WRONG SUIT

South was working on the wrong suit when he tried to develop a heart trick. He should ruff the first spade with a high trump, lead the five of diamonds to dummy's seven and lead the jack of spades, discarding a heart.

West takes the queen of spades and returns a heart to the ace. South leads the eight of diamonds to dummy's nine and returns the ten of spades, discarding his last heart.

A SURE ENTRY

West wins with the ace of spades, but now dummy's nine of spades is good; and the king of clubs is a sure entry to the dummy.

As a celebrated poet once remarked: Perhaps no person can be a poet without a certain unsoundness of mind.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two no-trump (22 to 24 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - J 10 9 2
♥ - 6 5 3 2
♦ - 9 7
♣ - K 8 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three clubs, the Stayman Convention, asking partner to bid a major suit of four or more cards.

If he bids a major suit, you plan to raise to four of that suit; if he bids three diamonds, denying a major, you plan to take him to three no-trump.

New Fire Chief Is Welcomed

The San Rafael Fire Commission has welcomed the new city fire chief, Robert E. Marcucci, and asked him to outline any departmental changes he may want to make for the commission's consideration on Jan. 4.

Secty. Joan Henriksen said the commission, meeting Tuesday, also discussed whether to hire a new battalion chief to replace Marcucci or to have a deputy fire chief, and whether to hire a training director, but took no action.

Dr. Rafael G. Dufficy was appointed chairman of the group, replacing Harry M. Williams, who relinquished the chairmanship for health reasons. Williams was appointed vice chairman.

New Strain Of Winter Barley

PULLMAN, Walsh. (UPI)—Three northwestern experimental stations have developed a new variety of winter barley that will produce yields about 10 per cent higher than present strains.

Dr. James Nielson, director of Washington State University's Agriculture Research Center, said the new variety, called Kamiak, would replace the Hudson strain, "particularly in areas where winter hardiness is required for maximum production."

The new six-row winter barley strain was developed by university experiment stations in Washington, Idaho and Oregon.

Inductions Out In 1971 Unless President Orders

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Unless President Richard M. Nixon signs a special executive order along with the draft extension bill now on his desk, no one will be drafted before Dec. 31, an official in the state headquarters of the Selective Service System said today.

Col. Don G. Redpath, information officer, told the Independent-Journal that no quotas have been set for induction during the rest of 1971.

Redpath said the eligible men would continue to receive notices to report for classification and preinduction physical examinations. Only by presidential order could the national draft headquarters in Washington set up quotas and order inductions to resume before Dec. 31, Redpath said.

Trio Bound Over On Pot

Three men arrested in Marin drug raids in October 1970 have been bound over to Marin Superior Court for trial.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court ordered a warrant issued for one of the men who failed to appear Tuesday for a preliminary hearing in the case. He set bail on the warrant for Richard Evans Cannings, 28, of no known address, at $50,000.

Cannings, Ellsworth Roy Smith, 24, of no known address, and Earl James Pitchford, 29, of no known address,and Earl James Pitchford, 29, of Lagunitas, are charged with possessing marijuana for sale.

Drug agents said they seized in the raids more than 150 kilos of marijuana.

Filing for the examination will be held Monday through next Friday. Applications are available at the employment offices, 805 E Street and 580 Irwin Street, San Rafael.

Cases Go To Juvenile Court

The cases of two Mill Valley youths arrested Sunday on suspicion of burglary have been transferred to Marin Juvenile Court.

George William Froberg, 19, of 330 Edgewood Avenue, and Warner Bayley Kingsbury, 18, of 8 Magdalena Court, were arrested along with Bruce Anderson Smith, 17, also of 330 Edgewood Avenue.

Smith was booked at juvenile hall. Froberg and Kingsbury were booked at Marin County Jail. The two were charged in Marin Municipal Court with six counts of burglary, but their cases were then transferred to juvenile court.

Mill Valley police said the three were arrested in the Fondue Pot restaurant Sunday. In their car was a banana cream pie police said had been stolen earlier that day in a burglary of the El Paseo Restaurant at 17 Throckmorton Avenue.

Police said the three were also connected with a series of burglaries during the last two months in Mill Valley, including burglaries of the Sequoia Theater, Vogue Cleaners, One-Hour Martinizing Cleaners, Redwood Restaurant, and Hamby's Drive-In.

Panel Reports Mercury Levels In Food Low

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Mercury contaminated animals and fish have not poisoned any Californians, a federal-state task force has reported.

Nevertheless, the panel warned more study is needed on the problem of mercury contamination.

Dr. Ephraim Kahn, head of the task force appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan said Wednesday almost all fish and other food products tested were below the federal danger level of .5 parts per million.

Kahn said mercury contamination was found in fish. But he said the panel did not know whether the mercury concentrations are increasing or how long they have existed.

Obscenity Count Is Dismissed

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Obscenity charges were dismissed Tuesday against the former publisher of the Berkeley Barb.

Max Scheer, 55, was arrested in March, 1969 following publication in the Barb of a picture of two men and a woman in an erotic pose.

The charges were dismissed by Municipal Judge George Tyler after Scheer's attorney said his client had cancer and was too ill to stand trial.

Silver Stolen

Welfare Rolls And Costs Skyrocket

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In the biggest annual increase in history, national welfare costs skyrocketed 27 per cent last year and relief rolls increased 17 per cent, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare reported Thursday.

John D. Twiname, administrator of HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service, said welfare costs for the fiscal year ended June 30 totalled $16.3 billion and relief rolls increased to 14.3 million persons.

"These are the biggest annual increases in the history of the program," Twiname said.

But Twiname said that the annual increase for the past fiscal year was offset by a decline for three consecutive months in welfare spending and a two-month reduction of welfare rolls.

"It is too early to call these decreases a trend," said Twiname, "but there is an obvious tightening up in the states."

Twiname said 11 states have cut the level of welfare aid recently in fiscal belt tightening moves, reducing the number of persons eligible for aid. They are Alabama, Arizona, Delaware, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York and Washington.

The government's newest welfare report also disclosed a $3.4 billion annual increase in costs, including $2.2 billion more in direct payments to persons on welfare and $1.2 billion in payments for medical care of the needy.

HEW said welfare costs for the year ending in June, 1968, were $8.9 billion. Doubling since then, costs increased to $10.6 billion in 1969 and $12.9 billion in 1970 before reaching the $16.3 billion mark this year.

While costs were soaring, the average monthly payment to a welfare client rose from $47.20 in June, 1970, to $49.30 in June, 1971, HEW said.

Welfare rolls added 2.1 million persons during the same period.

In the biggest of all welfare programs, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, the annual increase was 23 per cent to 10.2 million persons. Except for a slight drop in West Virginia, all states and the District of Columbia reported increases in needy family clients for the 12-month period.

From May to June this year, needy family rolls swelled in 35 states. The largest increase, 16,000, was in Illinois. Other increases from 5,000 to 7,500 persons were reported in Florida, Mississippi, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Texas. California led the states that trimmed family rolls, dropping 42,700 persons.

HEW said the overall decline in welfare rolls between May and June resulted from increased Social Security benefits that took 24,000 aged persons and 5,000 blind persons off relief. The benefits became effective last January and checks covering the January-April increases were paid in late June.

Because the federal government puts up more than 50 per cent of the nation's welfare costs, it requires monthly accounts from the states on which it bases its reports of trends in welfare.

Pleads Innocent To Marijuana

Virginia Eileen Cowell, 22, of Oakland, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to misdemeanor charges of possessing marijuana and driving under the influence of drugs.

A pretrial conference was set for Oct. 13.

She was arrested by the California Highway Patrol Sept. 14 on Highway 101 on suspicion of possessing narcotics, as well as the other charges, but the narcotics charge was not filed against her.

Officers said they found red capsules and a bag containing suspected marijuana in her car.

Palestinian Threatened In Novato

An unidentified man reportedly threw a copy of yesterday's Independent-Journal at Nayef S. Jaber, 22-year-old student from the Old City of Jerusalem, because of his pro-Israeli views reported in that edition.

Jaber told Novato police he was accosted by two men at Romar Court and Fourth Street as he was walking home at 10 p.m.

Both men spoke in Arabic and told him they had read the story and accused him of talking against other Arabs, Jaber reported.

One of the men threw a copy of the newspaper at him and then the pair left, he said.

There was a notation in Arabic on the newspaper, Jaber said, and he translated it as:

"Don't think you are far from our Palestine organization. We are the 10,000 Arabic (sic) in San Francisco. We read what you give the newspaper about the life in Israel and you will see the answer soon."

Jaber, a student at the College of Marin, who has been in the United States for 11 days, told the police he had never seen either man before.

Severe Fiscal Pinch Faces Hub District

The San Anselmo School District, which appealed unsuccessfully to voters this year for more money, is faced with losing additional thousands of dollars because of unexpected drops in enrollment.

According to Trustee Mary Helen Olive, the decrease has prompted a review of the budget and the number of teacher positions.

The board will take up those matters during a special meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock at Red Hill School.

Based on last year's ADA (average daily attendance) income, the district could lose more than $40,000 in state aid because of the drop in enrollment, she said.

The district's budget, adopted last month, planned on an enrollment of 2,070 students in figuring state income. On Friday, the district's student population stood at 1,978, she said.

The problem is compounded by an increase in kindergarten children with the overall decrease spread over the higher grades.

Meanwhile, the number of kindergarten teachers was reduced by one this year with the position shifted to the district's new and controversial alternative education program.

That program, now in progress, has lumped students of all ages into single classrooms managed by teams of teachers.

Petaluma Girls Are In Good Condition

Two Petaluma girls were reported in good condition today at Petaluma General Hospital with injuries suffered in an accident on Chileno Valley Road, west of Petaluma, Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Injured was the driver, Denise Alger, 16, of 53 Wilson Hill Road, with a left leg injury. Her passenger, Rebecca Boles, 15, of 420 Seventh Street, suffered neck injuries. The California Highway Patrol said the car struck an embankment and overturned.

Appeals Court Rules State Wiretap Legal

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI)— An appeals court has ruled that evidence obtained through wiretaps initiated by local authorities without judicial authorization may be used in state trial courts.

The California 4th District Court of Appeal made the ruling here Wednesday in denying the appeal of Thomas and Rebecca Halpin of Leucadia, who were arrested in an Ontario marijuana seizure last year.

Justice Robert Gardner, rendering the three-judge court's decision in a 12-page opinion, said that the Federal 1968 Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Street act did not apply to the case because the phone call in question was between two points in California and thus was not in interstate commerce.

Giants Jubilant After Breaking Astrodome Jinx

HOUSTON (UPI)—The San Francisco Giants were jubilant in the clubhouse.

They had just overcome two jinxes—that horrible habit of losing indoors which had reached 21 defeats in their last 26 games in the Astrodome and their own batting slump.

Juan Marichal, who would rather pitch on the equator in July than in the Astrodome in September, had just stopped the Houston Astros 3-1 to reduce the Giants' magic number to five in the National League West.

And those Los Angeles Dodgers, who have been stalking the Giants with deadly ideas for the last month, lost in Cincinnati to fall 2 1-2 games off the pace with seven games remaining.

"This is one of the biggest games all year," outfielder Bobby Bonds said between whoops. "We're three up in the lost column."

Bonds led San Francisco's 10-hit attack with a homer and a run-scoring single to knock in the Giants' first two runs. The Giants averaged only five hits a game and were hitting .161 in losing 13 of their last 16 previous games.

Marichal and Manager Charlie Fox were as happy as Bonds.

"I think this was a real big game for us, but I think we gotta go the same way tomorrow," Marichal said after winning his first game in the Dome since July, 1968.

It was a big game . . . big game," Fox said. "We broke out of it (our slump) tonight. I felt all along the pressure was on the Dodgers. Now I feel it even more so."

Manager Harry Walker of the Astros, who used seven pitchers to try to beat the Giants, was even more optimistic about the Giants' chances.

"I said all along the Dodgers couldn't win and now I'm even more sure," Walker said.

Walker will throw his stopper, Don Wilson (16-8), tonight against Gaylord Perry (14-12). Perry has lost all three decisions to Houston this year and also has always had trouble pitching in the Astrodome.

But not as much as Marichal. The high-kicking right-hander has had such an intense dislike for the air conditioning in the Astrodome that he hasn't pitched in it this year and started only one game last year.

Marichal said he dislikes air conditioning so much that he turns it off in his hotel room at night. He said the air conditioning in the Astrodome gives him sinus and ear trouble.

"I can't hear too good," he said after the game. "I feel like I'm in a tank. I don't care how good I pitch here, I feel lousy."

Marichal, who tossed a six-hitter to run his record to 16-11, said he had been using too many screwballs and players were looking for it as his "out" pitch.

"I decided to do something different tonight," he said. "I used more fast balls. "I think that's why I pitched a good game."

Bonds' home run, his 32nd and his seventh against Houston, broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth. He singled in a run in the first after Jerry Howarth and Tito Fuentes walked.

Bonds is hitting .338 against the Astros but still does not feel comfortable in the Dome's batter's box.

"I don't like it," Bonds said. "It's tough to have good depth perception."

Pirates Pop Champagne Corks

Bucs' Win Over Cards Clinches Playoff Spot

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Pittsburgh Pirates broke open the champagne in St. Louis and the rich fragrance was seductive enough to intoxicate the San Francisco Giants in far-away Houston.

Unfortunately for the Los Angeles Dodgers, they're the only ones feeling the hangover today.

Pittsburgh clinched its second consecutive Eastern Division title in the National League by whipping the second-place St. Louis Cardinals 5-1 Wednesday night as Luke Walker and Dave Giusti combined on a six-hitter. The traditional champagne, which had been cooling since Sunday, was brought out immediately following the game and it took only a few minutes before the Pirate players, as well as the floor of their clubhouse, were soaked in bubbly.

The Giants, meantime, moved closer to a champagne celebration of their own by riding behind Juan Marichal's sharp six-hitter for a 3-1 victory over the Astros in the Astrodome. Although this was only the fourth triumph for the Giants in their last 17 outings, it stretched their Western Division lead to 2 1-2 games over the Dodgers, who dropped a 4-1 decision at Cincinnati.

San Francisco, which has only seven more games to play, can boost its advantage to an almost comfortable three games by beating the Astros again tonight while the Dodgers are idle. Gaylord Perry goes for the Giants against Don Wilson.

In other National League action Wednesday night, Clarence Gaston hit a three-run homer and Ed Acosta threw an eight-hitter to lift the San Diego Padres to a 7-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves; Bill Stoneman allowed eight hits for his 17th triumph as the Montreal Expos beat the Philadelphia Phillies 20; and pitcher Bill Hands won his own game with a bases-loaded double in the fifth inning as the Chicago Cubs beat the New York Mets 4-1.

Cincinnati completed a two-game sweep of the Dodgers with George Foster delivering the key blow, a two-run double in the sixth inning, and an unhappy Los Angeles Manager Walt Alston said later, "There's no question we were out-hit and out-pitched, and when that happens you get beat."

Gary Nolan, who had been removed from a game against Houston last Saturday when he was leading 1-0 after the fifth inning, allowed the Dodgers only five hits.

Luke Walker, working six innings and allowing four hits, gained credit for his 10th victory against eight losses in the Pirate clinching. Bob Gibson (16-13) was the loser.

During the post-game celebration, Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh said, "We had eight games to go and one to win and we sure weren't going to lose eight in a row. It's good to clinch it against a club that's contending."

Manning Worries Nolan

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Faced with coming back after an upset loss to Atlanta in his National Football League opener, San Francisco 49ers coach Dick Nolan is worried about two things this week —the New Orleans Saints defense and Archie Manning.

New Orleans also upset Los Angeles in their opener, with Manning scoring the winning touchdown on the last play of the game, and Nolan knows his players will have their work cut out for them Sunday in New Orleans.

"The Saints play a lot of different defenses," Nolan said, "and we've got to be ready for them all. They use some bump-and-run, some man-to-man and some zone. And they like to blitz."

Manning, a rookie from Mississippi, completed 16 of 29 passes for 218 yards against the Rams. He also showed he could run, carrying the ball three times for 14 yards and pushing in with a second effort for the winning score.

Raiders' Madden Confident

OAKLAND (UPI) —Oakland Raiders coach John Madden, trying to pull his team together after a stunning loss in their National Football League opener against the New England Patriots, knows he will face a "different" San Diego Chargers team Sunday.

"They're a completely changed team," Madden says. "We made it tough on ourselves by losing the opener. And San Diego, by beating Kansas City is riding high. They got the Chiefs at home, now they get us at home, they're out in front of the pack and they probably feel they have the momentum."

But Madden said he is confident the Raiders, which have a number of rookies in the starting lineup, will bounce back after the opening loss.

"Two things you guard against," he said, "becoming overconfident when you win, losing confidence and panicking when you lose."

A'S BLANKED

Impressive Stint For Vida Blue

By JOE SARGIS
UPI Sports Writer

OAKLAND (UPI) — It's official now, Vida Blue will pitch against Dave McNally in the opening game of the American League playoffs.

Earl Weaver, the Baltimore Orioles manager, announced Wednesday that McNally, his big righthander who has won 20 games and lost only five even though he was on the shelf for 38 days, will start the playoffs against the Oakland A's in Baltimore on Oct. 2.

Dick Williams, the A's manager, wasn't quite that sure about Blue, until Vida showed him Wednesday night that he is ready. Blue threw only 54 pitches in the five innings he worked against the Chicago White Sox, gave up two singles, struck out three and did not walk a man.

"That did it as far as I'm concerned," said Williams. "Vida showed me he is ready and that's all I wanted to know. He hasn't been sharp lately but he was against the White Sox."

Chicago won Wednesday night's game, 3-0, behind the four-hit shutout pitching of young Tom Bradley. It was Bradley's sixth shutout of the year, three of them coming at the expense of the A's.

Blue will pitch five more innings on Sunday against the Milwaukee Brewers in his final tuneup. McNally, more than likely, will also pitch on Sunday in his final game before the playoffs.

McNally is 20-5 and Blue is 23-8. Both, along with Wilbur Wood of the White Sox and Mickey Lolich of the Tigers, are candidates for the Cy Young award.

Chuck Tanner, Chicago's personable manager, has done an outstanding job with the White Sox in his rookie big league season, is one who isn't conceding the playoffs to the Orioles, although he admits they have an edge because of experience in post-season play.

"It will be all up to Blue," said Tanner, "and he showed me he is ready. If he does well in the first game then I'd say the A's have a fine chance, although if you have to make one team the favorite you have to go with the Orioles.

Bradley stopped the A's on four singles as the White Sox swept Oakland to win the season series 11-7.

The A's, worrying a lot about Blue of late, haven't been hitting, and one man who seems deeply concerned is catcher Dave Duncan.

"We've all worried so much about Vida that we have forgotten about hitting the ball," said Duncan. "No one has hit well lately. It seems we've all been sitting around waiting for the playoffs. We better start hitting soon or we may be in trouble. In baseball you just can't turn it on overnight. You have to have your hitting down pat before a big series such as the playoffs."

Two Injured Cal Players Back In Starting Lineup

BERKELEY (UPI) —California coach Ray Willsey says two starters, center Bob Purnell and defensive guard Bob Kampa, both hampered with injuries, will start for the Bears here Saturday against San Jose State.

Purnell, who had been out with a bruised knee, and Kampa, out with a pulled hamstring muscle, both went through light workouts Wednesday in the team's last hard drill before the Saturday contest.

But Willsey said starting linebacker Sam Garamendi, suffering from a shoulder pointer, and offensive guard Neil Agness, who disclocated an elbow in last week's game against West Virginia, will not see action against the Spartans.

The Trojans stressed offense in the last hard drill prior to the counter here with Illinois.

UCLA Bruins

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA may have lost linebacker and co-captain Greg Snyder, one of the team's defensive stars, for Saturday's game at Michigan.

Bruin coach Pepper Rodgers reported Wednesday that Snyder said he was suffering from headaches and dizziness, apparently from a head blwo in last Saturday's game with Texas. He was hospitalized for observation, but Rodgers said he will make the trip to Ann Arbor.

In another change, Mike Clayton was named to start at flanker in place of Reggie Echols, who sprained an ankle Monday.

Southern Cal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — University of Southern California coach John McKay says split end Mike Morgan may see action Saturday night against Illinois.

Morgan, who suffered a broken nose against Rice, was able to get in some running and wore a helmet Wednesday but was kept out of contact drills.

Oregon

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—The Oregon football team went through its third day of practice Wednesday in preparation for its Saturday afternoon encounter with the defending Pacifici-8 champion, Stanford, with both the offensive and defensive units sharing the spotlight.

The offensive unit, with Bobby Moore and Jim Anderson leading the rushing attack, which is on top in the PAC-8, went through various drills which included running against simulated Stanford defenses.

The defensive units worked against Stanford type offensive formations, and concentrated on pass protection which saw the Ducks intercept four passes last weekend against Utah.

In the injury department, Tom Graham, who missed the Utah game because of a sore shoulder, will be ready for action Saturday against the Indians. However, Graham's replacement against Utah, Dave Sheurman, is definitely out of the Stanford contest with an ankle sprain.

Oregon State

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI)—Four Oregon State gridders, Dave Schilling, Dave Nirenberg, Jim Mott and Dan Zellick, returned to practice Wednesday after missing one workout with a flu type virus.

The Beavers went through their final full-speed workout before meeting Michigan State Saturday. Drills included kicking field goals under game-type pressure with senior Lynn Boston handling the kicking chores.

OSU finished practice with a goal line scrimmage inside the 10 yard line.

Washington

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Washington football squad ran its offensive plays against reserves using Texas Christian defensive alignments Wednesday during a 1 1-2 hour drill, the longest practice session of the week.

Coach Jim Owens said he was pleased with the work of tight ends Dan Gosselin and Tom Roehl during Wednesday's practice. Regular tight end Jim Brady was excused from practice to attend a funeral.

Defensive back Phil Andre, who wks injured in the Purdue game last Saturday, returned to action. But Dick Galuska, another defensive back, was still out with injuries suffered in a Saturday night automobile accident, however, Galuska is expected to rejoin the squad later this week and be available for the Texas Christian game.

Funeral Atmosphere For Senators' Game

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There were 43,558 empty seats in the home stadium of the all but defunct Washington Senators Wednesday night. One seat was more empty than others.

It was seat 12, row 1, box 112.

For most games over the past three seasons, the beige front row seat has been occupied by Robert E. Short, the Minneapolis millionaire who bought the Senators in 1969 and won permission from the American League Tuesday to move the 71-year-old Washington baseball franchise to Texas.

Owner Bob Short was not at the game between the fifth-place Senators and the last-place Indians which his team won 3-2. Nor was there any indication that he would be on hand in Robert F. Kennedy Stadium next week for the final three games of the season.

A total of 1,458 paying customers did turn out however for the first Senator game after major league baseball voted to abandon the nation's capital for greener pastures in the Fort Worth-Dallas-Arlington, Tex., area.

It was the second worst turnout of the season, only outdone by the 1,311 fans who turned out to see the same teams play Tuesday.

As the paying customers came through the turnstiles, a tape recording played various numbers including "Bye, bye, Blackbird."

There was no crowd hostility manifested despite knowledge that Short was moving the team. When the Senators ran on the field, not a boo was heard —nor a cheer either.

It took on the atmosphere of a high-class funeral home where visitors are asked: "Which body do you wish to view?"

Oscar Molomot, Short's hand-picked promotion director, was asked if in the upcoming final three games with the New York Yankees there would be an appreciation night for fans as once planned.

"Oh no," said Molomot. "We never announced that. We may have a pot luck night for souvenirs."

The Senators drew 435,000 before the mid-point in the season, but when Short began flirting with Texas, Toronto and Hawaii as possible locations for his franchise —the Washington fans, already jilted once when Calvin Griffith pulled his team out for Minnesota in 1961 — attendance cooled.

The club has failed to draw noticeable attendance in recent weeks by giving away little league bats, helmets, T-shirts and for grownups, panty hose.

Even before the game, Short had lost one supporter —an important one —President Nixon, who let official word go forth he was switching his long-standing baseball rooting allegiance from the Senators to the California Angels.

Ratty Rulla Wins At Bay Meadows

SAN MATEO, Calif. (UPI) — Ratty Rulla outdueled Crafty Patient in the stretch Wednesday to win the featured $12,500 added El Camino stakes at Bay Meadows.

It was the fourth stakes triumph for Ratty Rulla and his sixth victory in nine starts. Pallisades Prince finished third in the field of nine two-year-olds.

Charlie Tohill rode Ratty Rulla to a time of 1.10 4/5 for the six furlongs and the winner paid $3.80, $2.80 and $2.40. Crafty Patient returned $4.00 and $3.80 while Pallisades Prince paid $3.60.

Seals Drop Fourth Exhibition In Row, 4-1

KINGSTON, Ont. (UPI)—The California Golden Seals lost their fourth straight National Hockey League exhibition season game Wednesday night, falling to the Philadelphia Flyers, 4-1.

Bill Lesuck scored two goals for the Flyers while Ron Stackhouse scored the only Seals' goal. The Seals, who have six more pre-season games, meet the St. Louis Blues tonight in Sudbury, Ont.

BEATING HEARING

Judge Drops Carty Charges

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

ATLANTA (UPI)—A Municipal Court Judge, after hearing both sides tell their version of a beating incident involving Rico Carty, took less than a minute Wednesday to dismiss charges against the Atlanta Braves' slugger

Carty, who suffered multiple bruises and a split finger in the brawl, had been charged along with his brother-in-law, Carlos Ramirez, with simple battery on a police officer and creating a turmoil.

But at the conclusion of the three-hour hearing, Judge Robert M. Sharp declared, "any battery was justified. Mr. Carty and Mr Ramirez have been shamefully handled. Both deendants are not guilty."

No prosecutor for the city was present at the hearing, and the only person to give the other side of the incident was J. R. McEarchen, the former officer who arrested Carty and was later dismissed from the police force with two other policemen involved in the incident.

Carty said he and Ramirez were driving home from Carty's restaurant late at night when two white men pulled up alongside their car and began shouting racial epithets. Carty said he became worried and stopped on an expressway overpass when he saw a police car

The two white men, later identified as off-duty officers, also stopped and got out of their car and a fight ensued. Carty said he was clubbed by McEarchen, who was in uniform, but he denied ever striking him. He said after he was handcuffed, one of the whites kicked him in the eye.

McEarchen claimed he tried to break up the fight but was grabbed by Ramirez. He said he intended to arrest all four men, but the two whites managed to get away.

The city's aldermanic police committee, after holding a hearing into the case, dismissed the three policemen and Police Chief Herbert Jenkins called it "the worst case of misconduct by a police officer I've ever seen."

Marichal Criticizes Astro Boss

HOUSTON (UPI)—Juan Marichal, the San Francisco Giants' ace pitcher, criticized the use of seven pitchers by Manager Harry Walker of the Houston Astros in Wednesday night's game.

Walker pulled rookie James Rodney Richard in the first inning with the bases loaded and no one out after he had walked three men and given up a hit. Reliever George Culver retired the Giants without another run scoring.

Marichal, who won the game 3-1, said Walker should not have pulled Richard because it showed a lack of confidence in the young pitcher.

Walker used three pitchers in the eighth to prevent the Giants from scoring after they loaded the bases.

"The way Mr. Walker played this game, it looked like he don't want us to win," Marichal said. "I'd like to see what Mr. Walker does against the Dodgers."

The Astros finish the season in Los Angeles next week. Walker said he pulled Richard because two more hits at that point would have given the Giants a 4-0 lead.

"That big a lead with Marichal pitching would have been too much to overcome," Walker said. "He's an old pro and he hitches up and gets tough in games like this. I didn't want to give him a big lead to start with."

Stan Smith Advances In L.A. Net

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Top-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena takes on Ismael El Shafei of Egypt today in the featured match of the $73,000 Pacific Southwest Open tennis championships.

Smith had an easy time Wednesday downing New Zealand's Onny Parun, 6-4, 6-4, in the day's feature center court encounter.

Second-seeded Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, who drew a bye Wednesday, swings back into action today against Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn.

Cliff Richey, San Angelo, Tex., the third seeded performer, had an even easier time than Smith as he polished off Terry Ryan of South Africa, 6-0, 6-1. But Clark Graebner of New York was forced to three sets to defeat Frew (cq) McMillan of South Africa, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

In another international match, James Connors of Santa Monica, Calif., defeated Ray Ruffels of Australia, 6-3, 6-2.

Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., women's Open champion, had little difficulty defeating Nancy Ornstein of Anaheim, Calif., 6-2, 6-2, despite five double faults.

Rosemary Casals, San Francisco, second seeded in women's singles, won by default from Ching Ling Chang of Taiwan who failed to appear.

In the night's final match, Bob Lutz of Tiburon, Calif., downed Ray Moore, South Africa, 7-5, 6-1.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Bill Etter Surprise Plus For Notre Dame Offense

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The return of Bill Etter to play quarterback was one surprise bonus for Notre Dame football this season, and the second-ranked Irish will try to overcome another imposing handicap Saturday when they travel to Purdue.

Notre Dame always has trouble dealing with the Boilermakers, and haven't won at Lafayette, Ind., since 1961, losing four games in a row since then. In fact, the Irish had a three-game losing streak overall against Purdue before snapping back with a 48-0 rout last year.

Although the Irish had a strong nucleus of veterans returning from their outstanding team of last year, they were concerned about the key quarterback position following the graduation of Joe Theismann. But Etter, who sat out the entire year in 1970 because of severe migraine headaches, received medical clearance to return to the team just five weeks ago and he and Pat Steenberg turned in an outstanding performance last week as Notre Dame battered Northwestern, 50-7, in the season opener.

"The year layoff hurt me as far as technique, game plans and reading defenses are concerned," Etter said. "What you don't use you lose. There are an awful lot of things that have to come back and total recall just isn't automatic. But I've been able to concentrate on play selection concepts rather than worrying about the little fine points which I did when preseason practice first started."

Purdue, considered a darkhorse contender in the tough Big 10, lost to Washington, 38-35, last week.

Nebraska, the No. 1 team, and third-ranked Texas both figure to have easier tasks than Notre dame Saturday. The Cornhuskers, who have romped past Oregon and Minnesota in two starts and now are riding a 21-game unbeaten streak, are rated 28 points better than Texas A&M and Texas is picked by 17 points over Texas Tech.

There will be two games pairing members of the top 10 with fifth-ranked Ohio State a seven-point choice over 10th-ranked Colorado and No. 7 Auburn going against eighth-ranked Tennessee in a pick'em affair that probably will have a strong bearing on deciding the Southeastern Conference championship.

Fourth-ranked Michigan is a 14-point favorite over UCLA, sixth-ranked Alabama is 11 points over Florida and ninth-ranked Arkansas is highly favored over Tulsa.

Aside from the national rankings at Stake, Tennessee has special reason for beating Auburn in their game at Knoxville. The Vols lost only one of 12 games last year, and that was a 36-23 decision to Auburn. "We beat them in Birmingham last year and they have spent a lot of time getting ready for this game," said Auburn Coach Shug Jordan. "They are thinking strictly revenge."

Orioles Cinch Title Tie; Near 51-Year Record

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Baltimore express churns on—toward another division title and toward a 51-year old record.

The Orioles gained at least a tie for their third consecutive American League East title Wednesday night as they clubbed the New York Yankees 10-1 while the Boston Red Sox edged second-place Detroit 3-2.

The victory went to Jim Palmer, who pitched a sixhitter to gain his 19th triumph. The Orioles now have a week in which to become the first team since the 1919 Chicago White Sox to boast four 20-game winners. Dave McNally won his 20th Tuesday night and the Orioles' three remaining starters—Palmer, Mike Cuellar and Pat Dobson—each has 19 victories.

Boog Powell had a pair of two-run homers, his 20th and 21st, and rookie Bobby Grich had his first homer in the majors—a three-run blast in the eighth—to highlight the Baltimore attack.

Elsewhere in the AL, Chicago shut out Oakland 3-0, Kansas City clubbed California 10-3, Washington edged Cleveland 3-2 and Milwaukee -Minnesota was rained out.

Luis Aparicio doubled in two runs during a three-run eighth as the Red Sox beat Detroit and 25-game winner Mickey Lolich. Lolich had allowed only three hits until the eighth when Billy Conigliaro and Duane Josephson singled and Phil Gagliano was safe on a fielder's choice. Conigliaro scored on an infield out and Aparicio followed with his double.

Pro Grid Probe Recesses

CLEVELAND (UPI) —A federal grand jury probe of alleged blacklisting of players by the National Football League was recessed Wednesday following testimony from Detroit Lions assistant coach John North.

The investigation, being directed by the antitrust division of the U.S. Justice Department is expected to be reconvened sometime in October.

North, receiving and offensive backfield coach for the Lions, said he was asked about blacklisting, but did not elaborate.

Before his appearance, he said he had no idea why he was subpoenaed to appear before the jury.

The investigation began last November, was recessed four months over the summer and was resumed Monday.

Appearing before the jury this week besides North were Cincinnati Bengals coach Paul Brown, former San Francisco 49ers coach Jack Christiansen, New England Patriots personnel director Rommie Loudd and John Danahy, NFL security director.

PREP FOOTBALL

Tam, Redwood On Road

Tamalpais travels to Skyline High in Oakland and Redwood visits Encinal of Alameda in a pair of 3:30 games tomorrow, kicking off a full slate of weekend Marin County prep football action.

In other games tomorrow, Terra Linda hosts Harry Ells of Richmond on the San Rafael High School field and San Marin visits Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park at Petaluma High, both at 8 p.m.

On Saturday: Novato entertains Petaluma High, 1 p.m.; Marin Catholic treks to Piner of Santa Rosa, 7:30 p.m.; Drake is at Vallejo, 8 p.m.; and Montgomery of Santa Rosa invades San Rafael High, 8 p.m.

Redwood, a 28-7 winner over Sacred Heart of San Francisco last Friday, hopes to make Encinal victim number two, but the Jets have other ideas. The speedy hosts present a fluid ground game featuring the blinding speed of the Sheltons, John and Eric.

The pair destroyed San Marin's opener with a 27-6 triumph last Saturday with Eric doing most of the damage. He bolted 50 and 75 yards for Encinal's first two tallies in ringing up 146 yards on only eight tries. Brother John climaxed the point outbursts with a three-yard, fourth quarter run.

"We'll have to contain them by keeping the two from turning the corner. We're in trouble if they get around end," Redwood coach Phil Roark said while explaining team strategy.

To stop the dynamic duo, Roark has appointed linebackers Dan Young and Bob Fulton "to key on them. We want to force them to throw."

Roark contended that the Encinal air attack is inconsistent, but quarterback Bob Leach did connect on four of 10 passes for one touchdown against San Marin.

However, Roark is not underestimating the Jet supporting cast. The East Bay boys are thigh deep in backfield depth with Dory Smith, Dennis Cheathan and Mike Lowe. Smith accumulated 85 yards in 14 carries, Cheathan, a gaudy 64 in two attempts and Lowe, 50 in seven jaunts, all versus San Marin.

Despite the bevy of brilliant backs, Roark sought no sympathy; his team is relatively healthy with only backup quarterback Bob Troppmann "definitely out." He is still recovering from a knee injury suffered in the Alameda High scrum two weeks ago.

Starting signal caller Bob Brown is also ailing slightly with the intestinal flu. Brown, instrumental in the Giants 28-7 season opening victory over host Sacred Heart of San Francisco, is expected to play.

Brown's availability plus the rushing of the Edralins, Daryl and Bill, underline Roark's attitude of "thinking win."

While Redwood attempts to jump its log to 2-0, Tam will try to even its mark at 1-1, at Skyline's expense. The task won't be easy, but the Indians have been working in earnest to achieve this end, particularly in the backfield. Coach Mike Davlin is slowly working All-League back Cliff Hall into a running slot. "He got his first contact against Bishop O'Dowd, because he couldn't work before then with his bad ankle," injured in summer basketball action.

Other Indian alterations include subplanting quarterback Mark Lawson with Pat Locey. The latter threw a 14-yard scoring pass to Alvin Price after coming off the bench against O'Dowd. Tim Nowell is the likely Locey substitute with Dawson relegated to spot duty. Davlin stressed that all three are still in the running for the starting nod at this unsettled position.

With Locey at the throttle, Davlin has installed a couple of pass-oriented attack formations utilizing slots and wingbacks. "We'll use these different formations to spread the defenses, because we don't have the power to run over them," Davlin commented.

He added that the Indians will have to face the highly physical Titans without back Tom Collins, still under the affects of a broken arm.

The lineups:

PREP NOTEBOOK

Redwood, Novato Runners Favored

By RON LENT

A pair of perennially powerful teams, Redwood and Novato, are the projected teams to beat in 1971 Marin County Athletic League cross country competition.

The two teams dominated harrier doings last fall with Novato locking the varsity title and sharing the sophomore honors with Redwood.

Both are likely to be near the top again, particularly Redwood with junior Rick Norton leading the way. In addition, the Giants boast the sophomore class second, third and fourth finishers in Ned Overand, Pete Sweeney and Brian Brown.

However, San Marin High has the sophomore champion in Gary Lathop. The Mustangs also sport veteran Dan Turck, sixth last year as a sophomore, Ron Zechlin, 11th in this yearling field, and Dennis Bradley, a two-mile track stickout.

This four-veteran, seven-rookie squad lacks depth, a quality sure to hurt the Mustang chances of staying with the leaders like the Giants, Hornets and the next echelon, San Rafael and Tamalpais.

Tam lost stalwarts Vian Collier and Mike Arago, the varsity king, to College of Marin, but the Indians do have Kian McCarthy, a fast developing junior who took fifth in first year or sophomore battles.

Another Indian junior, Bill Busby is also coming on strong, reports indicated. But, if anyone is going to put the bite on the Indians, it will probably be Bill Ranney's Bulldogs.

The San Rafael spikers possess consistent Jerry Lansing, last years's top running Bulldog, Dan Johnson, a four-year vet, Phil (Fast) Slobody, Fletcher Lesley and Ron Webb, the number five man for San Rafael last annum. Lesley and Slobody were on the San Rafael contingent which took the North state meet at St. Helena as sophomores two years ago.

If San Rafael or even Redwood are to be upended, the likely culprit will be Novato. The Hornets have sting with Dan Hutton, second-ranked in varsity jousting last year, plus Tom Szostak, a hard-training junior.

Terra Linda and Drake High schools log a step or two behind the leaders, but both have talent. Veteran Gray Barker remains as Terra Linda's finest, while Fred Fraunes enjoys similar recognition at Drake.

In the Frosh-Sophomore category, again Redwood is the top rated team, followed closely by San Rafael, Novato and Tamalpais. Terra Linda, San Marin and Drake will fight for consolation plaudits.

NBA Player Reps Oppose Cage Merger

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Oscar Robertson of the Milwaukee Bucks, president of the National Basketball Association Players Association, and Dave DeBusschere of The New York Knicks Wednesday asked Congress to reject the proposed merger of the NBA and ABA.

Robertson said that all players were "dramatically helped by the competitive aspects of a second league" and added that he had total support of all NBA players in their opposition to the merger.

DeBusschere, who at one time coached the Detroit Pistons, called for the abolition of the reserve clause, which binds a player to a certain team. Appearing before the Senate antitrust subcommittee headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin of North Carolina, DeBusschere said that, "the clause puts the professional basketball player in a position that is different from any other American. What is fair for the player is where he can bargain like any other person in the U.S." Ervin, an opponent of the proposed merger, is arguing that pro basketball players have a specialized skill and that their bargaining rights should be treated accordingly.

Dome Distances

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) —For baseball in the Houston Astrodome, the distance from home plate along foul lines is 340 feet, and direct center field, 406 feet.

Headline Net Stars In Tourney

Barry MacKay of Ross has quite a racket Saturday.

On that day, the Redwood Bank International Open Tennis Championships begin at noon, featuring top pro Rod Laver of Australia. Joining Laver in the group will be Arthur Ashe and Ken Rosewell, two former U.S. Open kings, tourney director MacKay, Wimbledon singles champ John Newcombe and independent pros like Berkeley's Jim McManus, Tom Gorman, a two-time winner over Laver this year, and Lafayette's Jeff Borowiak. National collegiate victor Jimmy Connors of UCLA is also entered.

Other standout contenders in the 64-man field are: Czechoslavakia's Jan Kodes, Frank Froehling, Stanford's Roscoe Tanner, Tom Brown, former Wimbledon and Forest Hills finalist, and Cliff Richey, America's top seed.

This aggregate will be augumented by eight survivors of the eliminations play at the Berkeley Tennis Club Saturday starting at 9 a.m.

In addition, the opening day festivities boast a "Youth Tennis Foundation Day," also at the Golden Gateway tennis club in San Francisco.

The charity event pits two former U.S. Open champions, Arthur Ashe and Ken Rosewall, in a 3 p.m., "winner take all" singles match for a $1,000 purse at the Golden Gateway Tennis Club.

The Ashep-Rosewall encounter precedes a celebrities doubles match featuring Ashe and Ethel Kennedy against Rosewall and Clint Eastwood, subbing for composer Burt Bacharach. Comedian Jonathan Winters and actress Stella Stevens will officiate.

Proceeds from the $25, $10 and $7.50 tickets for the two matches go to the Youth Tennis Foundation, a 14-year-old organization geared to exposing youth to tennis.

After listing the cast, MacKay said a packed house is nearly assured. "The only individual tickets we have left," he said, "are for the earlier rounds at Berkeley Saturday through Oct. 2 and for the weekday matches at the Golden Gateway Club.

There are a limited number of season box and general admission seats for the Berkeley portion remaining, MacKay added.

Monday through Thursday Berkeley match ducats sell for $3. The Oct. 1 quarter-final seats and Oct. 2 semifinal tickets go for $5 and $6, respectively. Golden Gateway match tickets are $2 per match.

These ducats are available at Ticketron outlets and in the Redwood Bank of San Rafael.

GETTING READY

HAFB Boxer's Olympics Hopes

By SGT. SHERRY RYBAK

HAMILTON AIR FORCE BASE — "Preparation is what I consider the most essential ingredient in the making of a good boxer."

That's what Jerry Otis, 24, from the Aerospace Defense Command's Hamilton Air Force base has to say anyway, and he's got a silver medal from the recent Pan-American games to back him up.

The most recent kudo for Otis was his knockout of 23-year-old European middleweight champion Alec Nastac of Romania. The U.S. versus Romania Boxing Match was held in Albany, N.Y. on Sept. 10. The K.O. came at 2:30 of the second round.

"I caught him with a right cross in the second round and he went down but he beat the eight count," said Otis. Up on his feet again, "I threw another right cross and this time I knew I had him with a kayo by the expression on his face. During the entire bout I was ahead, but not a great deal. He was definitely in good shape!"

The 5-foot-11, 165-pound sergeant says he began fighting in the ring when he was 16. "I used to get in a lot of fights when I was in high school and it seemed I had a monopoly on street fights too. I then decided to do my fighting in the ring rather than the streets, and joined the city league."

It was at this time that Jerry met Larry High, Navy light heavyweight champion at the time, and the man that he credits with his initial training and interest in boxing.

"The Navy used to fight in my hometown of Bremerton, Wash., and every chance I got I'd go watch them," Otis said. "They practiced at the gym where I used to play basketball and we'd stop playing our game long enough to watch them. First thing I knew I had the gloves on and I was learning how to box."

Jerry entered the Air Force in June, 1968, and submitted an application to Randolph Air Force Base, Tex., to become a member of the Air Force Boxing Team.

With a total of 50 fights in the ring so far, Jerry believes that preparation is the most essential ingredient in the making of a good boxer. "There's a lot of sacrifice, hard work and physical training a boxer must go through, otherwise there's no use in fighting or even climbing into the ring. Confidence plays a large role, but I'd say training is practically 80 per cent of what you need."

Jerry will go on to compete in a series of matches, all leading up to the 1972 Olympics. He thinks his chances of making the Olympic team are good, but says he knows he's in for some pretty rigorous training. "You don't have to train too much for a single fight, but when you enter a tournament where you're in that ring just about every night you better be prepared. More matches, more training."

What does a boxer think about when he steps into the ring? Jerry says he's a lot more nervous when he's watching his friends fight, rather than when he's in the ring himself. "Sure, I'm nervous when I first get in there, I think everyone is, even pros, but once you first get hit you seem to relax and concentrate on the other guy's ability. You don't have time to concentrate on yourself and you shouldn't have to. It's just like driving a car; you drive the car, the car doesn't drive you."

Jerry wants to become a mechanic or heavy equipment operator when he separates from the service next June, though he may be at the peak of his boxing career. "Boxing's become a part of me, but I'll probably work with kids in the art of the sport. I'm not planning to spend too much more time fighting myself."

No Betting On Albatross; Horse Too Good For Field

DELAWARE, Ohio (UPI) — Today's field of the Little Brown Jug harness racing classic included such a heavy favorite that for the first time in the 26-year history of the event no pari-mutuel betting was allowed on the horse.

Race officials said they were afraid heavy betting on Albatross, winner of 16 consecutive races and 17 out of 18 this season, would cost the track thousands of dollars.

Albatross was such a heavy favorite in his last win at Detroit it cost the track $16,359 in a minus pool and when the horse won the Jug Trial last week in Columbus, Scioto Downs lost money.

Although Jug officials in the past have prohibited win place ticket on certain horses, it was the first time a horse has been taken completely off the boards.

With Albatross off the betting line, Nansemond became the early favorite at 3-to-1 odds.

Stanley Dancer, driver and trainer of Albatross, said he was somewhat surprised at the large field of 15 in the race.

Dancer is looking for his fourth Jug victory.

Economy Is Bright In Puerto Rico

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI)—Probably the most spectacular local economic expansion drive in history, Puerto Rico's "Operation Bootstrap," is entering its third decade with new laurels.

For example, in the last few years production of electronics firms on the island has jumped to $100 million a year.

Started during the days when Luis Munoz Marin still was political kingpin of the Commonwealth, Operation Bootstrap has brought two thousand new businesses to Puerto Rico and increased the island's annual Gross National Product from $750 million to $4.6 billion.

It has raised per capita income from $179 to $1,426 and has created 110,000 new steady jobs on the island.

But, according to the Puerto Rican Economic Development Administration, one of the most significant points about Operation Bootstrap is that it has created more jobs on the mainland than in Puerto Rico. That's because large portions —90 per cent in the case of electronics —of the output of Puerto Rico's new plants come to United States as compenents of products completed in American mainland factories. Also, a substantial portion of the basic elements and raw materials for Puerto Rican industry is bought on the mainland.

For this reason, organized labor on the mainland never has seriously criticized the 100 per cent Puerto Rican tax exemption that, along with the island's low direct labor costs (about 60 per cent of those on the mainland) have attracted so many firms to the Commonwealth. If it were not for Puerto Rico, Japan and Hong Kong would get these jobs.

The tax exemptions commonly run for 10 to 17 years depending on location of the plant. Puerto Rican officials say the firms do not pull up stakes and leave when their tax exemptions run out but stay and pay taxes —"Often they have expanded their plants and obtained new exemptions on the expanded facilities."

Puerto Rican officials say Commonwealth income, sales, real estate taxes and excise taxes paid by the workers and customers and suppliers of the exempt plants amount to much more than the waived taxes on the factories. Puerto Rico is exempt from the federal income and direct federal excise taxes.

The Development Administration, known on the island by its Spanish name, Fomento, was a spectacular success from the start and its activity has resulted in an annual compounded growth rate of more than 10 per cent in the Commonwealth's industry.

In the early years, Fomento naturally went after labor intensive industries such as textiles, footwear and gadget manufacturing in order to create jobs fast for the poor. But Fomento was spectacularly successful in attracting sophisticated capital intensive businesses, too. Petrochemical investments in Puerto Rico alone have amounted to $700 million.

In spite of the great success of Operation Bootstrap, Puerto Rico still has an unemployment rate of 10 to 12 per cent in most years, twice that of the mainland. This forces a lot of migration to the mainland of Puerto Ricans seeking work.

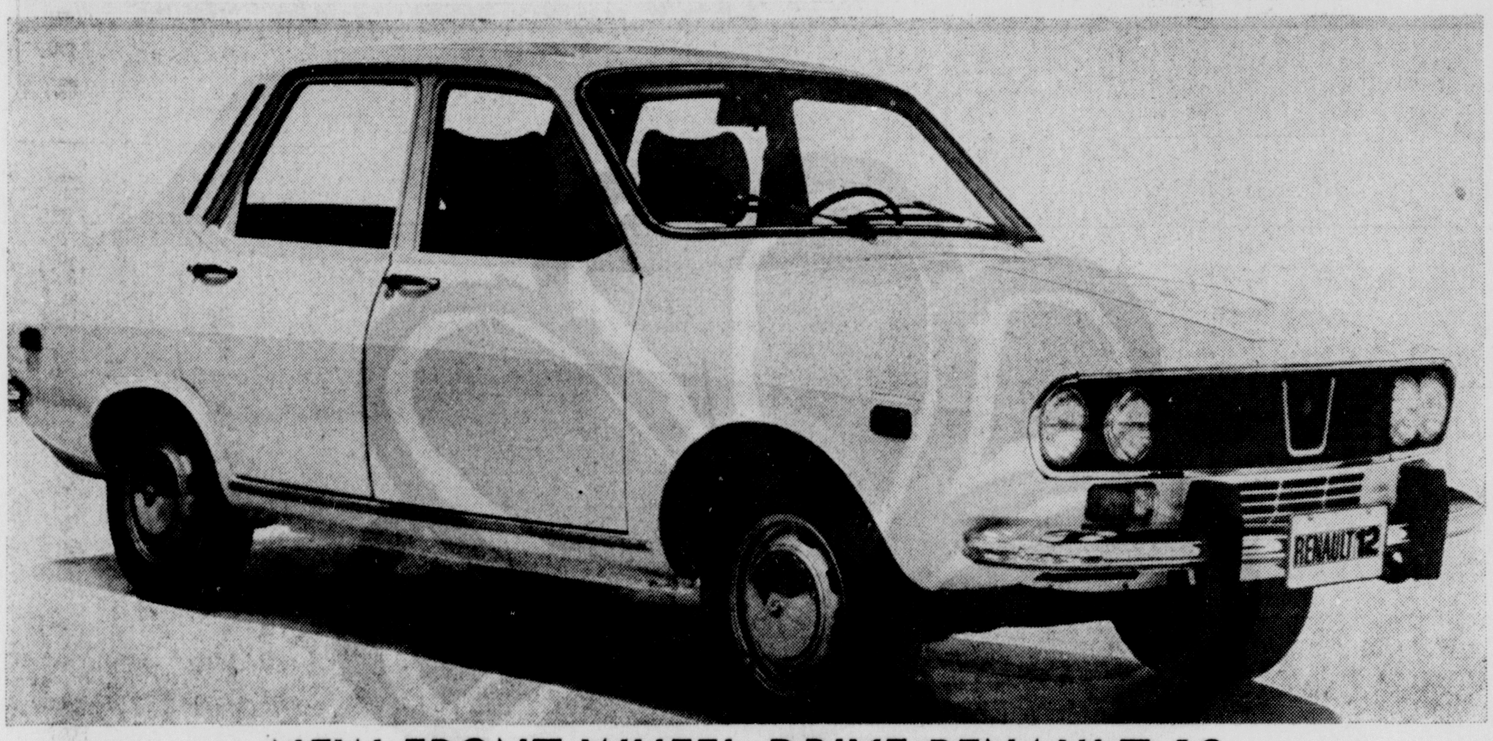
"In the coming decade," said a Fomento spokesman in New York, "we hope to supplant Operation Bootstrap with Operation Lift Off, an accelerated rate of progress that will cut Puerto Rico's jobless rate to or below the national average and again raise per capita income substantially."

Another Branch For Homestead

Homestead Savings and Loan Association, San Francisco, will open its sixth Bay Area office in the Montecito Shopping Center, San Rafael.

Approval for the new branch was granted last week by the State Department of Savings and Loan.

The office, expected to open in three or four months, will be under the management of Mrs. Jane Collins, who is presently manager of Homestead's Sausalito office. Total assets of the association now exceed $53 million.



NEW FRONT WHEEL DRIVE RENAULT 12

Both the sedan pictured here and the Renault 12 station wagon are four-door body styles and are powered by a 73-horsepower engine. A four-speed all synchromesh transmission is standard but a torque converter three-speed automatic is also available. Cars are equipped with front disc brakes, rack and pinion steering, unit chassis body construction and flow-through ventilation and are on sale at Shamrock Motors, Mill Valley, and Marin Bay Lincoln-Mercury, San Rafael.

Market In Decline For Fourth Session

NEW YORK (UPI) —Stocks declined today for the fourth consecutive session. Key market indicators pointed slightly lower, while declines topped advances by a little more than a two-to-one margin.

Selling stemmed largely from uncertainty over what action President Nixon will take after expiration of the wage-price freeze on Nov. 13. Wall Street was hoping Nixon might reveal some of his post freeze plans tonight in a question-and-answer session with a business-dominated panel in Detroit.

Prices also backpedaled in light trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Among the most active Amex issues were Guardian Mortgage Investors down fractionally on 35,000 shares, TWA warrants also down slightly on a volume of over 15,000 and Kinney preferred C, slightly easier on 13,000 shares.

Other active stocks included Kresge, down a point, RCA, unchanged, and American Telephone, 1-4 higher.

Union May Stage A Recovery

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Could you please tell me something about Union Corp. (NYSE)? I bought about 100 shares back in October. — J. A.

A. Through numerous acquisitions in recent years, Union Corp. extended its already diversified operations into several high-technology fields including the production of components for the computer and electronics industries, aerospace, automotive and mobility equipment parts plus lenses and other opthalmological items. Company is presently working on the new soft contact lens, FDA application for which is expected in the next few months.

Reflecting general softness in the computer and electronics areas, Union's earnings started slipping in the second quarter of fiscal 1970, a trend which has continued thus far into fiscal 1971. For the first nine months of this year, per share net slumped 52.5 per cent to 31 cents on a 2.2 per cent dip in sales to $51.76 million.

With the acquisition program continuing in more favorable business areas, and in view of the projected pickup in the computer and electronics industries, Union offers speculative appeal as a potential recovery candidate.

Tab Products Earnings Off

PALO ALTO (BW) — Tab Products Co. has reported sales of $4,253,000 and earnings of $117,000, or 14 cents a share, for the company's first quarter.

In last year's first quarter the company had sales of $4,940,000 and earnings of $259,000, or 31 cents a share.

Higher sales during last year's first quarter were the result of a truck strike that delayed shipments which, under normal conditions, would have been recorded in the fourth quarter of 1969. That delay increased first quarter 1970 earnings by an estimated 10-12 cents.

THE OLD LENS SQUEEZE

Unlike conventional rigid plastic contact lenses, the new soft lens — such as the one Dr. William Boyts is removing from the eye of Mrs. Gay Cone — are flexible and can be bent. The contact, called "Soflens," was developed by Bausch & Lomb Inc. and demonstrated by Boyts, central district manager for the firm. The lens offers simplified fitting procedures and increased wearing comfort for users, but is more difficult to keep clean.

Education Goals Set In Novato

Novato Unified School District trustees have selected educational standardization and continuity in learning as its top educational objective.

Trustees selected four goals for special emphasis, drawn from a list of 50 submitted by the citizens educational goals committee.

Besides standardization, the objectives given priority were the program for less able learners, inservice training for staff members and individualized instruction, reported Edith Pewitt, administrative assistant.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

BUILDING — Took under study nine bids for construction of a student center and fine arts center at San Marin High School, ranging from $587,000 to $612,900.

YOUTH NEWSPAPER — Approved participation in a countywide newspaper for high school students, sponsored by the Marin County Youth Commission.

ATHLETICS — Approved a flag football and basketball program for seventh and eighth grade pupils in conjunction with the Novato Parks and Recreation Department.

TRANSFER — Added a provision to its transfer policy for high schools providing that when a school is overloaded, new pupils will be enrolled at the nearest school having space available.

Concord Firm Seeks First Sewer Connects

A concord firm has filed papers in Marin Superior Court asking that if anyone gets sewer connection permits from the Richardson Bay Sanitary District, it should be the first.

A hearing was set for Oct. 5 on the request filed Tuesday by Seaport Development Co., which owns 62 acres of undeveloped property behind Strawberry Town and Country Village shopping Center.

New sewer connections in the district were banned by a June 24 order of the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board until a subregional sewage system is completed in southern Marin.

The board's ban has been attacked in three previous suits filed in superior court.

Seaport's attorney, Robert C. Marks of Martinez, said the company had contracted with the sanitary district prior to the water quality board's order for 170 permits and later applied for 47 more.

Special Session On Water Service

The Rohnert Park City Council will meet in special session at 7:30 p.m: today to consider extending water service to Los Camponeros Mobile Home Park.

The council will consider installing a water main on Snyder Lane to service the new facility.

Driving Course To Be Offered

A defensive driving course for licensed drivers will be conducted Oct. 5, 12, 19 and 26 at the First Methodist Church of San Rafael, 9 Ross Valley Drive.

The course, starting at 10 a.m., is sponsored by the San Rafael National Retired Teachers Association and the American Association of Retired Teachers and will be given in cooperation with the National Safety Council.

Trained instructors will use films and other visual aids.

Registration information may be obtained from J.C. Uhte, 51 Bothin Road, Fairfax.

Concern Aired Over Proposed Apartment Plan

A proposed development of 87 apartments and townhouses has drawn expressions of concern over potential traffic problems last night from the Petaluma Board of Zoning Adjustments.

Developer Milton Formed seeks approval of plans to build Cherry Hill Residential Village at 180 Cherry Street. Assistant Planner Richard D. A. Anderson said the board was concerned Tuesday night about the central driveway location and that there might not be enough sight distance for traffic coming over the hill on Cherry Street.

Anderson said the commission continued discussion of the plan to its Oct. 5 meeting.

In other matters the board approved a site design for the C & M freight forwarding terminal to be located at 21 Bridge Street and plans for a duplex to be built at 230 Edith Street by Earl Andersen.

Firemen Slate Picnic Sunday

The Marin County Association of Fire Departments will hold its annual barbeque and picnic Sunday, beginning at 10 a.m. at Marinwood Community Park.

The event will begin with softball championship games and will feature a barbecued chicken dinner. Beer and soft drinks will be available.

The picnic is open to the public.

Subdivision Plans Sent Back To Drawing Board

The Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee has sent a plan for the 135-unit Villa Marin subdivision in the Tennessee Valley area back to the drawing board.

Planning department secretary Evelyn McCrary reported the committee asked developer Norman T. Gilroy of Sausalito to submit revised plans for the townhouse-apartment development at its Oct. 5 meeting.

Among the changes the advisory group would like to see, she said, are a lower density of units in the development, improved street circulation and reduction of the visual impact of parking garages. Mrs. McCrary said the committee did not specify how many units should be allowed in the development.

In other business, Tuesday, the committee asked for a revised plan for street lighting in the Shelter Ridge subdivision, now under construction in Mill Valley. The group asked that light standard heights be limited to 12 feet and bulbs used in the street lamps be no brighter than 100 watts.

Performance Set By Indian Dancer

Chitresh Das, Kathak dancer and teacher at the Ali Akbar College of music, will give a dance performance tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Foster Hall of the old San Rafael Military Academy, Mission and Cottage streets.

Kathak is a classical North Indian dance accompanied by small hand drums which will be played by Shankar Ghosh.
